> SUPPLY OF ARMY HORSES. Not Equal to Demand in England-

> > French and German Stables.

The adequate supply of horses for the army, it would scarcely be denied, is as essential to its efficiency as men and guns. Yet in this vital particular the Government, as in so many other questions relative to the defence of the country, have utterly failed to realize their responsibilities.

Sir Gilbert Parker is raising the point in one of its important aspects next week in the House of Commons. He has given notice to call the attention of the Secretary of State for War to the fact that German agents are extensively buying three-year-old horses suitable for army purposes in England, Ireland and Wales.

"There is no use disguising the fact," said an expert on English horse breeding, "that the country is rapidly being denuded of its best horses, and the position is becoming acute.

Not only the Germans, but practically every Continental country, has agents bent on securing the very pick of the available three-year-olds. They purchase especially young mares, which of course do not return to this country They are, therefore, reducing both in quality and number the supply of fouryear-olds obtainable by the home auth-

"The German adn French Governments realize the value of a plentiful supply. They have their own Government breeding establishments and encourage horse breeding by subsidy. I believe France pays something like 300,-000 francs a year in this respect. Then they take great care that only good stallions are employed. "The principal causes of the alarming scarcity-for I am convinced if war broke out to-morrow we have not a sufficient supply for the army-are the unprecedented buying of young horses by foreign agents, the fact that farmers are more and more giving up the breeding of horses, the increase in chanical traction, and the heavy demand for horses during the late South African war."-From the Pall Mall Gaze'te.

The ground clinkers are mixed with quick-lime and about 10 per cent, of water, to form a soft mortar, which is stored in brick cisterns for a day or two to insure the complete slaking of the lime, and then goes to the brick-making machine. The fresh bricks are placed in closed vessels and subjected for eight or ten hours to the action of steam at eight atmospheres pressure. When taken out the bricks are sufficiently hard for immediate use. The hardening is caused, as in the case of ordinary sand-lime brick, says the Scientific American, by the combination of the lime with the silica of the clinkers, at the high temperature of the second-class compartments by a vesti- steamer. The quality of the Nelson garbage brick is equal to that of good blue Staffordshire brick, except that it is rather more hygroscopic. Large building blocks and pavement tiles are made by similar processes.
