Sheep in Arabia Ate Coffee Plants, Became More Lively.

The use of coffee is ascribed to the superior of a monastery in Arabia, who, desirous of preventing the monks from sleeping at their nocturnal service, made them drink infusions of coffee, upon the report of shepherds. who observed that their flocks were more lively after browsing on the fruit of the coffee plants. This then, affirms the fact that coffee drinking is a powerful stimulant and prevents sleep. It is claimed that black coffee, dripped, is less injurious than coffee served with cream, but the latter will not be so injurious if allowed to stand until it forms a scum on the cup, which can be lifted off. Spanish-speaking countries young women are allowed but little of the liberty that they enjoy in lands where English is the native tongue.
