Priceville

Those visiting are as far as we know, Miss McCosh, teacher, Owen Sound, at Norman McIntyre's for a few days. Her old friends at Top Cliff were pleased to see her again. The Misses Simpson at the old home, Priceville. Miss Myrtle McArthur with her mother, Mrs McArthur, Priceville. Mrs. nee Annie McArthur, of Guelph, at her brother's Mr Dan McArthur, Glen, Glenelg. The Misses McInnes and McArthur of Toronto, at D. McInnes, Business, Miss Maggie McLean, of Toronto, with friends on the South Line and elsewhere. Mrs. nee Kate McAulley of the States, with her mother, Mrs McAulley of this town. Mrs Nichol, of Durham, with her aunt and uncle, Mr and Mrs Dugald McCormick, of this place. Mrs Nichol was Annie McLachlan, once of the Durham Road, Glenelg.

Haying is pretty well done and the crop in general was pretty good. The harvest comes in fast, fall wheat and barley will soon be cut. We notice some rust coming on the oats, which no doubt will do injury if it continues, but it doesn't amount to anything serious yet. Potatoes look good.

Trains are running regular now to Priceville twice a day.

Mr Willie Mather has improved his farm by putting a fine fence along side the town line.

John Stothart has the brick part of his house finished and has the appearance of being a fine dwelling house.

Rain is talked of again that it is needed on some of the dry hills but the high land fared better this summer than low grounds.

Reveling meetings are expected to commence next week in the Baptist church in this place. The Rev Van-syde, near Owen Sound, is expected to be in attendance.

Miss Rita McDermid, of Toronto, is visiting with her grandfather, Mr John McPhail, South Line, at present.

The roads seem to be worse with stones this summer than ever on account of the late heavy rains washing away the carter's fine wire along the stones as obstacles in the way of travellers. So fast drivers will have to slow up when rattling over stones, but stones are better than mud sometimes, as it is not so apt to spoil your good clothes.

Miss Jennie James is always in the invalid's chair and seems to bear her trouble cheerfully. It is now nearly three years since she was laid up.

Mr Jno. McPhail, of British Columbia, son of the late Alex McPhail, South line, Glenelg, is visiting friends at present around the old homestead.

Dromore.

The Dromore branch of Women's Institutes will meet Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 p. m. at the home of Mrs Wm. Philip. The subjects to be taken up are "The Story of the Tea Plant," "Different ways of making Tea," "Pickling." A good program is being prepared, all ladies are invited to attend.

Mrs Taylor left on Tuesday for a two week's visit with friends in Whitby.

Miss Kendall, Chatham, is visiting her brother, Rev. Geo. Kendall.

It is with much sorrow we write of the death of the late Neil Clark, who died at his late residence, Sunday, about one o'clock. He had been ill for some time with heart trouble and the last few weeks had been bed fast and on Sunday the end came quite suddenly. He was the oldest son and was 20 years and some days old at the time of death.

Since his father's death he has been his mother's mainstay. Three of his sisters are in Winnipeg and were unable to get home for the funeral, which took place from his late residence to Amos cemetery on Tuesday afternoon.

Two beautiful wreaths were placed on the casket, one in the shape of an anchor from the Football team, Dromore, the other from his sisters and brothers. It was a very large funeral which took the high respect in which he was held. Much sympathy is felt for the sorrowing mother and brothers and sisters.

Hopeville.

Two small errors appeared in our last week's report. First is that lightning struck the barn of Mr Alex Haw, it should have been Mr Albert Haw. The second was in the name of the visitor at Mrs Dugwald's. It should be Miss Elizabeth Glenister and not Mrs.

Died at the residence of Mr George Sacket, Sacket's Corners, Egmont, Mrs Sakadale, age 70, sister of Mr Sacket. The funeral was on Wednesday 22nd, to Swinton Park, and was largely attended. Rev Mr Gibbons, of Hopeville, officiating at the house and cemetery.

Last week Dromore cor. said that the Rev Mr MacInnes, of Cedarville, preached in their church the Sunday previous and the same time their pastor, Rev Mr Kendall, preached in the Esplanade and Cedarville churches.

The Misses Glenister have gone home to Toronto.

Master Johnny Glenister is up from Toronto here.

The Rev Mr MacInnes is taking three weeks holidays in the County of Glengarry, his birth place.

Mrs Gibson has gone to Toronto to see some friends.

The news of the leading men of our cities, towns and villages going to Quebec to attend Tercentenary, affected our village people here so much that we heard of steps being taken to choose some good representatives to go down and have our village come into notoriety. The names mentioned to be chosen were Bob Armstrong and Ed Dezell with Dick Hall as Constable and Detective. This Mr Hall was the Constable in the Jamieson-McCannell election and should be a good fella to protect Armstrong and Dezell.

The Sunday School Picnic did not take place on the 17th, as the down-pour of rain kept up all day. The berry time now with the hay harvest was another cause for postponement.

