Tell yourself honestly-you like to think you are honest-did you ever all your life see a loafer who looked rested? Did you ever see a loafer who didn't look tired all the time? The people who try to rest are always tired. Resting is in slowly three or four tablespoonfuls

They had eaten their dinthey were "resting." Some of them were pitching quoits, and others were putting the shot, with a great round boulder. They were workingmen "resting." And sitting on the curbstone watching them too lazy to even stand up and look at them; their lazy chins resting on their lazy nands, and their lazy elbows supported on their lazy knees, were the loafers who had been watching them work all the morning. These fellows were too tired even to join the games by which Bake in slow oven. the workers rested themselves.

of the quiet; the sermon; the reading; channels into which your thought, your mind is led, will rest you more, physically, morally, intellectually, than will all the day spent in trying to "rest."

Conditionalism.

How often have I seen salvation pre sented as a sort of commercial transaction? So much faith, wayer and repentance for so many slices of the bread of life. Nicodemus was neither ignorant nor immature, when the Master said, be born again." What conditions are attached to the ordinance of birth? As I look at the occupant of the cradle, I see helplessness, involuntary and irresponsible. Is this the real, vital, actual beginning of spirit life? The Master gives an illustration which was as perplexing as the original statement, and He gave no other. "The wind bloweth where it listetn." Are we on safe ground here? These facts stand out like mighty cliffs in the coast line; is this view confirmed by numerous al lusions; "born not by the will of the flesh, or of man, but of God." The beginning of all spirit life follows the same law. We do not ignore conditionon, where the fibre is coarse, and the faith is often crude.

It would be difficult to say what mis chief has been wrought by the misplacement of this element of religious teaching. It contains a lack of perception which need not be profound. It ought not to be difficult to distinguish between beaven-born life and things which accompany salvation. When a child is born it cries, because the impact of the air in its delicate lungs produces a shock. It is not a cry for life, but it is a cry of life. Still-born infants never Heaven-born infants are all alive. In the holy of holies, life is born of life (not far from the shadow of death). IF re we find no conditions. What Coll dition did Saul bring on the Damascus road? He brought "threatenings and slaughter." When asked to relate his experience, a man said, "I resisted as long as I could, and God did the rest." What condition did the child Samuel afford? He heard a voice, "Surely thou didst call me." What is a condition? It means to make terms, to stipulate, to med at sea in a sailing ship;

no conditions. Mystery of mysteries, we | be cultivated. are born in absolute dependence on others; slowly new sympathies arise, and we are conscious of the contact of mind with mind. Slowly we see the can be, and must be. Our birth into the kingdom of God is absolute and sovereign; here is a debt we can never pay, and it is never demanded; it is utterly rewarded according to our works. Con- ling occasions of dispute occur.

If we sow sparingly, we reap sparingly. Some have no reward at all; they actually suffer loss, dragged round the door posts of the city, saved so as by fire. The soul is saved; no thanks to them; saved because they are born, because they are children; saved by the Angel Life Brigade, who never lose a life! When will teachers "rightly divide the word of truth?"

"O grant us light that we may learn How dead is life from Thee apart; How sure is joy for all who turn To Thee an undivided heart.

"O grant us light, when soon or late All earthly scenes shall pass away, In Thee to find the open gate To deathless home and endless day."
