KINRADE MURDER.

French General at Toulon Gets Himself Disliked.

Paris, March 15.—Despatches from Toulon report that in consequence of insubordination among the colonial infantry stationed at Toulon, Gen. de Ferron, commander of the Fourth Colonial Division, assembled the officers and severely reprimanded them for not maintaining better discipline. He is reported to have said to them: "Your men are wasters. If they did not keep in the rear in the colonies it was because they were afraid of being punished by having their heads cut off."

The general is said to have added that he felt dishonored in having to command such scum. He has denied using these words, but the men became very excited on being told that he had, and their officers had great difficulty in preventing them from making a demonstration against de Ferron.

General Ferron supported the colonel of the Fourth Division, and protested against de Ferron's language. Both were therefore ordered under arrest for eight days.

The incident has made a sensation in Toulon.

Hamilton despatch: The Kinrade murder mystery is still a mystery, but if the line of questioning followed by Mr. Blackstock for the Crown to-night is not one of aimless irrelevance—and Mr. Blackstock usually has a purpose—a foundation is being laid for a startling revelation. At 30 minutes to 2 o'clock, in answer to a direct question by Mr. Blackstock as to whether she could identify her sister's murderer, Miss Kinrade with a little eye answered: "I don't know his name, but, Oh, I should know him if I saw him!" and fainted. Doctors came to her, and on the motion of Mr. Hobson the inquest was adjourned till 7 o'clock to-morrow evening.

For three hours Florence Kinrade was in the witness box, and she was closely cross-examined by Mr. Blackstock with regard to the murder of her sister Ethel. The story which she told reveals so far no new fact, although in the course of her evidence there can be observed certain discrepancies in comparison with her former stories.

Her evidence is also remarkable in regard to the incidents connected with her sojourn in the South, and because at Rochester and Buffalo she claimed to have stayed as a guest at houses the addresses of which and the names of their owners she cannot remember.

Apparently she introduced to her career as a soloist by a Miss Elliot, an English woman given to travelling, whose present whereabouts she does not know, and who introduced her to the girl at the MacNab Street Church. So far as her connection with Beaum, with whom she was associated at a vaudeville theatre in Portsmouth, is concerned, she has not proposed marriage to her, having knowledge of her engagement to Mr. Wright, but she said that she regarded his attentions as a joke.

Both Miss Kinrade and her father, who was on the stand two hours, spoke of the family being scared by mysterious men, supposed tramps, and by an attempt to break into the house. Beyond a lapse of memory Miss Kinrade gave her evidence clearly although evidently under high nervous tension.

Mrs. Kinrade, the dead girl's mother; Ernest Kinrade, her brother, and the younger sister, Gertrude, were all examined, and she denied having the slightest idea as to who was the murderer. They also unanimously denied that the relations between the various members of the family were otherwise than of the most affectionate nature.

Mrs. Hickey, to whose home Florence went after the shooting, told a plain, straightforward tale of what happened.

Dr. W. J. McNeill who was among the first to arrive at the house, was briefly examined, and stated that when he got there the house was full of the fumes of burnt gunpowder.

Hamilton, March 12.—"If there was no man there, then only you two girls would be left. That will do, Miss Kinrade."

Such was the sentence with which Mr. George Tate Blackstock, K. C., closed his second examination of Florence Kinrade in the inquiry as to the cause of the death of her sister Ethel under circumstances which make it stand out with ghastly prominence in the criminal annals of Canada.

The girl, who had already been subjected to one of the most trying ordeals that ever a girl passed through, leaned back in her chair in a witness box with white, drawn face and drooping eyelids, and one tensely stretched hand clasping the rail in front of her. Throughout the court, not so crowded as on previous occasions, went a deep sigh as the hearers appreciated the meaning of Mr. Blackstock's last remark.

Then the slight, black-clothed figure collapsed, and the constable in attendance, who was walking to the patient's assistance, apparently so she had collapsed entirely. Outside in the hall the nurse, who had been pacing the hall with anxious steps, and fated her to be introduced by the constable to her patient's assistance. Apparently so she had collapsed entirely. Outside in the hall the nurse, who had been pacing the hall with anxious steps, and fated her to be introduced by the constable to her patient's assistance.

