THE USURPER

"Yes, no wonder you are surprised. Audrey—Miss Hope is an old friend of yours, Lord Lorrimore; so she is of mine, isn't you, Audrey?" and she smiled at her.

But Audrey seemed to be unable to speak for a moment or two, and she gave her hand in silence to Lorrimore, whose name it was the first time she had ever shown any emotion at the sight of him, and it made him hopeful.

"Why did you not write and tell me you were coming?" she asked, chidingly. "I didn't write because I did not know you were coming. I was coming to England," he said, scarcely knowing what he said, all his thoughts scattered by the fact that the woman he loved was sitting within reach of his hand.

"I am very glad to see you, Lord Lorrimore," she said, but there was no gladness in her voice, he noticed, and his heart felt. "I am afraid you will not be very glad when I tell you that I have come back unsuccessful, and without any good news for you," he said, regretfully, and as humbly as if it were all his fault that he had not brought the missing Neville in his pocket.

A tremor seized Audrey and she tried to stop him, but she could not speak. "It was Sylvia who told me that I ought to come back to the woman I loved and tell her that I loved her, and that I ought to ask her to try and love me in return. Did I do right, Audrey? Is there any hope for me, or ought I to have stayed away and ceased to trouble you?"

"No, it is not that. I don't care what he has done for me now—I don't mean that. I think I know what you mean. But still I don't see why you should cry. Lord Lorrimore has come back—"

THE MEANING OF MILLIONS

This is the age of millions and millions. A few centuries ago people thought in hundreds of thousands, but now one thinks in millions, says the Rev. Dr. Charles Briggs.
