To Mr. Hewitt fell the greater task of describing the benefits to be had in increased accommodation, cheap fares, facility to get on or off at any crossing or one's own gate, power, light and heat for the farm, sidings every two or three miles for the loading of stock or beavy merchandise, &c., on petition of 5 or 6 ratepayers.

He met with some opposition at times from merchants who realized the ease with which customers could get on and do their shopping at other large centres, deprecating the probability and showing the benefit it had been to the people in and around Galt and Preston in being able to go to Toronto Preston in being able to go to Toronto for their goods by the electric road recently built there. They had spent considerable time in furthering the project gratuitously, feeling that they would be amply repaid by the increased value of their property. Canadian Northern.

To the Editor of the Durham Review Dear Sir,- with a copy of a Bill entitled "An Act respecting the Canadian Nothern WINTER TERM now on at the Railway Company." The Bill likely will be considered at next meeting of the Railway Committee and will doubtless be passed by the House in due course. You will see that the Bill is one authorizing The Canadian Northern to construct a number of railway lines in Ontario, the first of which is described as "from a point on its authorized line near Washago to a point on Lake Huron at or near Kincardine," and that the seventh In green, red, old rose and the clause of the Bill is for the construct-
