LETTERS to the EDITOR

That So-called Army Bribe.

Editor Review,
Dear Sir,
The Chronicle in its last issue says "what benefit will the Army be? We need a Post Office far more."

As for as the Post Office goes we have one large enough to supply the needs of this town at present, and as for the Army nobody knows the need of one more than those who have the interest of our militia at heart.

In the first place since the collapse of the Drill shed, the officer in charge of the company here has had considerable trouble in looking after the militia stores and in moving them from place to place as he has been obliged to do.

We have here now the Regimental band, which in order to become efficient and maintain its efficiency must have a place for practice without being interrupted, which is not the case now.

The Rifle Association also requires a place to keep their store and the Militia Department are in duty bound to see these things looked after. Therefore any person who says that the army is not needed does not know what he is talking about or else is trying willfully to mislead.

Yours etc,
A. B.

Miss Sarah Bennett returned to town after visiting Warton friends, and intends to remain for some time.

Mrs. McInnes, of Calgary, is visiting her friends in the Glen.

Miss Violet Britton, who is now attending Mt. Forest Bus. College, spent the week end with her friend, Miss Hazel Marshall.

Mrs. Keegan, of Collingwood, visited her cousin, the McArthur families in the Glen, returning last week.

Mr. Hugh McKay came home last week from his fire-ranging duties in the north country, looking as if the life agreed with him.

Miss Rita Irwin went to Detroit Wednesday morning on a visit.

Miss Clara Orchard of Stratford, returned home Wednesday from a short visit to her aunt, Mrs. McNeil, who in about two weeks Miss O. intends leaving for the West.

Mr. Arthur Whitlock, we are pleased to note, has recovered from his accident which confined him to Walkerton hospital for over two months and has returned to town.

Congratulations to Mr. Chas. Robson, who, last Wednesday, in Toronto, married Miss M. G. McNeil, daughter of Barbara M. Noh. They subsequently spent a few days round his old home in Glenora and left Wednesday for their new home in Edmonton.

South Grey's Campaign Fighters.

Figures refer to number of meetings attended. On the left hand side are the prominent Conservatives outside of this Riding who have aided Mr. Ball during the campaign. On the right hand side is their lone opponent, Mr. Miller, the candidate.

LOOK ON THIS PICTURE:

2 R. L. Borden, M. P. Leader of the Opposition.

1 Geo. E. Foster, M. P. Would-be Finance Minister who dabbled with the funds of widows and orphans.

2 Dr. Sproule, M. P. Possible would-be Min. of Agriculture, and Grand Master of the Orange Order.

2 Hugh Clark, M. P. P. The man with the humor.

2 Joseph Downey, M. P. P. The man with the eloquence.

2 W. J. Hanna, M. P. P. Provincial Secretary in the Ontario Cabinet.

5 Robert Birmingham, G. O. O. The man "on the side."

5 I. B. Lucas, M. P. P. The Boy Orator.

1 Dr. Ego, Marikdale.

1 Barrister McArdie, Marikdale.

Robert James Ball. The Candidate himself.

Mr. Miller had the Hon. A. G. Mackay at one joint meeting in Hanover. But don't you think it looks as if they were bound to defeat Miller?

The Ballot.

"Be Careful" was Mr. Ball's advice: to enable voters to follow it we give the form of the ballot marked as it should be for the best man.

BALL
Robert James Ball, of the Town of Hanover, County of Grey, manufacturer.

MILLER
Henry Horton Miller, of the Town of Hanover, County of Grey, estate agent.

The Nominations.

Mr. Ball in his speeches had been advocating "reasonable protection" to industry and he took issue with him on this question so vitally interesting to the farmers and large consuming classes. On the authority of three competent judges, Mr. Ball's position, a higher tariff was unnecessary. It was owing to Laurier wisdom on this point that manufacturers, including Mr. Ball, had had the best time they ever had and there was great applause as he remarked that Mr. Ball had enlarged his factory to meet expanding trade.

