

Prayer.

O, God, we pray Thee to enrich us with that knowledge which makes Thy children wise unto salvation through faith that is in Christ Jesus.

An Open Book.

There is no other book that has such a message for man as the book we call the Bible. There is no other book that has been so violently attacked, so savagely criticized, and there is no other book that to-day possesses such a hold upon our race.

A Demoralized Planet.

Is the axis of the globe suddenly altering its position; or has this poor old earth of ours become utterly demoralized? We know that the "precession of the equinoxes" greatly changes the climate of certain portions of our planet, but that is an extremely slow movement.

Pray for Peace; Exalt War.

That war, though sometimes inevitable, is always an evil, well deep. If anyone doubts it he need only look at the sight of the field after battle, or the sight of the wounded, or of a country ravaged by the flames of a conflagration.

Wiles That Women Work.

Very few remember the existence of a certain remarkable statute which was passed in the early days of George III. In it, indeed, they ever heard of it. It runs to the effect that if any woman 'senties any of His Majesty's male subjects in marriage by the use of any powders, or paints, or false hair, or wool on the cheeks, she shall be prosecuted for sorcery.'

Duel of Southern Generals

"A duel between two Confederate Generals almost in the midst of the Civil War, had something to do with the final collapse of the Southern cause. Marmaduke and Walker lived in New York after the return from the Davis and J. E. B. Stuart memorial celebration, Richmond. 'We were not so united as the new generation would have you believe.'

"There was always a misunderstanding between the Richmond Government and the man-Mississippi department. Early in the conflict I was sent to Arkansas to learn the cause of the trouble in the leadership.

"The men were Sterling Price, Marmaduke Walker, Holmes and Fagan. Price was the leader of the Missouri troops. Marmaduke was a born soldier. Walker was a general. Holmes was uncertain in judgment. Fagan was a good fighter when he was discreetly directed.

"When I reached Arkansas these five men were before Haden for the purpose of wresting it from the enemy. It was a strategic position at the time. It is not necessary to go into details of the story. The point is that the attack failed.

"It was a blow to the Richmond Government in the cause. The failure lay not with the soldiers but with the leaders. Marmaduke had planned the fight. Events showed that he had conceived the strength of the fortifications of the enemy.

"After the failure discussions among the leaders increased. This was noticeably the case between Marmaduke and Walker. 'I remember correctly Walker ranked Marmaduke in one of the movements Walker had ordered the troops under his command to retreat. To Marmaduke's great grief the post of danger - covering the retreat - he was assured that at a certain point he would be reinforced by Walker.

"It was important that he should have superior orders from Marmaduke. The two men hated each other personally, but Marmaduke was enough of a soldier to let that pass at the time. Walker was silent and sulky.

"Marmaduke sent an aide to ask Walker for orders. Walker refused to answer because, as he said, it was unparliamentary to receive a verbal message from an inferior. Marmaduke reduced his request to writing and sent it. Walker never received it.

"After the troops had been rescued from the situation, for that is what it amounted to, Marmaduke, smarting under the conduct of Walker, informed Walker of the existing conditions and demanded that his troops be withdrawn from Walker's command. Failing in this Marmaduke resigned.

"This was an interesting condition at such a time. I don't think it had its counterpart during the remainder of the war. Marmaduke's attitude widened the breach. Walker remained obdurate. That was the climax.

"Marmaduke challenged Walker. The latter accepted. The affair was known only within sight of the soldiers. Marmaduke was an expert marksman. He killed his adversary first shot. Think of Marmaduke and his seconds were promptly arrested. Walker's seconds were promptly arrested. Through the influence of officials high in authority the affair was dropped but it took time to restore the army to its normal state. The time came the enemy had secured advantages which were maintained throughout.

"The Richmond Government was charged with indifference to the situation beyond the lack of unity among the leaders in the West. By the time they had come to their senses defeat had been admitted to many causes. One of them, not generally known, I have stated.

All the participants in the Walker-Marmaduke duel are dead with the exception of Marmaduke's chief second, Col. James C. Moore. He is, or was a year ago, still living in Kansas City."

CLIMBING THE TIAN-SHANS.

Difficult Task of Locating the Lofty Khan-Tengri. Almost in the centre of Asia, on the border of Asiatic Russia and the western Chinese Empire, stand the Tian-Shan Mountains. From the midst of them flow our rivers reaching to the point of the compass. Above these glaciers stand peaks rivaling in grandeur the most majestic of the Himalayas. And above them all, somewhere above the point from which the greater glaciers seem to flow, as if it were their fountain and origin of them, stands the snow-capped summit of Khan-Tengri, a majestic pyramid.

