The Durham Review

THURSDAY, JUNE 3 1913

Face the Issue Squarely.

Liberal Majority in Senate refer Naval Tribute Bill to People.

"Moved by Sir George Ross, seconded by Hon. Hewitt Bostock, that this House is not justified in granting assent to this Bill until it is admitted to the judgment of the country."

This was the Senate's answer to the open and veiled threats of Premier Borden and his press that unless the Senate abandoned all claim to a share in the government of the country and dropped into the perille position of accepting any measure the government should propose he would take steps to remove or so alter the Senate as to make it a perfectly useless appendage of Parliament.

The motion was presented after prolonged and grave deliberation by the Liberal Senators. It was presented with a brilliant and patriotic speech by that veteran imperialist, Sir George Ross, and was received with unanimous applause by the Liberal Senators. It passed the Senate on Thursday night by a majority of 24 and Premier Borden now finds himself face to face with his pledges to appeal to the people if Parliament refused whatever he might demand as an emergency contribution to England.

It was a memorable scene and for once the Senate attracted the attention of the whole of Canada to the exclusion of the House of Commons. It was a scene made more memorable by the powerful stand taken against Premier Borden's policy by the very man whom Mr Borden in his Toronto speech had designated as "a sound Imperialist."

Sir George Ross, the Liberal leader also made it clear throughout his speech that the action of the Senate had not been dictated in the slightest degree by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, as Mr Borden had tried to insinuate. In ringing tones he denounced Mr Borden's remarks as offensive and declared:

NO DICTATION FROM LAURIER.

"We are not here to suit any premier, leader of the Opposition, or anybody else. We are here to do our own sweet will according to our judgment and good conscience" and then Sir George challenged Mr Borden to say definitely what his threats meant and not to "shoot darts into the air."

Some Striking Extracts from Speech of Liberal Leader Ross in the Senate.

"We do not assume to be above the Canadian people; the House of Commons is not above the Canadian people. I have seen in my short time four Houses of Commons put out of doors, and it may again happen. The sovereignty of the people is above the House of Commons."

"In 1909 parliament was united, on a common naval policy; both parties united. In 1910 there was a separation. We stayed by the ship. Somebody went off in a jolly-boat, or a life-boat—as a result of his alienation, for reasons which I do not question, for I do not know them, this navy Bill came down before us. No such bill could originate from a united parliament."

"When we joined with the other Dominions to fight for the Empire in South Africa we did not send empty uniforms. Uniforms we sent, to be sure, but there were 5,847 courageous Canadians inside of them. This Bill calls for money, not men; for models of steel and iron; for models of courage and daring; it appeals to no man's flesh and blood. Empty as an exploded cartridge, and hollow as its plated sides, it arouses no sympathy, no sentiment, no emotion of joy or glory. Our feelings, our judgment, our sense of duty to our country, all combine to ask for further delay in the hope that even at this late hour we may show to the whole world that the disrupting forces of party warfare have been submerged by the loyalty of a united nation in the naval defence of Canada and the Empire."

"The Liberals of East Grey in Convention last week, decided to offer no opposition to the return of Hon. I. B. Lucas, as the nomination rendered necessary by his elevation to the Treasury of Ontario. A wise move. We hope the Conservatives of North Grey will be equally courageous when a successor to Hon. A. G. Mackay has to be chosen."

"The London Times of May 1, 1913, says: 'The difference in methods which separates the proposals of Mr Borden's government from those of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, are not of vital importance. From a wider standard than any which the Admiralty can occupy the principle of Canada coming forward for the world wide naval defence of the British Empire is of inestimable value and that is the principle upon which I understand Liberals and Conservatives in Canada are at one.'"

"There is a rumor of a possible appeal to the Dominion Parliament for another national plebiscite upon the liquor question. Dr. Bzvin, of Orms-town, P. Q., brought the question before the Quebec Alliance at the last meeting. The Convention expressed its cordial approval of the suggestion that at Dominion elections a vote should be taken by an independent ballot paper on the question of prohibition. It is argued that this method would secure an expression of opinion free from partisan obligations. The matter is being talked about at Ottawa."

