of Paul O. Stensland, the fugitive president of the Milwaukee Avenue State son, B. C. A small, red, round book, contain explicit directions for reaching Nelson. The directions are in the handwriting to President Stensland.

"By way of Spokane" reads one di rection. Another is "Soo Line and Canadian Pacific, thence by steamer."

While the search for Stensland is in progress, both he and Hering are accused by fingers of the dead in a remarkable diary kept by Paying Teller Kowalski, who committed suicide as a result of the failure.

The tragedy of a life is revealed in the entries. In March the young man learned of the rotten condition of the bank. He did not falter. He had the welfare and the interest of his people at heart. He would protect them even at the risk of losing his position, so he vaded the private office of the bank president and told him what he knew. Here are some of the entries:

'March 11-Expostulated with President Stensland and Cashier Hering. "April 27-Expostulated again with Cashier Hering. Told him I had been offered position with new bank." "June 23-Turned down position with new bank. Think pretty well of it,

"July 12-Wrote letter to brother at Hudson Lake. Told him that bank was getting pretty rotten. Think I shall go Stensland and Hering."

KAISER'S NEW CASTLE.

Mediaeval Fortress.

Berlin, Aug. 20 .- With the object of lending a German aspect to the Polish city of Posen and emphasizing Prussupremac, there, Emperor William decided years ago to build a castle work for the lost, by the opposition of at that place. The structure is now nearly completed. Illustrations of it show it to be of heavy Romanesque architecture. The lower storey is built of massive, irregular blocks of granite. A tower 240 feet high surmounts the whole. At the corners are truncated towers. The walls are loopholed. The general appearance is that of a mediaeval fortress rather than of a modern

The most remarkable apartment in the building is the state hall, which covers an area of 6,000 square feet. It is lined with marble and is richly ornamented with bronze reliefs.
