NEWS FROM THE OLD LAND

Many Interesting Happenings Reported From Great Britain.

(London Daily Mail.) A fierce blizzard swept Dorset, Devon,

Somerset, Wales, Lancashire, Yorkshire, the Border country and the west of Scotland during the week-end.

In the west Highlands it snowed incessantly for twenty-four hours, the blizzard at one time being accompanied by lightning. The West Highland Railway from Glasgow to Fort William was completely blocked. A train was held up at Rannoch,

The carriages were steam-heated, but the twenty passengers were short of food. The railway officials supplied hot tea and what eatables they could spare, and Mr. D. McPhail, a passenger, who had a large cake and a bottle of wine in his had his bagpipes, too, and throughout the night played spirited airs. morning the train struggled to Corrour, a station 1,300 feet above the sea level, where the track was again blocked. The signalman did his best for the wornout passengers, some of whom removed a case of sausages from the van and cooked them. They were kept again all night till gangs of men from Fort William cleared the drift. So violent was the blizzard at Huddersfield that Moore, a player from York in a northern football league match, had to leave the field with a frozen arm. -

FANCY DRESS TRAGEDY. The death of Miss Elizabeth Crayston, a nurse at the Liverpool Royal Infirmary, who was fatally burned at a fancy dress party, was the subject of an inquiry by the Liverpool coroner. The other night a number of the nurses held a surprise party in their sitting room at the infirmary, the surprise element consisting of the style of fancy costume to be worn. Miss Crayston appeared as "were-wolf," her costume consisting of cotton-wool. After a whist drive Nurse Crayston, who had been warned about the dangerous character of her attire, was standing near the fire, when a spark flew out and ignited her clothing. She was immediately enveloped in flames.

A Sign of Death.

There may have been many "signs" of death-so some people believebut one described here is probably new to many. Mr. W. B. Cooper, of Cheltenham, tells of his father being ill but not confined to bed, and sunny day in June when he walked across the garden another man, the facsimile of his father, met him and "apparently passed into him."

"Shortly after my father came to me and said: 'Did you see me go across the garden?' I said 'Yes.' 'Well,' he said, 'I shan't be here long; our family see themselves before they die.' Although I had seen this, said, 'Nonsense.' He shook his head and walked away. Shortly after he took to his bed and died on July 5.