"Hon. Sydney Fisher is expected to have offered him the nomination in the riding of Chatham, and thus he may for he is likely to win, be an M. P. once more."

The Road Movement

(From "Canadian Farm")

By Geo. Binnie, Bunnassan

The question of good roads is a very important one and "Canadian Farm" does well in having it ventilated through its columns. Every body should be interested in good roads—the city dweller as well as the country farmer—and I think everyone would be willing that good roads should be constructed all over the country as far as the financial side of the question will allow. But there is on this as well as every other question a good deal of nonsense spoken and written.

We are often compared, with the conditions found in Britain and other nations of Europe. It is quite true that in these countries are found magnificent roads, constructed in the most scientific manner, solidly built and smoothly finished. They are kept in splendid repair by gangs of men who are on the roads the year round on the look-out for the least necessity for repairs. That is all true; but they are at least a thousand years older than we are, and this should be taken into consideration when making the comparison. It would be no discredit to Canada if she were behind, a long way behind, in the matter of roads. Give us half the time and in five hundred years we may be fully abreast with Great Britain in the matter of good roads.

Yet it would be advisable to commence at once and get some few of the roads in good repair. There are some parts of the country where improvements are more necessary than others. In a flat clay district as the south western part of Ontario, the roads sometimes get extremely bad, when it is hardly possible to get to market or anywhere else. But in the county of Grey we have few mud roads and never have any difficulty in getting over them, except when the snow is too deep. Most of the heavy work is done in winter on the snow and we do not feel so much the necessity of better roads. Yet improvements would be acceptable if they do not cost too much.

In any good roads scheme, the first thing necessary is to do away with the statute labor system. It has served its day and served it well but it does not now meet the problem of road making in the greater part of Ontario. Its chief failure is perhaps not in faulty road construction or a waste of time and energy, bad as all that may be; but largely in not being able to look after the roads during the whole season. Some time ago the province set apart a large sum of money to assist in road making. Any county that would construct roads up to a set standard would receive out of that fund one third of the cost of the work. A number of counties took advantage of this plan and built a large mileage of road. But I fear it has not been a brilliant success.

To lay the cost of building and maintaining all the roads under a good roads system on the municipalities would be too great a burden. Unless compelled to do so things would be pretty much as they are. But the people will not submit to any such arbitrary method under any scheme and the power that tried it would soon be swept right out of the way. But if we are gently led along the path of least resistance we may willingly do a great deal in the accomplishment of anything that is good.

The roads are vested in the Province and under its exclusive jurisdiction. The Dominion could have no authority—perhaps not even from the province—to interfere with them even for the purpose of improvement. But there can be no doubt of the province accepting money from the Dominion and expending it in that way. It would be wisdom for the Dominion, the Province and Municipalities to get together and devise some sensible plan whereby all three would do their share in the very large contract of constructing and maintaining good roads. The Dominion to provide their share of the money; the Province to construct and maintain the leading roads, leaving the rest to the municipalities. Of course improvements should be done gradually until the machinery begins to run smoothly and free from friction.

Priceville

Intended for last week

Quite a number took advantage of Victoria Day, some going hither and thither. From Toronto we notice Miss Alice McDougall visiting friends on the south line, Glenelg and McInnes, daughter of John McInnes of Calgary and Edna Beaton, daughter of the late Jas. Beaton, of Toronto at Donald McDonald's, Wm. Conkey, of Guelph, an old time resident of Priceville, at his brother's family. Mrs Robt. Conkey: Mr Lane and mother, brother and mother of Dr. Lane of this place, at the Doctor's; Mr and Mrs John Hargrave, of Dundalk, at some friends in town and country; Laura and Ella McKinnon, of Owen Sound, at their home at the post office; Donald McKinnon, mail clerk J. P. K. at home for a day.

Mr and Mrs Cross, of Toronto, moved to Mrs Cross's old home at the townline (Sara McDonald) where they intend to put up for some time.

