Belated despatches reaching Memphis early to-day confirm previous reports as to loss of life, personal injury and property damage from the storm which swept through North Alabama and Middle and West Tennessee last night. The casualties so far as known are three killed outright and approximately a score injured. As to the monetary loss an accurate estimate is as yet impossible. Later advices confirmed the report that Denmark, in Madison county. Tenn., had been practically wiped from the map, fire following the passage of the storm, continuing the work of destruction. To-day the town is nothing but a smouldering mass of debris, only a few buildings escaping the flames, and these are damaged by the wind to such an extent as to necessitate a complete rebuilding With the first gust of wind, besides numerous dwellings and more frail structures, eighteen substantial business houses were twisted into wreckage. Onickly following the passage of the storm came the fires, and for several hours, with the aid of primitive appliances, an effort was made to fight the flames, but to little avail.

The last despatches from Denmark told of the fire gradually burning itself
