FIERCE FIGHT NEAR DETROIT.

Willie Sprackiin Evidently Got a Bad Beating.

Detoit, Mich., July 9 .- Special.)-Nothing but faint-heartedness on the part of Frank Carsey, of Chicago, prevented Willie Spracklin, featherweight champion of Canada, from a knockout in a private bout fought in the moonlight in a deserted spot on the Detroit River early this morning, the Clevelanders robbing their man of sure victory by agreeing in the latter stages of the battle, when Sprackling was wobbling around the ring on stimulants and his nerve alone, to stop the bout and declare a draw if both men were on their feet at the conclusion of the twenty-fifth round. The match was to have been to a finish, winner taking all of a wager of $500 a side, and a purse of $200 and the loser paying all expenses. Spracklin held his own in the terrific fighting to the 13th, however, a right to the body weakened him, and Carsey rocked his head almost at will with rights and lefts, the Windsor boy saving himself by repeated clinching and holding. In the final round Spracklin was virtualy out and had to be carried to the boat. Carsey was as fresh as at the beginning. Walter C. Kelly, of Cleveland, acted as referee.
