-H. T. Miller. Easter and the World's Conquest.

Easter has a personal message for each one. For Mary and for Peter, for Thomas and for James, the risen Lord had a special word. It is so still. But the Easter message is not for the individual believer alone. It is for the Church as well. To the disciples the sealed tomb meant not only that Christ's earthly career was over, and that each had lost a leader and a friend, bot that Christ's work as a whole was 'at an end. In the same way the empty tomb meant not only the living Lord, but a kingdom that had east aside as swaddling-bands what they had thought to be its grave-clothes. To us far more clearly than to them the stone rolled away speaks of an open-door set before the Church, a door that no man can shut. The victory over death is pleage that the gates of hell shall not prevail against the Church of the Lord of Life. The resurrection has taught us to look to the future world as holding for ourselves the true life; it may teach us to look forward as confidently to the growing triumphs of the Master's cause. The apostle's exhortation to those risen with Christ was that they should show the signs of the new life that was theirs. A like appeal might be made to the Church that by its zeal it give proof of the life that animates it. We seek to celebrate the different festivals of the year in some fitting way; aside from the songs of rejoicing and the personal consecration that are associated with this season, why should it not also I marked by some definite effort to do honor to our risen Lord in extending his reign?-Christian Endeavor World.

Christ is Risen. (By the Rev. Walter B. Grimes.) Send the message far and wide On this gladsome Eastertide Christ is risen, Lord of glory, Let all earth repeat the story; Easter bells in gladness ring, Welcome to our risen King: Hallelujah! Christ is risen.

Saddened hearts in silence wept While the guards their vigils kept; At the dawning loved ones bring Sweetest spices to their King-Found the stone was rolled away, Sat an angel where he lay With the message, "Christ is risen." Let the development be symmetrical.

Send the word to Galilee. Christ is risen, from death he's free; before you can complete it. Tired disciples hear his voice, Cease from weeping and rejoice. Death hath lost its power to sting, Heaven and earth rejoice and sing Hallelujah. "He is risen."

Is it poverty? Shaw says it is. But what does poverty mean? There are ever so many sorts. There is the awful poverty of brains. There is the dreadful poverty health.

There is a shocking poverty, the lack of good impulses. And there is that other poverty-the lack of wealth-against which there's the biggest struggle.

The Rattler Does Not Warn.

This is one reason for the continued existence of the rattlesnake in the midst of enemies who would exterminate it, for, contrary to the general belief, the rattler rarely gives its characteristic note of warning until actually attacked. In fact, the sharp, vibrant ring of its terminal appendage is probably designed more to assist this very defiance or warning. In the first place, serpents possess but the most rudimentary traces of auditory apparatus and are practically dear, the deficiency in the sense of hearing being compensated for by an extreme sensitiveness of feeling which makes them aware of the approach of moving objects by the vibration of the ground Hunters, treading cautiously upon a soft carpet of moss or leaves to avoid a rattler without disturbing it or receiving warning, and while many snakes are seen and killed by them, it is probable that a far greater number are passed by unnoticed. All snakes are timid and would rather run than fight, and the rattler is not inviting certain destruction by advertising its whereabouts in the brush. -From "Some Rattlesnake Fallacies," by Francis Metcalfe, in The Outing Magazine for October.