Two facts stand out in the evidence. The first was the statement by Earl Kinrade that he understood that his sister had practised with a revolver. It was, he said, common talk among the family. The second was the statement by Kinrade that she had seen the man who shot her; and she said that she had ever handled firearms.

Apart from these facts the evidence was also notable for the new elements introduced into her story, and that persons in the neighborhood heard nothing of the shooting at the time it is supposed to have occurred.

At the conclusion of Miss Kinrade's examination the inquest was adjourned for one week.

CALLS MEN "SCUM." CARMAN LETTER.

OUT-INGERSOLLED WITHIN THE HOUSE OF GOD.

Methodist Superintendent Replies to the Criticisms of His Assault on the Scientists of the Bible.

The following is from a letter written by Rev. Dr. Carman, which appears in the Toronto World:

While not specially fond of controversy or desirous of its continuance, I feel in duty bound as at the first to notice some issues that have arisen. One could hardly imagine there would be such a stir, but it is plain enough about spots were struck, and I am sorry they were so sore, both on the irregularities as to pulp arrangements and the utterances concerning the integrity of Holy Scripture. This pulp arrangement was contained in confidence and good will, and likely so would have terminated but for a manifest disposition to introduce and propagate what is known as higher criticism.

Now that the address originally provoked the animadversions is before the public, men may judge for themselves. I do not find in it a word about the supernatural, or miracles, or revelation, or the inspiration of the Bible, or any of those things which are the basis of our Christian faith; nor do I find the feeblest intimation of faith itself, which of course is the foundation of the spiritual operation that connects us with God. We may believe that He is, and that He is the rewarder. "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, and that the things which are seen were not made of old things, but of things which are invisible."

It should be mentioned in this connection that our most worthy grandmaster has introduced a bill in Parliament intended to make it quite clear that the public school lands, of the west should be used for public schools, and not for sectarian schools.

The Racine bill before the Legislature was condemned. Reference was made to the necessity of having more information on matters coming up before law-makers, and it was proposed that the Grand Lodge unite with the Grand Lodge of Ontario East and vote $500 to enable the joint legislative committee to make a thorough and searching inquiry into all the facts relating to the school question in those localities where the separate school supporters are trying to supplant or have supplanted the public schools.

A BAD MAN.

Burglar Gets Seven Years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Guelph, Ont. Despatch.—A sentence of seven years in Kingston Penitentiary was this morning passed upon John O'Brien, alias Francis O'Brien, by Judge J. H. McLaughlin at the County Court House. O'Brien was arrested in Mount Forest on January 28th, drunk, in the baggage room, after three burglaries had been committed in the town. To these burglaries he not only pleaded guilty, but to burglaries at Dundalk and Chesley, as well. His honor, in passing sentence, spoke of the career of crime which the prisoner had led, commencing with the burglary of maple syrup in 1903, and continuing in different parts of the country ever since. He had been previously convicted of burglaries at Owen Sound, and at Orangeville, and in the neighborhood where he had been living, was looked upon as a terror.

THE ORANGEMEN. THREE NEW STATES

Essery Will Represent Grand Lodge at Triennial Council.

Racine Bill and Other School Legislation to be Watched.

St. Thomas despatch: The Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West will contribute to the distribution of the Sentinel to ministers in Ontario. Grand Master Essery was chosen representative to attend the Triennial Council at Liverpool, Eng., in July.

There was prolonged discussion of the Legislation Committee's report, which said that: "In the Provincial Legislature we have a band of members who if they are true to our principles (as we believe they will be) of equal rights for all and special privileges to none (as we believe they will be) will have passed conferring special favors on any class or creed." In Manitoba it was "evident that an effort is to be made to secure some special school favors for Rome as the price of granting an enlargement of the boundaries of the Province which first since confederation declared in favor of a national non-sectarian school of education.

"It should be mentioned in this connection that our most worthy grandmaster has introduced a bill in Parliament intended to make it quite clear that the public school lands, of the west should be used for public schools, and not for sectarian schools."

COFFERS OF RICH

Threatened by French Income Tax Bill.

Paris, March 15.—The Country has received the passage of the income tax bill by the Chamber of Deputies with mingled feelings of rage and triumph. The commercial, moneyed and property classes generally, whose interests are voted by such journals as The Figaro, Le Temps and the Journal des Debats, deplore it as a piece of cowardly folly, solicited only of re-election next spring. On the other hand, the Socialists and Radicals joyfully hail the passage of the bill as marking the beginning of the millennium.