So far as this peak is seen, outstanding as the most remarkable feature of the whole Tian-Shan range, there is nothing would appear more simple than to locate it, at least with regard to the general mass. Let, on the contrary, says the Youth's Companion, when Dr. Gottfried Merzbacher set out in the spring of 1902 to continue in that region the explorations begun by the great Russian, Semenov, he spent two full years in the immediate vicinity of the peak, often crossing ranges within 20 miles of it, photographing it with a telephoto lens at a distance of five miles, and scaling glacier after glacier which seemed to lead directly to it before he discovered that it does not, after all, stand in the centre of the chain, but on a minor ridge at one side, and that all the glaciers flow from a common field of snow and ice at the foot of a remarkable ridge known as the Marble Wall.

It was in June, 1902, that Dr. Merzbacher, after years of preparation in mountain climbing in other parts of the world, set out with four other Europeans, all experts in the work they were now to carry on to decide the actual location and importance of Khan-Tengri. The others were a geologist, an expert alpinist engineer, a mountain guide and a preserver of specimens.

paths that no more than two or three miles could be covered in a day. One afternoon, while they were making camp, a terrific earthquake shook brought down rocky walls and shattered ice masses, so that they doubted their ability to get out by the way they had entered the mountains.

Glacier after glacier led them upward, at elevations of 15,000 to 18,000 feet, only to find that the walls were so steeply scaled. Yet every now and then the tantalizing peak appeared to the right or left or dead ahead of them. Meanwhile the packs with fossils and other specimens. Their photographic plates became invaluable records of mountain-top panoramas. Line by line their maps were corrected and revised as they traced out the mountain streams.

By the first winter they had travelled once around the "wheel," and reached the road to Kaolgar. In that old Central Asian market town they spent the winter, going on frequent expeditions up the high, snow-free ranges of the Tian-Shan.

The next spring saw them tireless in their endeavors, again attempting some of the same glaciers which had turned their backs the year previous, and at last, toward the end of that season, two of them, abandoning their porters at an elevation of about 15,000 feet and pushing on alone up the Inlichek Glacier, suddenly found themselves, at an elevation of nearly 20,000 feet, directly at the foot of the snow-free Khan-Tengri, which rose 4,000 feet higher, unscalable above the icy river.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

Deprived of his Flogging. The Lord Mayor's barge is being broken up for firewood at Deptford. The Lord Mayor to deviate from the customary profession of the water from Westminster Hall Alderman Wood, in 1816, and superstitious people thought this wicked innovation was the cause of a curious disaster that befell him.

During his term of office Wood committed a journeyman sugar baker to jail for leaving his employment in a dispute about wages. But he forgot to specify that the prisoner should be also flogged, as the statute provided. On his release the sugar baker was flogged, and brought an action against the Lord Mayor, and recovered "moral and intellectual damages" for being deprived of his flogging! This episode illustrates the general relations between capital and labor in the brave old days.—Westminster Gazette.

What Whiskers Once Meant. "Whiskers" was a word formerly used to designate the hair on the upper lip. Scott more than once speaks of "whiskers on the upper lip," and so does De la Roche in "Robinson Crusoe." Johnson defined a "whisker" as "the hair growing on the upper lip or cheek unshaven; a mustache."

Should Give Aid to the Weak. Slowly and painfully but surely humanity is supplanting greed and barbarism in dealing with the rising generation. Poverty is no longer regarded as a sufficient excuse for robbing childhood of its rights; even the poorest boys and girls must have their chance to play and grow and learn unhampered by arduous and converts to the near future and less of sin and shame, disease and drunkenness. Righteousness makes it mandatory for the strong to fight the battles of the weak.—Troy, N. Y., Press.

Electric Cars for a Funeral. A wealthy Burmese lady having died on April 3 in Rangoon, her relatives decided to have her body conveyed to the cemetery by electric tram. Six cars were hired, and with a band playing "The British Grenadiers" the party marched along at twelve miles an hour, flowers were scattered by the funeral party as they proceeded rapidly on their way. A Burman never children's route, the great delight of the children is a melancholy party at a funeral, but this is the first time in the history of Rangoon that electric cars have been hired for a funeral procession.—Cores Daily News.

IMMENSE SWINE PAVILION. Iowa State Fair to Have Three Acres of Hogs Under One Roof. The largest "swine pavilion" in the world is the latest Iowa. It is being built on the State fair grounds at Des Moines and when finished will occupy 100 acres under roof. The judging ring occupies a square almost surrounding the whole.

At the center of attraction for Iowa people at their State exposition this week, says the Clinton Herald, Farmers interested in improved breeding have been urging this improvement a long time. Last year they brought 2,700 hogs to the exposition and many others were sent back for lack of space. This is a larger exhibit of hogs than at all other State fairs together. With these improvements the Iowa State exhibit will be kept not only at the head of the list, but far in the lead of all others.

