On the other hand, the fury of the Nationalist papers is unbounded. L'Action Francaise fires a broadside, which recalls the most exciting days of Dreyfus and Boulanger. At the head of its columns this newspaper prints a statement by Charles Maurras which, it is likely, the authorities will investigate. In this artinight "a resolute patriot visited M. Daudet and Lieut, Boisfleury, and himself offered to kill Drevfus, but his proposal was rejected." A leading editorial in this paper appeals to the country to turn to the Duke of Orleans for redress, and concludes with these words, "Do you desire that Zola's body be ejected from the Pantheon? With regard to the reasons for Gregori's act, the opinion prevails in Paris that there is much truth in his avowal that he was driven to the deed by the appeals to hatred with which the anti-Semitic papers have been filled since the Government resolved to place the body of Zola in the Pantheon. The state of this feeling can be gauged by an interview with Henri Rochefort, ed itor the the Patrie, which is published to-night, and in which he says: would have been a glorious death for Dreyfus.