The income tax bill passed in reality an electoral platform which the Radicals and Socialists will go to the country. No one imagines that in its present form it will be enforced. It is a cleverly-devised appeal to the masses as far as possible to the rich by dividing the taxable population into seven categories, the workmen and salaried employees, which include State servants, paying the lowest, and the hated "bourgeois," and the landed proprietors the highest.

FIFTY ICEBERGS.

British Steamer Encounters Them Off Grand Banks.

Had to Steer For 12 Hours to the Eastward.

Philadelphia, March 15.—Towering icebergs and a great area of encircled ice cause consternation to the officers and crew of the British steamship Tamarica when the vessel was within several hundred miles of the Grand Banks, on March 3. The Tamarica arrived here yesterday from Shields, and the report of her officers caused amazement in shipping circles, when it became known that more than fifty icebergs, of various sizes, were seen by the vessel.

The vessel was 200 miles northeast of Cape Race when the look-out reported icebergs ahead. Officers crowded the bridge decks and glasses swept the sea. To their astonishment the water was literally dotted with bergs of all sizes. The steamship soon found herself in heavy field ice, and finally was compelled to steam for twelve hours to eastward, she being within several hundred miles of the Grand Banks.

THE HOTEL MANAGER'S WIFE

The wife of the manager of a big uptown apartment hotel was unbecomingly hauled to a party of women friends.

"The next time that I live in the hotel of which my husband is the manager—well, I won't," was her plaint. "The wife of a hotel manager who lives in the hotel is what my husband calls 'in bad.' The women guests carry all of their little grievances and take it out on her if the grievances are not fixed up instanter. My apartments has become a sort of kick bureau to which all the women in the house promptly repair when things don't happen just to suit them."

"For example, the hotel's filtering apparatus got out of order a while ago and the water came out of the spigots rather roily and unpleasant looking. My apartments has become a sort of kick bureau to which all the women in the house promptly repair when things don't happen just to suit them."

"Where on earth did you get such perfectly dreadful fish? They all eat me breathlessly, impaling me on their reproachful eyes."

"I told them that no doubt the fish had accidentally escaped the inspection of the hotel steward."

"But that's no excuse at all! They fairly shrieked at me. 'There ought to be somebody to see that the fish served here isn't—' Oh, well, I shall spare you what they said about the fish. From the pinning glances that they all bestowed upon me it was plain to see that I had thought that I ought to be that somebody to inspect the fish."

"No use in my telling them that I had absolutely nothing to do with the management of the hotel; that I had never even set foot in the hotel kitchen, and so on. If I had told them those things they would have gone off among themselves and called me snippy and stuck up. Women living in an apartment hotel, you see, don't consider, it seems, that the hotel manager's wife has any right or license to live in the hotel as a guest. They take it that she ought to do something for her board and keep, and the 'something' that they plainly expect her to do is to startle all of their moans and wails over the terrible mismanagement."

"The hall outside my door hasn't been kept so clean a teakly old lady hurried to my apartment here to tell me while I was taking breakfast in my room the other morning. 'Yes! Have you seen the housekeeper about the water? She has helped me and she flared up instantly.'"

"No, I haven't seen the housekeeper," she retorted. "I am not accustomed to making complaints to servants."

"But the housekeeper has the management of the chambermaids in her hands," I told her as gently as I could.

"Well, the housekeeper doesn't attend to her business then," she came back at me, "and there ought to be somebody around here—fixing me with her bird's nest—so that she does attend to her duties."

"Perhaps, then," I suggested, "it might be well for you to make complaint to the hotel desk."

"What! You mean to say that she asked me, with every evidence of amazement in her expression, 'Am I not making my complaint here to you?'"

"But, madam, I had to say to her, 'I have nothing whatever to do with the management of this hotel. I have no more to do with its supervision than you have. Even if my health were ruined I doubt if he would permit me to serve as an attaché of the house.'"

"But at the same time she went off muttering that things about the women of these days never helping their husbands, but sitting around all day with their hands in their laps or reading novels, and she has been quite distressingly austere toward me ever since."

"The other evening I was at dinner in the dining room when one of the waiters who had been called in by me had only met once, left her table and swished over to mine."