Foreign Trade in Uruguay. Figures for the foreign trade of Uruguay for the first half of 1906, just issued, and the first trade statistics that have appeared of that year, show a decrease in Great Britain's trade with that country. Imports total $17,000,000, of which Great Britain supplied $4,600,000, or 27 per cent. Her previous percentages were 30 to 33. Germany has risen from fourth to fifth place to second place, supplying $2,750,000, or 16 per cent. The next, in order as named, are France, $2,100,000; United States, $1,600,000; Argentina, $1,500,000 and Italy, $1,400,000. The half year's exports amounted to $20,000,000. France took $3,000,000, Belgium $3,000,000, Germany $3,000,000, Argentina, $2,800,000 and Brazil $1,800,000. Only $750,000 worth was taken by the United States.

Nurses' and Mothers' Treasure. Cures Diarrhoea. NAPOLÉON'S OLD COAT. Garment in Which He Had a Sort of Superstitious Reverence.

In such a state of poverty that his clothes were all torn and he did not own a sword. He had to borrow one of the day following his success he had to get a quantity of cloth from the State to have a suitable uniform made. From this moment, however, he paid great attention to his toilet, and took a certain pride in richly decorated clothes.

At Marango he wore a uniform covered with gold embroidery—a uniform to which he attached a sort of superstitious reverence. When he went to Milan, for instance to be crowned King of Italy, he attended a review on the field of battle in the old fashioned and much worn uniform which he had worn on that memorable 18th of June, 1800.

His Useful Strong Head. "Ever take notice how much strength a negro has in his head?" said a man who is always looking out for unusual things. "Well, I had ample opportunity to test a certain negro's head carrying capacity while I was in charge of a large printing establishment in Texas. "We had received a large shipment of paper of extra heavy weight, and none of the men employed by the firm seemed able to handle the bundles. Of course we should have had a freight elevator, but we had none. Well, about the time I had given up hopes of getting the paper up to the third floor a negro came along. He inquired if I wanted any one to do a day's work, and said he was a hodcarrier, but was willing to do anything for a dollar. I thought of the paper and the third floor proposition and engaged him.

"Well, sir, he took to it like children to candy. Maybe he didn't shame the rest of the negroes around the plant! In less than a no time he had the paper stacked away, and the work didn't seem to affect him in the least. The result was that he got a steady place and was dubbed the Heavyweight Nigger. The fellow totted every ounce of it on his head."—From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited. Gentlemen,—In June, '98, I had my hand and wrist bitten and badly mangled by a vicious horse. I suffered greatly for several days, and the tooth cuts refused to heal until your agent gave me a bottle of MINARD'S LINIMENT, which I began using. The effect was magical; in five hours the pain had ceased and in two weeks the wounds had completely healed and my hand and arm were as well as ever. Yours truly, A. E. Use Reasonable Caution. (Montreal Herald.) There are several ways of not being drowned. One is to learn to swim, which is effective in most respects except when it tempts the swimmer to try things beyond his powers. Another way is to avoid going on the water with persons in whom you have not the completest confidence. A third is to push caution to the length of folly. All that is necessary to prevent at least nine-tenths of the drowning accidents of the last few weeks would have been common carefulness.

BETTER THAN SPANKING. Spanking does not cure children of bad teaching. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urtic difficulties by day or night.

Lost Race of Indo-China. The great mystery about Indo-China and one which must ever be insoluble is the story of the lost race and the vanished civilization of that strange country. The mighty walls of Angkor-Wat, rising in the midst of sparsely settled jungles, remain as the memorial of a great empire which has utterly disappeared and is altogether lost to history. No one will ever know who planned this gigantic temple or what tyrant hounded on his myriads of slaves to build up these immense blocks of stone and cover them with the most elaborate and sculptured structures. Angkor-Wat was one of the most forgotten monuments in the world, and endure as long as the earth itself were it not for the irresistible destructive effect of plant life on the strongest works that man can raise.

Only a highly civilized and very wealthy people could have erected Angkor-Wat, a very different race from the Annamites of modern days. The whole nation has disappeared as utterly as the wastes and solitudes of Memphis.—From the Singapore Free Press.

ISSUE NO. 33, 1907. Great Britain's Customers. The London Economist says that in the quarter ended March 31 the United States was for once Great Britain's best customer, the value of British exports to her amounting to $42,257,736, against $41,489,880 sent to Germany, which is usually first. The increases were $3,764,000 and $4,063,500 respectively. America's increased takings were chiefly in pig iron, while Germany took much larger quantities of cotton, woolen and linen yarn.

Japanese at Home on the Sea. The Japanese are natural sailors and they swarm on the sea because the scanty economic resources of their country and their insular and contracted geographical position make the sea their highway. The lesson of their success in handling a modern navy in the war with Russia is that they are equally adapted to handling a merchant marine in competition with the world. Their special advantages on the Pacific are conspicuous, and they are not a people to neglect the advantages which nature has given to them. Other countries may exclude Japanese immigrants, but on the high seas they must expect to meet Japanese competition that may be all the savor because of the land barriers being erected now by the Japanese laborer.—Springfield, Mass., Republican.
