Train Stopped Within Four Feet of Man and Woman.

gratifying letter was received to-day by Michael Summers of Dunkirk, engineer of a passenger train on the Dunkirk, Allegheny Valley & Pittsburg Railroad. Warren, Pa., Aug. 20, 1907.

Please accept my thanks for stopping your train yesterday in time for me to escape a serious injury if not death. Had you been as careless as I my family might have been having a funeral to-morrow. I did not realize what had happened until it was all over. Gratefully yours,

Sam O. Mitchell. Mr. Mitchell, an elderly man, was in company with a gray-haired woman walking along the tracks from one crossing to another with their backs toward the train of which Mr. Summers was engineer, and being somewhat hard of hearing, were not aware of the approaching train. The engineer whistled and rang the bell without any success in alarming the two persons. He put on the emergency brakes and succeeded in bringing his train to a stop within four feet of the man and woman, who knew nothing of their danger until they were saved.

The child died Saturday morning, and following a Polish Catholic custom, the friends of the family called Saturday evening. Sunday and Sunday evening to express sympathy. Candles were ngn. ed and placed about the room in wmen the coffin had been laid.

The family retired at midnight, and a sentinel remained in the room, as is the custom. Early next morning Air, Cses was awakened by the smeil of emone, and going downstairs found that a candle had tallen from a candelabra at the head-of the coffin and set fire to cloth covering it. The "sentinel" was sound asleep and snoring on a lounge in the

Mr. Uses extinguished the flames and sent for the undertaker, who laid out the body in another coffin. Fortunately the coffin was closed and the flames did not reach the body therein.

While the Uses family and friends were mourning the death of the child on Sunday, the family that occupies the other half of the double dwelling held a celebration in honor of a christening. Chester, Pa., Aug. 21.-Washed up out of an improvised grave on the bank of a small stream in Johnson's wood in Lower Chichester township, a coffined boy baby's body was found by four boys playing in the neighborhood. Deputy Coroner, who is investigating, and, as there are no marks of violence on the little body and it was evidently buried several months ago, the general impression prevails that the parents of the child were too poor to provide the funds for the burial expenses and, securing a cheap coffin from an undertaking establishment, they buried the child themselves in the soft soil beside the then shallow

The coffin has been washed up from its burying place by the waters running into the creek.

EX-JUDGE DECRIES OLD AGE. Lord Brampton at Ninety Years Regrets His Leisure.

London, Aug. 26.—One of the present-"silly season" newspaper topics, how to live to be a hundred years old, has shown that the popular idea is still strong that it is a good thing to live to a great age.

This view is controverted by Lord Brampton, formerly the famous criminal judge, Sir Henry Hawkins. He is ninety, and having retired from the bench on a pension has the leisure to enjoy the evening of his life, but he does not find it particularly enjoyable. "Old age has very few compensations. Leisure is not pleasant. It fills me with regret that I am no longer able to take an active part in the life of the world."

STEEL KING'S COUSIN DYING. Fall Over a Wheelbarrow Gives Him

Blood Poisoning. Pittsburg, Aug. 26.—Attorney William Yost, of Pittsburg, cousin by marriage to W. Ellis Corey, head of the United States Steel Trust, is dying on a farm near Jamestown, N. Y. Yost some days ago fell over a wheelbarrow, hurting his nose badly, but it wasn't thought to be serious. Blood poisoning, however, set in, and now the talented attorney can scarcely recover.

Mr. Yost is son-in-law of the vitriolic J. B. Corey, whose expressions on the marriage of his relative to Mabelle Gilman caused such wide comment. Yost for years devoted his time and much money to enforcing the blue laws of Pennsylvania in the Pittsburg dis-

He then resolved on heroic measures. He tied one end of the twire to a spoke of the front wheel; then, bracing himself, he gave his horse the gad. There was one revolution of the Mr. Beitelman came out. The jolt was