Some went fishing on Saturday, while others didn't know it was a holiday and went to town with their old clothes, probably their knees projecting through their pants.

Mr Robt. Shortreed visited friends at Galt and other places on Saturday. Mrs McLachlan is under the Dr's care again at her daughter's Mrs Shortreed, south line, Glenelg.

Quite a racket in town one evening lately—two young lads came in contact with water that had an insubstantial effect and we understand the law had to be applied to pacify them from the effect of partaking too freely. Too bad that young lads indulge in what makes their senses from them.

Clerk Bellamy, of Artemesia and the Principal of Flesheron school, spent Saturday afternoon taking observations of our town by going from street to street, but still they didn't get lost.

The weather keeps cool and in fact Monday 24th inst., was as cold a day as we had for some time.

Peter McArthur closed his business at the store Monday and he and Mr Pattison will be busy for a few days taking stock.

Mr and Mrs Brauder are away visiting at the Rev. Mr Campbell's, formerly of Bromore, Mrs Campbell was Dr. Brander, who served faithfully for years in Priceville and surroundings, attending the sick and was very successful in her treatment. Gaelic in the Presbyterian church again next Sunday. No service on the 8th June, as the pastor will be away at the Assembly in Toronto.

Miss Lizzie Mather is away visiting friends down the country.

Mr Otto Konold is again shipping a cartload of hogs and cattle this Tuesday morning.

This Week's Budget.

We wrote the foregoing part for last week but somehow it did not get to the post office.

The funeral of Mrs McCannel was largely attended on Wednesday, the 28th May. She was a long resident of the south line and endeared herself to everyone that proved her acquaintance. As already seen we will not say much more, as some one else will be giving an account from Swinton Park. Mr Alex McCannel, brother-in-law and Alex McCannel, nephew, from Bruce, attended the funeral. The Rev. Mr Matheson preached a suitable discourse at the funeral.

Maple Grove

It is a long time since you heard from our little burg.

A number from here attended the funeral of the late Mrs. McCannel, of Durham last Thursday.

Mr. Conkey and niece Miss Emma visited at Mr. Archie Conkey's one day recently.

Mr. A. C. MacLean and little girl have arrived home after a visit with Chatsworth friends.

Mrs. Shuttleworth and two children of Toronto also Mrs. Ferguson and daughter of Holstein visited their brother F. MacKinnon over the holiday.

Messrs Pearson and MacDonald have been working on Mr. P. F. McArthur's barn.

Mr. Dan Campbell has rented Mr. McArthur's farm for the coming year.

Crawford

Miss Mary McDougall from Windsor is home to visit at her brother's Mr Archie McDougall's.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boyce and Rena visited at Mr. Robt. McCash's of Louise last Saturday.

Miss Annie Hobkirk returned home from Toronto Saturday. Mrs. D. H. McDonald and two children accompanied her from Toronto.

Union service will be held in the Presbyterian church, Sunday, June 8, at 10 o'clock in the morning. Mr. Leadley of Elmwood will conduct the service.

The W. H. M. S. of the Pres. congregation will hold their monthly meeting at the manse in Elmwood on June 9th.

Mr. and Mrs. Fishier from Normanby spent over Sunday at his brother's Mr. Geo. Fishier of this place.

Rev. Robt. Ledingham and wife from—visited at his sister's Mrs. Ed. Boyce last week.

Mrs. Will Lamont and two children of Brant visited at her father's, Mr. Alex McDonald for a few days last week.

SOWING HIS WILD OATS REAPING A HARVEST OF SORROW

How many young men can look back on their early life and regret their wild oats? "Sowing their wild oats" in various ways. Excesses, violation of nature's laws, "wine, women and song"—all have their victims. You have reformed but what about the seed you have sown—what about the harvest? Don't trust to luck. If you are at present within the clutches of any secret habit which is sapping your life by degrees; if you are suffering from the results of past indiscretions; if your blood has been tainted from any private disease and you dare not marry; if you are married and live in dread of symptoms breaking out and exposing your past; if you are suffering as the result of a misstep taken confidentially and they will tell you honestly if you are curable.
