Mr and Mrs W. J. Greenwood and family of Traversburg accompanied by the former's sister, Mrs. Geo. Robertson of Molesworth, and her two bony daughters, Annie and Mable, spent a pleasant day visiting their friends in the burg and community.

A progressive educationist is Mr. C. E. McIntosh, of the Perth Model School who arrived on Saturday last for the summer vacation.

A goodly number of the young people from the village attended the Garden Party held on Alex. Fletcher's ideal lawn on Thursday evening. The night was all that could be desired, the silver moon illuminating Nature with a touch of resplendent glory, and the various individuals from this part who participated in the sport had a warm time.

Mr. T. C. Smith, after enjoying a fortnight's holidays in the burg, left on Monday morning for the Queen City where he will spend the succeeding few weeks examining the Science papers of the recent Departmental examinations.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed in the Presbyterian Church on Sabbath last. At the preparatory services on Friday, Rev Mr Leslie delivered an impressive discourse to a large congregation.

Mr Miller, Insurance agent of Toronto, spent a few days in the village and transacted considerable business for one of the Queen City agencies.

Extremely sad indeed was the intelligence conveyed to Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Campbell on Thursday last that their second youngest son Thomas was drowned in Northern Saskatchewan. The message of grief was broken to the aged couple by their daughter, Miss Colena, who arrived that day from the Queen City.

"Tommy," as he was familiarly known, possessed in no mean degree those qualities and characteristics which "make the man" and his premature demise is an extremely regrettable occurrence. May the Divine comforter give balm to the aching hearts and help them to say "Thy will be done."

The plot holders of Latona cemetery held their annual meeting in the schoolhouse on Saturday last. The books showed a substantial surplus, which will be materially increased when all the lists are returned. The retiring officers were re-elected and the contract of cutting the grass, etc., was given to Mr. Andrew Schriber.

Mr. And. Schriber had a thrilling experience one day recently. He was jauntily sauntering in the immediate vicinity of his hen coop when a hissing noise reverberated from the above edifice. On going to investigate imagine his horror when he was instantly confronted by a huge specimen of the cobra di capello species measuring almost six feet in length. At last the riddle was solved, for instantly it flitted across Andy's mind that this huge monster had been demolishing the products of his fine flock of turkeys and he determined to rid himself effectually and permanently of such an undesirable tenant.

With all the grit, nerve and unswerving courage characteristic of his race, he seized a cudgel and with one decisive blow, the serpent was on the writing in the throes of death. Another appeared but Andy's invulnerable and soon it suffered the excruciating agony of its predecessor; and Andy never stopped till twenty six reptiles "bit the dust in death by his unblenching aim." Andy now enjoys his poached eggs for breakfast and he is as proud of his achievement as an aborigine of the primitive forest who returned wiled and gory from some intertribal fray with twenty six pale tusk scalps dangling at his girdle.

Mr. Thos Bentham is expected in the village next week, he having received the contract of laying granite walks on the West side of Garrafraxa St. This shows commendable enterprise on the part of the villagers and will add very materially to the appearance of the villa.

We extend our sincere condolence to Mr. and Mrs. Duncan McGillivray whose son succumbed to the ravages of diphtheria on Monday last. Johnny was a bright bonny lad of 14 summers and his early death will be mourned not only in the home, but also by his schoolmates, among whom he was a great favorite.

Hampden

Haying and hoeing are the order of the day.

Mr Alex Anderson had the misfortune to have one of his horses kicked so as to lay it off work for a while.

Miss Jessie Derby is visiting her aunt Mrs Wm. Falcon of Mulock.

Mr Henry Byers fell on Saturday and injured his arm.

Miss Mary S. Nichol returned to Owen Sound on Tuesday last.

Mr Robt. Nichol has finished his contract of levelling the new school grounds.

Mr Alex. McLean intended visiting friends at Guelph on his return from Niagara Falls but the train forgot to stop.

Mr George Nichol is the happiest man in Hampden, not because he is a bachelor but because he is through haying.

A. H. Jackson is an Issuer of Marriage Licenses, Durham, Ont.

Trip from Priceville to Winnipeg

By J. McDonald.