Quick work of good business men. In insurance, business has been done in settling with Mr Albert Haw, of the 17th, whose barn was struck by lightning. Manager D. Campbell, of Hanover, was notified, then Mr Archibald McCuaig the Inspector and Joseph McArdle the agent of the Company here were on hand on the 14th and settled with Mr Haw. Favored by fine weather, a large attendance of both children and parents gathered, including a few from town, to spend a pleasant afternoon. The sports consisted of baseball games, races and other athletic events by the children which were enjoyed by all. A bountiful supper was provided and served by the ladies and everybody returned home well pleased with the day's outing.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

That Conservative Convention.

Dear Mr Editor.— Shakespeare sang: "The time is out of joint, oh cursed spite That ever I was born to make it right."

Whatever were the literary circumstances surrounding the origin of the Play and the Act as well as the character, chosen to utter such sentiments, whatever was the political complexion of national and continental affairs which caused Alby's noted bard to echo to the world such stern summons of eternal wisdom or whatever the change which successive ages of Democracy have produced in Europe, the Orient or the Occident, the bold outline of progressive Liberalism is nevertheless the same now as it was when the poet gave vent to the above outburst of impassioned poetry.

Carlyle, the Sage, and the censor of every ill-tuned Democracy, Aristocracy and Absolutism, warns us to not scorn the tenets of responsible government, the greatest blessing which can be bestowed from any state or any age, "Cursed spite" we may indeed deem our destiny in an individual sense, to be nevertheless individualism or selfishness must give way to the well understood interests of the masses plus the classes, or in other words to the brotherhood of man.

Mandates, earthly and celestial, tell us that we must either bend or break implicit obedience to the fundamental outline of the principles of all progress is demanded alike of not only individuals but nations, empires and worlds, seen and unseen.

Now, to a genuine Liberal, to a heart touched with an ambition, an ideal, yes a love to scan the whole national arena of this human gymnasium the world in general, so as to bring about a more perfect adaptation between himself and his environment, this problem of righting a society becomes a duty for which he willingly sacrifices his life. This was the secret of John Elliott, the first martyr to English liberty, of Lyon MacKenzie, our hero of Responsible Government, and of Jefferson, the man who started Democracy on its ennobling course across the wide Atlantic through France and thence round the world. Time and again danger signals flash before our eyes, politically speaking result—corruption, industrial fraud, quackery and an easy-go-lucky class, religion, reign supreme, all of which behooves Liberals to be on their guard. For on matter how perfect things are, no matter who steers the Ship of State, to an alert mind, things are "out of joint" and must be made right.

As the conservers of the principles of freedom, liberty of thought and speech, and the sovereignty of the people; we must let them have drifted far afield and to regain our past provincial prestige as well as retain our Federal norm, we must adopt a progressive attitude in our various relations, socially, commercially, federally, constitutionally and imperially.

From the election of delegates at the primaries, for the second time, yes though all the complex stages of a party Convention, uprightiness must prevail, a willingness to serve our country wisely and well must dominate our life, and a spirit of British fair play must display itself. This was the spirit of past master minds, like Gladstone, and this is the ideal genius of our present intellectual stars, Laurier, Aulic and Bryan.

Be the recent nomination of the latter at Denver, I find the following items were wired East, West, North and South, in and far beyond the United States: "Win J. Bryan, 80%; Judge George Gray, 30%; Governor John A. Johnston, 6%; Abbot or not voting, 5. Total 100%. How simple, how clear, how strictly democratic all this seems, why every act as Denver down to the minutest details, was done above board, and the most manly strength anew for the cause of Democracy, bearing the onus of party and national responsibility.

But coming nearer home, Mr Editor, let us note the convention of S. G. Conservatives in the city of Toronto, held on the 24th inst. What do we find? Why Sir, a condition of affairs by no means worthy of the name of Liberalism. A whole or locally, results shrouded in mystery and of "whence and whither and why" which would have exploded any sharp tactics which any man at the Convention could have employed. Wrong would it be for us to take account runs this? Seven names were placed before the Convention, Messrs Hall, Wilson, Moffat, Schenk, W. Searl, W. Allan and M. Richardson. Again all except the first two names, the scrutineers being the Conservative Party, the vote being taken by ballot. The chronicle account contains nothing extra to throw light on the situation. "What a wrong! Why have we not gotten the total number of delegates from each division. Would it not look better, would it not encourage competition within the ranks of Conservatives, not only among all fair-minded party take the hustings and make their bow to the intellectual yeomanry and farmers of famous old South Grey and such information lacking? We know not, can it be that Mr Hall is the nominee of the above mentioned trio and not the Convention in general?"

Dear Geo Elias, such out of joint Conventions are dry, dry on the tap and refresh our minds thus swayer of men.

P.S.—The Chesley Enterprise gives the analysis as Wilson 63, Hall 22. Is this mere whispering confidant? A LIBERAL.
