

Fall Clothing

You are perhaps thinking that you will want either a suit or an overcoat soon. We thought about Fall Clothing almost six months ago and bought it.

We placed large orders with H. Vineburg & Co, the makers of PROGRESS BAND CLOTHING thus protecting our selves from paying the advance prices on account of the advance in all woolen goods.

The Fall Stock has arrived and we find that we made no mistake in doing so. It is the finest lot of Men's and Boy's Clothing we have ever shown composed of the very newest styles in

Table listing clothing items and prices: Men's Tweed and Worsted Suits from 6.00 to $15.00, Boys' Tweed and Worsted Suits 3.50 to 10.00, Children's Norfolk Suits (2 piece) 2.00 to 4.00, Men's Stylish Overcoats 6.00 to 15.00, Boy's Raglanette Overcoats 4.00 to 8.50, Boy's and Children's Reefers 2.50 to 5.00, Men's Stylish Worsted Trousers 2.00 to 3.50, Men's Heavy Tweed Trousers 1.00 to 1.75

It will pay you to call and see this lot of clothing whether you buy or not. We are always pleased to show you how Progress Brand Clothing is made.

Edge Hill.

The farmers around Edge Hill have completed taking up their roots.

Mr and Mrs Switzer from Illinois are visiting her uncle Mr Jas Banks and sister Mrs Jas Staples. Mr Banks had not seen his niece for forty years.

Mrs T. Banks from Owen Sound and her aunt Mrs J. McArthur from the Soo are visiting around Edge Hill this week.

Mr and Mrs Wm McFarlane visited friends in Mt Forest his week.

Maple Park.

The good old summer time has passed away and now we have indications of winter approaching and we will soon hear the rattle of sleigh bells as the young man drives away to see his hearts delight. How quickly time flies.

Miss Maggie McDonald returned again to the Queen city after spending a week with her mother and other friends around this part.

Miss Carrie Knisely accompanied by her aunt Mrs Lohsinger visited friends at Mt Forest last week.

Mr Dan McCormick attended Hopeville church Sunday evening in good company.

Mr Wm Frock returned from the city Tuesday last after undergoing a slight operation on his nose. We are glad to see him so much improved in health to be able to plough every day.

Mr Jno A Ferguson visited his sister and other friends at Proton Station Sunday last.

The Misses Ethel, Isa and Florence Campbell, of Swinton Park visited their friend Miss Mary Ferguson Saturday evening last.

Mr and Mrs Jno McNulty accompanied by their daughter Miss Edith from Swamp college visited at Mr and Mrs Joe Campbells last week.

We think Jno E. Ferguson must have been caught out in the snow storm Sunday night as he was seen winding his way home from the direction of Durham, bright and early Monday morning.

Miss Mary Ellen Small returned to the city Wednesday after spending her holidays with friends in this part.

Mr Dougal Ferguson, Tax collector for north Proton, has started out on the war path last week and now you rate payers can keep a weather eye in the direction of the gate.

Very sorry we are for the young man who lost the Bell the night of the teaming but keep up courage young man the chime of the Bell hasn't smitten you yet.

We think Dan and Jack have a notion of investing in a straw blowing machine for next fall's threshing. What we would like to know is how did the baseball meeting turn out and if all the farmers got their pumpkins housed up so the pigs won't get them.

Mr A. Lawrence of Glenelg visited at Mr Wm Porters last Sunday.

Mr S. Anderson of Proton station is engaged for the fall work with Wm Frock.

We would like to know if Jack found the little brown coils. If the boys from town had a pleasant drive in the two seated rig.

Local Option and Social Vice.

The widely quoted statement of Police Magistrate Hunt of the County of Elgin to the effect that as the result of Local Option respectable licensed hotels had degenerated into resorts for social debauchery; that temperance people had shown a cowardly apathy toward the greater evil and, inferentially at heart, recommending a return to license, has been eagerly laid hold of by the liquor interest in its frantic fight against Local Option. Mr Hunt has greatly modified his sweeping indictment and has practically let down the charge to one house. This house was notorious as a disreputable resort for years and yet continued to hold a license until it was cut off by the passage of the Local Option by-law. So far from being apathetic, in regard to the matter the temperance people not only stood by the law officer, but urged him to take action, even providing everything for procedure, but to no purpose. An appeal to the License Department in Toronto also proved futile.