He took issue also on Mr. Ball's theory of immigration as reported, and thought Mr. Ball's story of men coming here and after a while leaving in a pocket full was a tribute to the country and the character of the immigrants. An impression was abroad that a bonus was paid on all immigrants but that was wrong as only about 10 per cent were bonused.

Referring to the so-called "Salary Grab," he said he felt quite competent to judge the merits of the bill. The Chronicle never had any fear of his character being attacked. He pointed out, what he thought Mr. Ball had not mentioned, that Mr. Ball's average salary now, for every day absent, $15 was taken off, and on the whole the total increase to the country was not much greater. Mr. Ball is an all sinner, what about Mr. Borden who accepted not only the increase, but a bonus of $7000 as well. The average cost to the farmers of South Grey of this increase was only 3 cts a year.

After a magnificent justification of his attitude in the School question, he referred to the cowardly and mean insinuation contained in the Chronicle, that he had altered his speech before it was tested in Hanover. He indignantly thought Mr. Irwin could not have been the author but as that insinuation was present and admitted by the author, Mr. Miller said he would place offered him $1000 if he could prove from Irwin's record, or by any other means, that he had ever used the term "yellow dog" in the way he had insinuated, or any other opprobrious expression to Oranigen or Catholics or any class in the community.

Mr. Miller riddled Mr. Ball's claim to independence by his association with the charges of Mr. Ball and his party. He had been dishonest in official duties as appointees of the late Conservative government, but showed that the willful speech, devoid of all truth, was the utterance of a man who had done his duty and done it well.

Space will not permit us to do more than mention his clear explanations of the Sack Valley Land and Blew-More Site, and many other so-called scandals. He closed this part amid great applause by declaring that neither Mr. Burrows nor any other man ever got a limit or a favor except he was the highest bidder.

He had warm words for the personal character of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but there had been dishonesty in official duties as appointees of the late Conservative government, but showed that the willful speech, devoid of all truth, was the utterance of a man who had done his duty and done it well.

Mr. Ball was also very heartily received and was glad to see Mr. Miller so buoyant. He expressed the pleasure it had given him to go over the riding as their "Warden," and now in this campaign and the double exposure had given him ample opportunity to discover the needs of the people.

He claimed a measure of independence, party politics had been unreasonably partisan, and he came before them as a plain Conservative. He complimented Mr. Miller on being a far-sighted man, but accused of following through the plank on their platform.

He disclaimed knowledge of Birmingham's object in coming here, said "I had made statements he should not have made," a remark that called for "He did not say it" from a few in the audience, which was followed by a storm of others who protested. "He did say it." He touched on Western schools, in-

LARGE TREES from Small Acorns Grow

The prizes at the Fall Fairs have been discussed in every home, and it is rightly so, and it is also well to keep in remembrance the native crop, the crop of trees: if we may so call it. Many a home in the Western prairies have their houses furnished with furniture made from our soft elm, basswood, birch, pine and maple. The quality could not be surpassed, but it is of the sizes we wish to speak. We know of one

- | | |
|--|------------------------|
| Soft Elm log, ordinary length, round and straight, | containing 1200 ft. |
| Pine log | do containing 1500 ft. |
| Birch log | do containing 502 ft. |
| Basswood log | do containing 750 ft. |

We know the farms on which these trees grew and we will give a self-opening umbrella to the first person who will tell us the lot on which anyone of these grew, but only one umbrella to each informant. But what about the Maple? This sturdy emblem of our nationality, with in summer its beautiful foliage, the maple leaf, the Maple Leaf Forever. Changes must take place in all that pertains to humanity, but the name of McKechnie's, which was well known to the people here when Chicago was a hamlet, is still to the front at, we might say, the old stand. We do not claim to be better than other business people for we consider they are all honest, but we try to buy the best quality of goods at the lowest prices. We are working for ourselves and also for our customers.
