Power House Submerged.

Engineer Richmond, who was in Tharge at the power house, with great presence of mind, immediately shut off the power, and in a minute the power house was submerged and the water was pouring through from all points. He grasped the lantern, intending to go out and flag approaching trains. However, he was unable to do so. The water was up to his waist, and was rushing to the lake in torrents. His lantern was put out, and he had to get back into the power house. The water had torn away the track on both sides fortunate thing for Port Arthur that of the bridge for over half a mile, Freight Train Plunges In.

When the torrent of water struck the bridge a C. P. R. freight train was just pulling into Port Arthur, with orders to meet the passenger train. She was running at a good speed. Just before striking the bridge she went into the undermined track. The locomotive turned completely over and five cars went over with it. It was thought impossible for any person to live through the wreck, as in a moment it was under top of it.

Flagged the Express Train.

Conductor Ross stated that as soon as the wreck took place he at once prepared to flag the eastbound express, but, although he was unable to get across the track, he mounted the debris and flashed two lights. By this means he was successful in stopping the train or the loss of life would have been great. He himself was badly injured, his shoulder being hurt and his hand cut.

Scene of Devastation. The scene is one of great devastation. Where once existed one of the prettiest parks in the west is now practically a ruin. Houses and stands were swept away, some being taken over half a mile. Fortunately the rain had interfered with the regular traffic or else scores would have lost their lives. THE WHITMORE MURDER TRIAL.

Only Circumstantial Evidence So Far.

Whitmore Says He Has an Alibi.

New York, June 1 .- To-day is expected to bring to a close the case of the prosecution in the trial of Theodore S. Whitmore in Jersey City, the Brooklyn man who is charged with having murdered his wife and thrown her body into Lampblack Swamp in Harrison. Already all the principal witnesses for the States have been heard with the result that the network of evidence that has been wound around the accused man is purely of a circumstantial nature. Much interest centres in the plan which will be adopted by the defense to meet the case set up by the State. Whitmore has declared that he has absolutely no doubt whatever of the outcome and that when his turn comes he will convince the jury beyond ques tion that he had no part in the crime which is charged against him. His attorney at the same time has declared that a perfect alibi has been found every minute for hours before and after the time the tragic death of Mrs. Whitmore is known to have occurred. As the trial has progressed public idly. The court room is filled to its the streets outside the building are gain admittance. The prosecution brought its case to a close soon after the opening of to-day's session. Counsel for Whitmore immediately made a motion for the dismissal of the indictment on the ground that the State had not proven its care.

The motion was disallowed. Alexander Simpson then began the pening argument for the defence Georgie Dickinson, the woman with whom Theodore S. Whitmore is alleged to have been infatuated, was expected to appear as a witness for the prosecution at to-day's session of Whitmore's trial. Miss Dickinson was taken into custody in Boston soon after Whitmore's arrest, which followed the identification of the victim of the Lampblack swamp murder as his wife. She has been in jail since that time.