Instead of the facts proving the temperance people guilty of cowardly apathy or showing that Local Option leads to moral degeneracy, they rather serve to emphasize the fact that men of low moral calibre may and do obtain licenses in houses that are known to be homes of social vice and that neither the salaried custodians of the law, nor the government which appoints them can be trusted to perform their duty in matters of moral reform unless they feel the pressure of organized public opinion behind them. That opinion being under strict government inspection scarcely needs any argument, but that the removal of liquor licenses is an incentive to social vice is a position too absurd to be entertained for a moment by any sane man. The liquor interest fears reason than that it is the herald of social immorality. It is an instrument for temperance reform that should be used vigorously and fearlessly. The sweeping away and fear-licensed bar means the sweeping away of the rallying centres for all that is lowest and worst in any community. Put the house of public entertainment under rigid inspection, with the licensed bar must go.—Presbyrian.

Viavi Convention.

The annual convention of the Canadian Viavi Company, recently held in the Confederation Life Building, was the largest and most enthusiastic convention of Viavi forces ever held in Canada. The lecture hall, which is part of the Viavi Suite in the west end of the Confederation Life Building, has a seating capacity of eighty or ninety people, and was crowded to the door at each session morning and afternoon for three days.

From every section of the Province and Dominion came an enthusiastic stream of the progress of the business. Some sections showing a very large increase during the past twelve months, and all over the field showing a steady and healthy growth. One had only to look into the faces of the representatives of the company to recognize that the Viavi force is composed of the finest talent and ablest women of the land.

This particular convention has a specially marked feature inasmuch as many of the managers in the States were present as visitors. They have heard so much of the increased growth of the Viavi business in Canada and the popularity of Viavi with Canadian people that they were impelled with a desire to know more of Canadian methods.

The greetings from China and England were received, also the telegram from the head office of Viavi in San Francisco, extending their hearty good wishes at the convention.

The name "Viavi" has swept the whole civilized world. When success, development and growth so remarkable as that attending Viavi are observed it is proper to ascertain their elements. These are found in the business management, in the curative value of Viavi, and in the great prevalence of the diseases at which it aims. The Viavi System of Treatment is two-fold in its nature. It is educational as well as curative. While it is a woman's work among women, and the popular Viavi lectures are doing a great good in educating along proper lines, and the increased use of Viavi by women in strengthening and uplifting the weaker sex, it also appeals very strongly to men, both as a business and as a system of treatment. People are learning to respect the Viavi methods, learning that this is a remedy around which certain restrictions are placed, and that anyone who is allowed to place themselves under this system of treatment is themselves fortunate, for there are many who make application for the treatment who are refused. It is a business which stands alone in its method. No one is accepted as a patron without a thorough understanding of the system of treatment, and whose condition has been considered one that should be placed under the treatment.

Don'ts for Hunters.

Every man who leaves town on his hunting trip this fall should cut this article out and memorize it while on his way to the woods.

Don't grasp a gun by the barrel and drag it after you out of a boat, through a fence or anywhere else, unless you want to test the truth of the saying that a fool has more lives than a cat—and then don't. One discharge may blow them all out.

Don't carry more than a small quantity of whiskey with you on your hunt. It's poor stuff to shoot on, and has resulted in many "deplorable accidents."

Don't under any circumstances allow your gun muzzle to point for one single moment at any living thing you do not mean to kill.

Don't allow yourself to carry a cocked gun in your hands, not even if you are alone. A sudden stumble may fire it; and you can never tell where the contents may go.

Don't carry a loaded gun into your camp or stopping place. And be absolutely sure that every cartridge is taken out of it before you go near the door.

If the sportsman who shot poor Jones through the heart across his own camp table had heeded that don't, and the other regarding the muzzle of his gun pointing at anyone, Jones would have been alive to-day. You see, he took a hammerless rifle into Jones' camp, laid it down on the table on the other side of which his host was sitting, talking to a while, picked up the rifle—and killed Jones last night. He has never been able to understand how.

