

The True and The False

CHAPTER I
It was the flat, waste coast of a County, on the Chesapeake. It was evening, and clouds sat upon the face of the deep and the spirit of the storm moved on the waters.

CHAPTER II
From within us comes often all the gloom or beauty of the scene around us. On that same night, at that hour, and by that road, passed another vehicle with another party on their way to the city.

CHAPTER III
The young wife of O'Leary might weep and wail, but her sorrow was nothing to the fierce, bitter, burning passion of grief and terror—the very agony of grief and terror—that fired the mother's heart and scorched up the fountain of her tears through that live-long night and garish, maddening day!

CHAPTER IV
The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day.

CHAPTER V
The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day.

CHAPTER VI
The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day.

CHAPTER VII
The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day.

CHAPTER VIII
The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day.

CHAPTER IX
The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day.

CHAPTER X
The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day.

CHAPTER XI
The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day.

CHAPTER XII
The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day.

Consumption is less deadly than it used to be.

Certain relief and usually complete recovery will result from the following treatment:

Hope, rest, fresh air, and Scott's Emulsion.

ALL DRUGGISTS; 50c. AND $1.00.

height, of slender, yet elegant and firmly knit frame, of fair complexion, with light hair and blue eyes and a Grecian profile. A great joy leaped to his gloomy countenance and burst forth in his tones as he started to meet his visitors and folded them alternately to his bosom, exclaiming:

"Mother! Nelly! dear Nelly! Dear Nelly! Don't cry, darling! It is all over the danger is all over! Don't cry, my dear Nelly!"

"My son! My son!"

"Yes, mother; poor mother, the agony is over! The governor has promised a pardon for a crime I never committed!"

"The clerkman took his hat to retire. 'Don't go, father,' said William. 'Mother, this is my kind, most excellent friend, Father! Good! And, sir, this is my mother, and this is Ellen, my wife, who you see has cried her eyes out for nothing.'"

"The two women arose, and the good priest shook hands with them, and then would have left the family together, but the poor mother held and clasped his hands while she thanked him in a broken voice for his kindness to her son."

"Will it be innocent, father," said Nelly, weeping fresh.

"The priest looked pitifully at the poor young creature, who had involuntarily, unconsciously clasped both arms around the form of her husband and was holding him with a trembling pressure as if to protect him in a tavern which was already crowded with guests come to greet the new Governor."

"The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day."

"The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day."

"The last speech has been made, the last toast drunk, and the last guest has departed—the State dinner is over at the Governor's house, and Daniel Hunter has sought for his own quarters in his library, there to collect his thoughts, and compose himself, after the tumult and excitement of the day."

THE WORK OF CORN BREEDING, As Conducted by the Canadian Seed Growers' Association.

(Extract from the last Annual Report of the Secretary.)
The work of corn breeding in Canada, though limited chiefly to Southern Ontario, has made material advance during the past year. Not only has the number of growers largely increased, but the general public is beginning to realize more than ever before something of the nature and importance of this particular branch of work, and as a result the demand for specially grown seed corn has increased.

Keeping in touch with the individual growers, we have been able to notice a substantial growth of intelligent interest which may be found in the second Annual Report, page 39, under the section entitled 'The Row System', has for its basis the ear-row test. Each row of fifty or more hills in the plot is planted with corn from a separate ear, which arrangement gives each ear an opportunity to show the breeding which is behind it, and to which it owes its excellence.

Since the Dent varieties cannot be matured to good advantage in the more northern districts, it is necessary to send south for the seed, and during the winter months there is a known demand for seed which is known as 'foreign' seed, and which has received special care according to the regulations of our Association.

When the Dent varieties cannot be matured to good advantage in the more northern districts, it is necessary to send south for the seed, and during the winter months there is a known demand for seed which is known as 'foreign' seed, and which has received special care according to the regulations of our Association.

When the Dent varieties cannot be matured to good advantage in the more northern districts, it is necessary to send south for the seed, and during the winter months there is a known demand for seed which is known as 'foreign' seed, and which has received special care according to the regulations of our Association.