To the person who was never further away than from one stone pile to another in the old township of Glenora, getting as far as Winnipeg, seems as if he made a circumvolution the world around when he got as far as that beautiful city. It certainly was a new discovery to a greenhorn who never saw rocks any bigger than those on Lambton St in the town of Durham or Rocky Saugeen when gazing on the rocks from a few score of miles west of Toronto, within 50 miles of Winnipeg. It reminded me of that beautiful hymn "Rock of Ages Cleft for me; Let me hide myself in thee," but as our thoughts were directed on farther we could not help entertaining the thought of what would become of a person whose familiarity of such scenery was but meagre if he was away into the distance as far as the naked eye could behold. It would certainly be the means of hiding him forever from the scenes of action if cast hundreds of miles from a place of safety.

But to pass on winding our way this way and that way as best we could to avoid the roughest parts, our thoughts were directed as to how and what manner the first person took to get over these rocks for the purpose of surveying the railroad. He certainly was a good level headed fellow that surveyed the line for in some instances miles had to be surveyed to make one mile if taken the short way but the thoughts of getting to Winnipeg led us from entering our thoughts on dangerous scenes to be seen by day and unseen by night, but one consolation to the timid traveler was that the nights were at their shortest period, as generally speaking accidents occur in the dark, not all ways.

Passing through Port Arthur we had a view of the place where so much damage was done by the bursting of a rail until pond causing loss of lives and property. The debris could be seen and that part of the road is not yet too safe to get over.

Getting to the stations at Port Arthur and Fort William, we were in hopes to see some of our Priceville and Durham friends, but no, not one of them was seen on the platform, although crowds of lookers on were gathered, to see we presume, who was on the train they would recognize.

Leaving Port Arthur, we were soon overtaken by night and as naturally, a person who was always in the habit of going to bed found it strange when forced to make his bed as best he could by laying angle ways on his seat. This manner of course would suit a person in short and not in long underwear. However we managed to settle in the land of dreams for an hour or two, and when we awoke before the rising sun, our outer conveyances were at a standstill for the hind end of the train just ahead of us a couple of miles out of the track, causing a delay of five hours. The conductor in a jocular manner said that the reports would spread like wild fire that a train was off the track near Winnipeg and friends would be anxious to hear of our fate.

Now we arrived at Winnipeg, and as we had the appointment of delegate to the Presbyterian General Assembly from Priceville, held at that beautiful city, Winnipeg, we soon found our way to Knox Church, where a large gathering of ministers and elders were assembled for the purpose of dealing with all matters relating to the affairs of the church, but it is needless for us to say much as the business transacted has already appeared through the press. However we say it was one of the finest gatherings ever held in connection with Presbyterianism, there being representatives from east, west, north and south, from the hoary head of four score to the youth of a little over 20 years.

As we saw a long letter from our friend Rev Mr. Farguharsen, in last week's Review, we feel that it is needless for us to say anything further about western scenery, as that Rev gentleman was an old timer and experience has long been his, in bringing everything out clearly, so as the reader can understand at once the situation of that country. However we may add our little say in a different direction to our worthy friend.

While at Winnipeg, we were greatly taken up with the beautiful aspect of that city with its wide streets of 100 feet and fine streets of Winnipeg, there are 18 Presbyterian churches we were told, and as many of Methodists and an equal share of all other denominations. While in the city we met such Rev gentlemen, whose faces were familiar to us in times past, Rev J. N. A. McDonald, of Dornoch, Farguharsen, of Darham, Little of Holstein, McLean of Tara and Bion, of McDonald's corner, whom we greeted by calling Jim Jimmy, in our excitement of seeing Jim Bionie, a Grey boy of olden times, but he enjoyed our familiarity by saying he was Jimmy still, also Mr Fraser south with whom we had the pleasure of spending some time with friends later on.

Taking our leave of Winnipeg, we set out to seek some of our near relatives some 175 miles north-west of Winnipeg to Oak River, 40 miles north of Brandon. From Winnipeg to Brandon is 183 miles, fine streets of country, though the soil is somewhat sandier in the immediate vicinity of Winnipeg. And as we viewed the country while passing along, we were astonished to see fields, yes, thousands of acres covered with mustard, and we were astonished that Manitobans would tolerate the idea of having their beautiful farms yielding a superabundance of fruitless crop. However, as it was near the 12th of July, a person who never saw mustard growing, might think the good people of Manitoba were only raising orange lilies to be sent to old Ontario for the purpose of celebrating the glorious 12th, but as we have plenty of such crop in Ontario, it is needless to access our good friends there of presenting us with such injurious plant.

The crop here was only raising orange lilies to be sent to old Ontario for the purpose of celebrating the glorious 12th, but as we have plenty of such crop in Ontario, it is needless to access our good friends there of presenting us with such injurious plant.