Don't shoot at a noise.

Don't shoot at a moving bush.

Don't shoot at anything to which you cannot swear. If the sportsman who stood in Cochran's door yard and killed his chum, who was coming through high brush eighty rods away, had heeded those don'ts he wouldn't have been hurled into eternity with out a moment's warning, and the still more luckless survivor would not to-day be a hopeless maniac. Those are don'ts worth heeding.

And lastly: Don't forget a single one of these don'ts.

Don't forget to observe them so rigidly that their observance becomes as second nature to you.

Don't forget to preach the like observance to your fellow-sportsmen, and you will find them the best pieces of wood lore you ever learned.

A WISH REBUKED.

If one could have a hundred years to live

After the settlement of youth's unrest, A hundred years of rigorous life to live To the pursuit of what he counts best, A hundred summers, autumns, winters, springs,

To train and use the forces of his mind He might fulfil his fond imaginings, And lift himself and benefit his kind, O faint of heart, to whom this life appears

Too short for try ambitious projects He Who piled his task in weakness and in tears

Along the countryside of Galilee, And bless the world for these two thousand years, Did his incomparable work in three, W. M. MacKERRACHER.

The late Wm Johnston

As we intimated last week the decease of this gentleman took place on Tuesday 23 October. He was advanced age of 87 years. He was interred in Maplewood cemetery on Thursday the last token of respect, Rev Mr Little of Holstein, the interim moderator of Knox Church conducted most appropriate services speaking from Paul's declaration "I have laid up for me" etc. This constituted a "retrospect" and a "prospect" which gave opportunity for many comforting and encouraging remarks. The pall bearers were his neighbors, Thos Wallace, Jas Webber, Thos Gadd, David Leith, William Allan and Deceased was born in Dumfriesshire, Scotland on the 3rd of July 1819 and left there in 1842 coming with wife and child to Beverly township, Canada west, where he remained for 13 years. He sold his farm at the time of the Russian War and went to Richmond, Virginia, where he worked at his trade as a carpenter. He entered on a broom manufacture to be burned out, losing heavily. He was there till 1885 all through the war period and he and his eldest son, our townsman of the same name, lost some of its bitterness.

In the year named he moved with his family of two sons and five daughters to Canada and bought the farm he died on thus having lived there over 40 years. His wife predeceased him by 22 years and of his family are dead Helen, Maggie (Mrs Thos. Byers) and son George. The remaining members are Wm in Durham, Janet and Mary (Mrs Dickleman) on the home place, and Lizzie, (Mrs Walker), of Holstein, A brother is still living in Galt, and a sister in Paris, Ont.

Deceased was of a genial disposition hospitable to a degree, musical in his tastes, as were all his family. He was a member of the Presbyterian church and for many years an elder, though acute work. For a number of years in the neighborhood and his passing at a patriarchal age makes a notable break between the present and the past.

Sir Wilfred Laurier has received some hard knocks from English editors for appearing at T. P. O'Connor's meeting at Ottawa and speaking in favor of Home Rule for Ireland. Most Canadians believe that Ireland should have a provincial legislature, and will not be, and cannot be happy without it; most of us feel that there would be no danger, but a gradually increasing benefit in giving Ireland home rule in home affairs. Out here we have had some experiences in these matters. No stir has been made in this country, therefore, by Sir Wilfred Laurier's remarks on the Irish question, for he has merely said what he has said before, and what rival political leaders vie with each other in saying on this subject. And yet, it would be as well, perhaps, if the Premier of Canada kept clear of such a question, and refrained from giving offence to that influential section of the British public opposed to Home Rule. They regard this as a domestic question, and can see no reason why the Premier of Canada should butt into it. Sir Wilfred and his colleagues at Ottawa, when urged to forward Chamberlain's proposals, have replied that they do not desire to meddle in British party politics. It was an excellent stand to take, and it should be adhered to all along the line. This country has reason to lose than gain by intermeddling—Saturday Night.