When the Dent varieties cannot be matured to good advantage in the more northern districts, it is necessary to send south for the seed, and during the winter months there is a known demand for seed which is known as 'foreign' seed, and which has received special care according to the regulations of our Association.

When the Dent varieties cannot be matured to good advantage in the more northern districts, it is necessary to send south for the seed, and during the winter months there is a known demand for seed which is known as 'foreign' seed, and which has received special care according to the regulations of our Association.

When the Dent varieties cannot be matured to good advantage in the more northern districts, it is necessary to send south for the seed, and during the winter months there is a known demand for seed which is known as 'foreign' seed, and which has received special care according to the regulations of our Association.

When the Dent varieties cannot be matured to good advantage in the more northern districts, it is necessary to send south for the seed, and during the winter months there is a known demand for seed which is known as 'foreign' seed, and which has received special care according to the regulations of our Association.

When the Dent varieties cannot be matured to good advantage in the more northern districts, it is necessary to send south for the seed, and during the winter months there is a known demand for seed which is known as 'foreign' seed, and which has received special care according to the regulations of our Association.

CURRENT COMMENT

Hunting fatalities are already reported. Stay at the safe end of the gun.
In the New York section case 10,000 witnesses are liable to be summoned. What a snap for the lawyers!

An Ottawa Groek was fined $5 and costs last week for selling candy on Sunday. Is not candy as much a food as is ice cream?
The directors of the Toronto National Exhibition look for $100,000 surplus from the big fair. It is estimated that 750,000 persons visited it.

The situation in Moscow does not improve, and more troops may be needed to subdue the wild tribesmen. In the seven-hour engagement of Tuesday last 800 of them were killed, but instead of dampening the fanatical ardor of Mulai Hafiq, it has decided him on proclaiming a holy war.

The Lusitania, the great $6,500,000 Cunard turbine vessel, has made the 2,782-mile trip across the Atlantic in 5 days 54 minutes, or at an average speed of 23.01 knots (about 27 statute miles) an hour. Her engineer expects to make it at a 25-knot rate, now that her engines have their bearings smoothed by use.

The Church Union Committee does not seem to dread the questions of doctrine, but the superannuation question caused it some trouble. Surely that should bulk very small if the doctrinal difficulties are really solved. But are they? Are obstacles being removed or merely evaded and ignored? Is the proposed union to be one of compromises on vital points?

According to a census bulletin on manufactures of tobacco just issued, the returns show a total consumption of the fragrant weed in the United States of 448,511,031 pounds in one year; the year selected by the statisticians being 1904, probably because complete statistics for a later period were not available.

The people of Great Britain are not doing as much drinking as they formerly did. The consumption of alcoholic liquors seems to have reached its maximum about seven years ago. In the year 1899-1900 the consumption of beer in the United Kingdom was no less than 32.29 gallons per head of the population.

Even dogs are subject to fashion, and favorite at present is the kind that can be tucked into an overcoat pocket or carried in a lady's handbag. Now we want a waistcoat-pocket dog—one about the size of a wafel.

It is surprising how fashion in dogs changes. Here are some of the most important dates of the different fashions: 1820—Spitzbergs. 1840—King Charles spaniels. 1850—Italian greyhounds. 1860—Black and tan terriers. 1865—Mexican 'hairless' dogs. 1870—St. Bernards. 1880—Collies. 1890—Pug dogs (still in demand). 1896—Bulldogs and dachshunds. 1900—English sheep dogs. 1907—Pomeranians, King Charles spaniels, Pekinese and Japanese.

The new Australian dog, which would undoubtedly find a ready market in London, resembles the marsupial dog, and feeds on lizards and ground vermin.

Mrs. Troublemaker—Oh, I'm dreadfully worried. Mrs. Gladstone—What about? Mrs. Troublemaker—My loss of memory. Mrs. Gladstone—You were worrying about something last night, and now I can't think what it was.