Obituary.

MR JAS PARK

Tuesday of last week this well-known gentleman was called to his rest. An early death, however, was caused by a fall, no doubt hastened the end, though for some years past the burden of years was telling upon him and latterly the mental balance was giving way. His wife predeceased him about 13 years, and since then he has made his home chiefly with his son Archie. As we like to remember him he was a kindly-minded gentleman, proud of, and intensely fond of his children, who rendered him due affection in return. He was one of the early settlers in that part of Bentinck, and we hope to secure a fuller account of his life than we have at present. His sons, Archie, Thos, Jas, and Walter are well-known here and two daughters will also mourn his loss. He was one of the first members of the S. of S. Society here.

MR. WM. HERD

Startlingly sudden did the end come to another well-known Bentinck pioneer. Mr Wm. Herd, of Allan Park Mrs Herd was in the West visiting relatives, and was taken ill on there. The anxious husband took the trip to her side and had the joy of seeing her well recovered and came home with her less than a week before he died. A sharp attack pneumonia carried him off on Thursday, Dec. 20, after scarcely two days' illness. Mr Herd was an enthusiast and progressive farmer, especially along live stock lines. Sheep were his special care and many a prize came his way. We hope to get a fuller account of his origin and family before another week.

We have been informed that Mr Fulton, Sr. of the North line, Normanby, is also gone but we have no particulars.

Meanwhile to all the mourners we extend sincere sympathy.

Employees Banquetted

Mayor McKelvie, of New Liskeard, being present, was called on, and was glad as an old Durham boy to see the town and the works making progress as well as New Liskeard and the rocks of Cobalt.

"Manufacturing Interests of Grey County" was replied to by T. I. Thompson, O. Sound, who said their works was as patchwork compared with our big mill. The progress made here was unprecedented. Yet there were lots of room for all the cement they could make, there was a great future before the industry. He praised the town and locality for having produced two students, (Arthur Weir and Miss Amy Edge) whom he had seen the night previous carry off the two best gold medals offered by their Institution.

Mr A. G. MacKay "was a Daisy just now" and had been impressed with the fact that this was the growing time. Grey had some of the greatest manufacturing centers in Canada and he outlined the prominence of the cement industry here. He believed stock would rise to par as the outlook warranted it. McWilliams had done wisely in placing specialists in the various departments.

Mr Wm Taylor had a brief word of compliment to management and employees. Mr Gilbert McKechnie was a "Jolly Good Fellow" as he rose and claimed credit for getting McWilliams into the Directorate and to the Presidency, and the present success was due to the way McWilliams and he had held on to the money bags. As Treasurer Mr McKechnie went extensively into figures, showing better than any previous speaker what a great work had been accomplished this year. No such building in Canada as our new coal building, the saving in labor alone would pay for it in 18 mos. "Superior to any mill on the continent" is his idea of the mill when improvement carried out. He praised the new Haulton, Thos, Jas, and Walter are well-known here and two daughters will also mourn his loss. He was one of the first members of the S. of S. Society here.

Mr P. Malone referred to "Railways and transportation." Referring to the coming C. P. R. line, he pointed out the benefit the line had been to O. Sound. He advised Durham to forget their disadvantages, everything comes to the man who waits. He paid a fine compliment to Mr Maitland, who was a most competent Secretary. He hoped this affair would be annual, he was working for the next best corporation to the N. P. C. Co. and that was the Dominion Government, but he would try to come if invited seeing O. S. was a dry town. He gave with great applause a song "Molly and I and the baby"

Mr Coulter and Mr Towner both replied to the toast appropriately and Mr Ratz proposed the "Learned Professions." Mr Dunn thought a year ago they would have to draw the last will and testament of the N. P. C. Co. but things were marvelously changed. The Durham line had been to O. Sound. He advised Durham to forget their disadvantages, everything comes to the man who waits. He paid a fine compliment to Mr Maitland, who was a most competent Secretary. He hoped this affair would be annual, he was working for the next best corporation to the N. P. C. Co. and that was the Dominion Government, but he would try to come if invited seeing O. S. was a dry town. He gave with great applause a song "Molly and I and the baby"

Dr McLaurin had heard of the place and the mill will enjoy himself during the last will and testament of the N. P. C. Co. but things were marvelously changed. The Durham line had been to O. Sound. He advised Durham to forget their disadvantages, everything comes to the man who waits. He paid a fine compliment to Mr Maitland, who was a most competent Secretary. He hoped this affair would be annual, he was working for the next best corporation to the N. P. C. Co. and that was the Dominion Government, but he would try to come if invited seeing O. S. was a dry town. He gave with great applause a song "Molly and I and the baby"

Dr Hutton thought the town was liable to intercalification, asphyxiation by gas, of asphyxiation by smoke though the first might be a joke, the lining of the interior preventing asphyxiation, etc., just as the brick lining preserves the rotaries.

To Director McKechnie came the toast "The Leader" applied to by Judge Hutton and Pres McWilliams. Judge Hutton remarked that some of our married fellows would have to reply to something else than toasts if they stayed much longer.

"The Press" was replied to by Mr Maitland of the Toronto World, an old cement man who could appreciate progress, and by Messrs Irwin and Ranage.

It was nearing 2 o'clock as Pres McWilliams rose to close. He said he appreciated deeply all the good things said of him but he did not pretend to deserve them. He valued above all the things he had taken on the regard of the employees. He said again as he had said before that in the world, the best cement man in the world, they have made 283 hills a day more than they ever had before. With McGraw they would never have failure. Though he was President it was the boys at the table who had made the money.

"God Save the King" and the company dispersed.

Mr Metford sang two solos with acceptance "Just give me the Leavings" drawing a rousing encore.

The Toronto World had a page on Saturday of the function with cuts of the leading men and the works.

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of Mr Alex Aitken, Maple Grove Farm, when their youngest daughter, Alice Findlay, was united in marriage to the man of her choice, Mr Robt Sim, of Carman, Man. The ceremony was performed by the bride's pastor, Rev J. Little. At 5 o'clock the bride entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her father, while Mrs W Sim played the wedding march.

The bride looked charming dressed in pale blue crepe de voile trimmed silk all over lace and chiffon and wore white carnations in her hair. Her going away costume is brown ladies' broadcloth trimmed with silk all over lace and fancy braid with brown hat to match.

The bride and groom were unattended, only the relatives of the contracting parties being present. After the usual congratulations the company repaired to the dining room where they sat down to a well spread table, after which the evening was spent in music and games. The many beautiful and costly presents showed the high esteem in which the bride was held by her many friends. Among them might be mentioned a very beautiful lemonade set given by the little girls of her Sunday School class.

After visiting with friends for a few weeks they will leave for their home in Carman, Man, with the best wishes of their many friends. Among the relatives from a distance were Mr. W. E. Aitken from Toronto University and Jean Aitken, Courtwright.
