Saul Tries to Kill David .- 1 Sam. 18:

Commentary.-I. Saul angry at David (vs. 6-9). 6. Was returned—There has evidently been a digression in the narrative (vs. 1-5) "to relate the account of Davids' permanent reception into Saul's service, the commencement of the friendship between him and Jonathan, and his ultimate promotion and success." The narrative now goes back to the welcome which David received when the army returned in triumph from the successful completion of the Philistine war. This verse should be read in connection with chap. 17, 54; though some time may have elapsed, during which the army was occupied in following up its first success. Women came out-This was in harmony with Oriental customs. It was the principle business of certain women to celebrate victories, sing at funerals, etc. Of all cities-They came together from all the neighboring cities. Singing and dancing-This is a characteristic trait of Oriental manners. On the return of friends long absent, and particuthe towns and villages to form a triumphal procession, to celebrate the victory with dancing, music and songs, in honor of the generals who have earned the highest distinction by feats of gallantry. The Hebrew women, therefore, were merely paying the customary contimbrels. A hand-drum, an instrument still used by the Arabs, and described as

II. Saul attempts to kill David (vs. 10, 11). "Here commences the record of those persecutions by which, during the rest of Sauls' lifetime, the conqueror of Goliath was continually harassed. forms a suggestive period of Israelitish history, and presents in striking contrast the development of Saul's great wickedness on the one hand, and David's many excellencies on the other.
