The Durham Review

THURSDAY, JANUARY 9, 1908.

How Local Option Fared.

The Temperance forces were marshalled in combat on Monday in over 100 contests in the province of Ontario, and have emerged, if not victorious, at least not dismayed. It may be admitted that the returns in some respects are disappointing. It was defeated in 25 places, lost by the three-fifths requirement in about 23, and carried in at least 23 places, one of these being Durham. The Globe estimates that at least 77 licenses will be cut off throughout the province.

The measure was defeated in Mt. Forest, Palmerston, Harrison, Paisley, of towns near us. Owen Sound elected Mayor Kennedy by a large majority, Barrie went against it, and these were the chief items that gave a cold douche to enthusiasm and for comfort we turn to Orillia where there is a large majority, and to the repeal contests.

There were 6 repeal contests, 5 on Monday and one, North Toronto, on New Year's day which the temperance forces carried by a majority over four times larger than that of three years ago. Of the five on Monday, one, Thamesville carried the repeal by 9 majority but the other four gave majorities larger than 3 years ago. The sum of the majorities in the six places, minus the 3, is over three times larger than in 1905, showing that where it gets a fair trial, the people hold onto it.

The end is not yet, however, the campaign against the licensed bar and its baneful influence will go on until it will be utterly abolished and the remembrance of it will rank with slavery and the slave trade as an abominable evil, which future generations will wonder was endured so long.

The Final Gun Fired.

Although but announced for the first time in churches that evening, a large and enthusiastic audience crowded the Town Hall to the doors last Sunday evening after service, to hear certain charges refuted regarding the working of Local Option in Holstein. A slanderous unsigned letter had been published last week in the Holstein Leader, purporting to answer that of Mr. Thos. Browne. Copies of it were circulated about town late Saturday evening when it was thought there would be no opportunity to refute it. But the town committee were equal to the occasion and invited Rev Mr Little and other Holstein gentlemen to address a mass meeting here Sunday night. Mr Little was 15 minutes away that afternoon when he received the intimation but he quickly returned, and as one of a party of eleven, drove up from Holstein that evening.

Mr. John H. Brown occupied the chair and after a selection by the choir, introduced Rev Mr Little as the speaker of the evening. Mr. Little at once launched heart and soul into his topic and for almost an hour in an eloquent address held the undivided attention of the audience. In convincing argument and fact he showed the progress with which the local option way is sweeping Canada—only 5 of the 54 municipalities which this year have the privilege of voting to repeal the by-law are doing so, and 96 others are voting on the by-law for the first time. A letter from a prominent Southampton man told of its wonderful success there. Bringing it right home to his own village, he spoke of Holstein's increased prosperity—the Show Fair, the milling trade and greater hotel accommodation.

Then he dealt with the letter which was distributed throughout the town. The writer was evidently ashamed to sign his name to a slanderous attempt to discredit Holstein from beginning to end. Mr Little did not deny liquor was still to be obtained in the village but had soon after drunk man on the street since fall came in. The letter had stated that local option was debauching the boys of the village. The boys are showing their resentment of this accusation against their character by signing their names to a paper absolutely denying this, which appears in another column.

Every business man who had signed the paper setting forth the benefits of local option in Holstein denied they had said anything against it as charged by the letter referred to.

As to the charge that township money was spent in defending cases, this was proved to be absolutely false by Mr Durant, the treasurer of the township, who paid all monies, as well as by Rev. Mr. Little.

Mr Thomas Brown said he had come to defend his letter and deny the statements made against it in the unsigned letter circulated which he characterized as a "tissue of lies." He predicted that soon liquor would be almost entirely stamped out of Holstein.
