

For Weal or for Woe;

Or, A Dark Temptation

Just what you need after a hard day's work—A Refreshing cup of

LIPTON'S TEA

Goes farthest for the money

A long time thought was maturing. Well, said the detective, as Percy Graville, whom people were seeing slowly at Bedouine Hall, which followed the visit of Ergen St. Claire to the Hall, Percy had written a long letter to Guy Gay, telling him to come back to him, because the place no longer belonged to him.

Moved me in the shadow of the Hedges near the west gate, where he had written to the doctor's express orders that he would not go home again. And, although it was widely at variance with the doctor's express orders that he would not go home again, he had written a week at least eight o'clock found him pacing slowly and down in the garden, his hands clasped behind his back.

The moments dragged slowly by, still no Gay appeared.

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever." "I shall rest my hopes upon you, Sir Guy. I cannot, I will not believe he is dead. He must be here since the light of Heaven指引 me that as yet he has not come to me."

"I will be able to trace the young lady if any one can," said the detective, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

"I have the utmost faith in your acknowledged ability," said Percy, gruffly, "but I have no hope whatever."

Just what you need after a hard day's work—A Refreshing cup of

HOME LIPTON'S TEA

Goes farthest for the money

HOME LIPTON'S TEA

Goes farthest for the money

LIPTON'S TEA