It was said that Manitoba was a part of the promised land flowing with milk and honey.

and honey. Well we drank a lot of milk but no honey while there. It could be well said that it is a land overflowing with wheat and in consequence, for like many other parts of the world there are plenty who have abundance of both, as we saw by coming in contact with some friends who are blessed with the abundance of the good of the land, and are also blessed with an overflowing heart by giving out of the abundance of their success in their labors of past years.

Brandon is a beautiful city, situated on elevated ground and commands a view in every direction. While we had a few hours awaiting train connections there we had the pleasure of seeing the volunteers in camp in a large field outside the city. We were told that 1400 of them were there and judging from the large area of ground covered with tents, we would judge it covered 12 acres.

Some of the best farmers in Manitoba in early days had some severe hardships to contend with drawing wheat with oxen some 40, 50 and 70 miles to Brandon and sell their wheat for 25c a bush, but the wheels of time have changed and now at every small village or town there are no less than 5 or 6 elevators. Manitoba is not a look over the large fields of some 100 acres each of the finest looking crop imaginable, a person hailing from a country where fields are only from 5 to 10 acres each, would find quite a contrast between Ontario fields and Western ones.

While we were passing time at our son-in-law's, who by the way was breaking up some prairie and as we always thought we could hold the plough as good as the next man, we thought we could in that respect also, but like Padrig, when asked if he could hold the plough, said "By Japers how could I hold it and two horses pulling it." So we were in the same predicament for there were four horses pulling one furrow plough. So we lost concern in our ploughing Manitoba prairie land.

Edge Hill.

Mrs H. Williams and son Will took in the trip to Niagara Friday.

Miss Lily Ritchie is home for a couple of months holidays.

Mr Geo. Ritchie purchased a horse from Mr Geo. Farnaux, of Darham.

Mrs Geo. Firth, of Proton, is visiting friends and relations in this part.

Miss Ethel Greenwood, teacher of Williamsburg, is home for vacation. She was accompanied by her two cousins, Masters Ralph and Donald Kinsman of Toronto.

Mr Thos. Greenwood had two sheep killed by lightning in the storm of Tuesday last.

Lightning ravages split up quite a number of telephone poles in our vicinity in last Tuesday's storm. Mr Thos. Ritchie's barn was struck also, the only damage being a couple of boards knocked off and part of the roof shattered.

Mr Dan Edge has improved his residence by adding a fine verandah. Geo. Kress of town did the work.

A few of the neighbors gathered and shingled the Misses Edge house last week.

Quite a number from Edge Hill attended the Orange celebration at Dundalk on Monday.

Miss Burgess, who has been with Mr Wm. Edge for a number of years, is leaving for Southampton this week to live with his nephew, Mr Thos Burgess.

We are sorry to learn Mr. Henry Farr is quite low at present.

Miss Maggie Estor left last week for Edmonton, Alberta, on a visit to her sister there.

Rev Mr Farr, of Gorrie, is visiting his father at the old homestead this week.

Mr Jno. Hanna, of Mr Forest, visited at Mr Wm. McFarlane's this week.

Glenmont.

At the services on Sunday last Rev Mr Berry preached an able sermon suitable to the 12th of July, the local lodge of Orangemen being present. His text was taken from Psa. 137: 5, 6: "If I forget Thee, O Jerusalem, may my right hand, etc."

He pointed out how the Jews were a patriotic people and in the language of true patriotism. We lived in an empire blessed with religious life and liberty have an educational system, the best in the world, out of our halls and colleges go forth men second to none in ability and knowledge and in respect for law. Never had defeat come to the British army except when engaged in a conflict in opposition to truth and righteousness, blessed every nation whom they conquered or came in contact with. A true patriot would not be unmindful of the cause of Britain's moral greatness—the Bible. Compared with other nations, in this respect she stands alone. The Bible was the secret of individual greatness as well as national. The boys we fought in the interests of truth, of law and of order. Every true patriot will loyally support the laws of his country, giving his aid to measures that would improve it. He closed with an eloquent peroration urging all to be true to self, to country and to God making the Bible the rule of their lives, one could not be truly loyal without.

The choir rendered appropriate music and there was a fine attendance.

The Question?

What is the best thing to use on the potatoes to get rid of the Colorado Beetle? Some say one way, some another. Paris Green is good when properly used, but there is not one in ten who do.
