And leave us here to mourn. Our mother whom we loved so dear, We watched her day and night, Her place is yacant in our home She has forever left our sight.

We tried so hard to keep her here We tried death's hand to stay. But oh! with anguished hearts we Her fade and pass away.

No more when joyous friends do To spend the night in social glee, Will they in loving kindness greet, Dear Mother's sweetest malody. How lonely now the loved old home, We sadly mourn our mother dear For thou alas! no more will come To welcome us with loving cheer.

On which people love to dwell We miss her, yes, we miss her, How we miss the living guiding hand Oh! none can ever know, The loving, faithful, tender heart.

That was stilled by death's fell But! 'twas God who called our loved to. Everything private. Our Motto: one. "Always prompt, Never Negligent." She answered that call of love,
