AND REC CANADA

Able Article by D. D. Mann on Canada and the Unite

(Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post), | On the President Taft expects a special session of Congress to complete a revision Alberta. of the tariff before midsummer. There poor qui is considerable interest in the subject duty on in Canada with regard to changes that may affect Canadian trade with the United States. But there is very much more interest in the United States as to what will be done for Canadian trade. on the My friend, Mr. J. J. Hill, has spoken form of everal times in favor of eliminating our United sustoms houses. The chairman of the Boston Chamber of Commerce recently proposed the destruction of the tariff wall between the two countries. While [ write, a conference of representative cles, a bodies in American cities is being called tax on at Detroit to consider reciprocity with Canada. All this is in marked contrast with what used to happen a short generation sgo. Canada asked the United States for reciprocity similar to that which abtained from 1854 to 1866. Eight times the negative answer came. To-day, Cauriend, but no suitor. There is a nation of difference between the situation of forty years ago, and the position in 1909. It is possible that the last chance of there being only one political power on this continent vanished when the former treaty was abrogated.

At that time Canadians feared tha the cutting off of their most direct market would ruin them. For a time, the situation was harmful, and it had something to do with the migration of some of the best young blood of the country to the United States. Instead of sending the I hay and grain across the St. Lawrence she farmers fed it to their stock at home, sold the produce as cheese and butter and their crops, instead of being exportwere kept at home to enrich it.

The abrogation of the treaty place gave to Canada ample opportunity to discover herself. Even the largest towns slong the border were of little account, and the most thriving communities were sither surrounded by, or on the edge of, the bush. Agriculture was in a pioneering condition, and commerce had scarcely any facilities for its own expansion. The forest, instead of being a source of gate. abundant wealth, was an encumbrance to oppo be cleared out of the way.

Canada, as Canada, had not begun expos to exist. The provinces were divided, porn geographically, politically, and social- the y. And as the Dominion had not come that into existence, the section of BRITISH NORTH AMERICA that was destined to become important | main for Canada, and for the British Empire generally, was indeed the Great Lone and the Great Unknown Land.

I have said that the difference be tween the reciprocity times of 1854-66 and to-day, is a whole nation of difference. Canada has arrived, not in the guise of a poor relation of Republic or Empire, but in the right of her own unlimited dower. You can no more rewert to the old Canadian idea of reciprocity, than you can replace the locomotive by the stage-coach. To discuss she possibility of the absorption of Can-I ada by the United States is utterly to forsake practical politics. You must realize that Canada is a nation so much bigwer than any tariff wall, that she can afford to be, as she is, undisturbed by

But that is not to say that the tariff is a closed book between Canada and the United States. "Natural resources" is another name for raw material. Hitherto, in considering tariffs, American statesmen have assumed the utmost exploitation of the country's natural resources. So they put a tax on Canadian coal, and iron ore, for instance. Now they are justly becoming alarmed at the depletion of the American supply of coal and iron ore. Broadly speaking, it seems to me that when this continent was laid out, severative without hindering the development of two kindred, but independent nations, within its coasts, interests would not object to the change. What they would lose in Bosion they would gain in Montreal and Optario. For, let this be observed-the present tax on United States coal hits and Erie, even though he cannot possibly buy other than Pennsyleania coal. Undoubtedly the duty restricts consumption. Remove it and consumption would increase.
