The photographs were secured by Mr Geo Watson, one of Hamilton, on a recent visit to Scotland, and of course are highly prized by him and his aged uncle.

That Mr Watson comes of a sturdy stock is evident for notwithstanding his almost 80 years he is wonderfully vigorous, hears perfectly, must have his Review and Weekly Globe and pays regularly still takes an interest in affairs and has an upright independent bearing that represents the best in Scottish character.

Programme of Ontario Legislature.

It is announced that the Ontario Legislature will meet early in February and forecasts are published of the work of the session. A number of important measures are promised including one of law reform and a new ballot law.

Fonetik Speln.

A most imposing document has come to hand this week urging the news-press to be reformed in Toronto to reform their spelling, and the petition is signed by nearly one hundred professors and lecturers in the University, high and public schools and business colleges.

One of those signing the petition that lies before me is Mr James L. Hughes, who may be said to have nearly 40,000 school children in this city as his nevey. Little boys and girls, after their first lesson in spelling, return to their homes sputtering, coughing up sounds from their tender interiors in a manner that has alarmed many a mother.

Mr Borden goes his round lecturing on the duties of political party.

His political doctrine, the claims of party being taken for granted, is sound. His language is moderate and decorous. His whole performance is unexceptionable in its way. But as the manifesto of the leader of an Opposition it is blank cartridge. Mr Borden has no definite issue about which to cross swords with the Government. The one distinct line of policy which his party can be said to have in protection, and if this appears to be popular it will be appropriated by Sir Wilfrid Laurier without the slightest hesitation, supposing it has not been appropriated already. It must be added, without any impeachment of Mr Borden's political purity, that the situation of a leader of Opposition in receipt of a salary from Government is hopelessly fantastic. He may really be in bitter earnest, but whom will he get to believe it?—Bystander in Weekly Sun.
