MISS MCRONALD.

Very sudden was the call that came to Miss McRonald, sister of Mr Jas. McRonald, South Bentinck. Saturday last she was around as usual, took tea with her brother and family, and afterwards walked across to their neighbors, Mr Wm Grierson. She had not been long in the house when she suddenly flung up her hands and tell from the chair on which she was sitting and at once expired. She had made her home with her brother during the past winter and had not been in very good health, but no fatal termination was looked for. The funeral took place on Monday to Durham cemetery. Rev. Dr. Farquharson conducted the services and many friends by their presence testified to their respect for the memory of the deceased lady.

----Victoria Day.

As the years pass, the observance of this day seems more extensive than ever. In England it was observed as never before. Everywhere, in Canada the day had a meaning and in many it had a message of loyalty to the very fine article summing up the growth of Empire since 1837, when Victoria began has since 1837, when in Priceville hall on "Some Changes draper in Aberdeen about sixty years Victoria began her reign, the closing last June the accused volunteered to paragraph of which we quote:

modern "Babes in the Woods" story aged respectively 5 and 7 years. On Friday morning it seems the youngsters left home to gather flowers in in the Greenock swamp, and as a preliminary step crossed over to their uncle's where they entered the massive swamp which adjoins his farm. That was the last that was seen of the two children until late Saturday afternoon. In the meantime the anxious parents were alarmed over the absence of their children, and the whole neighborhood from Kingarf to Riversdale were divided into search iparties and the Greenock swamp was patrolled all through Friday night and until late Saturday the missing ones. And a singular feature of the affair is the fact that the children came out of heir own accord, some four miles from the place they entered. Once or twice during Friday night they saw lights Our Summer Millinery Opening will and heard people yelling, but thinking they were tran:ps or rowdies of some sort, they crouched themselves in a bollow pine log where they lay concealed from the hunters and protected from the rain. The search was kept up the following day without avail, beginning to throw out signals of display. ock swamp is many hundreds of acres in area, and as bears, wild cats and other wild animals have been seen in
