

ROSY CHEEKS STRONG NERVES

Should be the Birthright of Every Woman and Growing Girl.

Many women and growing girls who should have bright rosy cheeks, strong nerves and elastic step, and a good appetite, are seen to decline in health. Their spirits grow sluggish, the cheeks become pale tenuous, and the nerves over-sensitive. They must have inherited a tendency to ill-health, or they may have over-worked, over-studied or worried until the strength of the body was not equal to the demands made upon it.

To guard against a complete breakdown in health the blood must be kept pure and rich. No other medicine can do this so well as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. For they act both on the blood and nerves, restore the appetite and keep every organ toned up. All women cannot rest whenever they should, but this strengthening medicine is within every woman's reach, and will keep them in the enjoyment of good health. And it is especially important that in every stage of woman's life the blood supply be kept pure and rich. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is well illustrated by the case of Mrs. David Chambers, Bensford, Ont., who says:

"Some years ago I suffered greatly from impoverished blood. I was very pale and thin, and had no strength. I took a lot of doctor's medicine without getting any benefit, and at last decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which I had heard highly recommended. It was not long before I began to feel better, and after taking the Pills for perhaps a couple of months my health was fully restored, and although some years have passed I have continued strong and healthy, and I think I owe it entirely to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

"Sometime later my daughter, then about twelve years of age, had been working very hard at school and her health gave way. She was weak and listless and her hands and face were badly swollen and we feared dropsy was setting in. However, we started to give her Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and she was soon quite well again. I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to any suffering as we did, knowing the benefit our family received from them."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Correcting a Husband.

A colored woman went to the pastor of her church the other day to complain of the conduct of her husband, who, she said, was a low-down, worthless trifling fellow. After listening to a long recital of the delinquencies of her neglected spouse and the efforts to correct them, the minister said: "Have you ever tried heating coals of fire upon his head?" "No," was the reply, "but I done tried hot water."

"You can't sit up with my daughter after 11 o'clock." "Would you mind telling her, that, sir? I have been trying to get home early for six months."

Lachne Locks, Quebec.—"I had itching commencing with my legs and increasing gradually until it reached all parts of my body. There were small pimples on my legs and arms and the skin was red and inflamed all over the body and itched and burned so badly that I scratched and made sores. It caused me so much pain that I kept me from sleeping during entire nights. I was troubled with it for about two years."

"After having tried several remedies without success I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and from the first application I felt a great relief. I continued the treatment taking warm baths with Cuticura Soap followed by the application of Cuticura Ointment, and at the end of a few weeks the trouble had disappeared completely and I was cured." TORTURE IN CALCUTTA.

Police Make No Attempt to Stop Fanatic Boiling Penance. An extraordinary scene was witnessed in Calcutta recently, when a small trolley, studded with rows of iron spikes on which a Hindu was lying at full length, was being pulled through the streets. A large crowd was following. Inquiries elicited the information that the man was doing penance, and was on his way to the temple of the goddess Kali, at Kalighat. The Hindu had been several days on the journey, and was in a terrible condition.

The spikes, which numbered about 150, were quite sharp, and the man wore only a loin cloth. He must have been suffering acute pain from the fact that his body was bruised and lacerated all over as a result of lying on the sharp nails. Neither the police nor any passer-by made any attempt to stop the self-imposed torture.

WHEN ROME RULED.

Woman Enjoyed Privileges She Has Never Regained.

"Under the Roman empire," an Italian historian said recently, woman arrived at a point of freedom and dignity which she later lost and has never regained. "Under the empire women were physicians and lawyers. They engaged in all kinds of retail and wholesale trade. They were barbers and charioteers and as vestal virgins of the state. They were innkeepers and shopkeepers. "In the law courts woman after woman won fame and fortune. They cared for the sick and in religion they were most highly honored. They drove chariots in the arena, and they fought in the arena."

Apparently their freedom extended in all ranks of life and in three particulars their condition was really remarkable. To quote again this same Italian: "Women possessed unexampled property rights. Also their right to education was never questioned, and a single standard of morality existed for men and women."

It seems that when a woman in the days of the empire married she still retained absolute legal independence. Her dowry went to her, and her property was held in her own right independently of her husband. In this way large sums of money accumulated in the hands of the women, and as a result they often lent money to their husbands at high rates of interest. Then, too, the husbands often became business men who did nothing but look after their wives' estates. Again, in education there was no discrimination. When small, boys and girls were educated together and later the girls of prosperous parents were provided with tutors. From all that can be learned the enthusiasm of the Roman women for learning was great, though there are proofs to show that the Roman man did not entirely like the educated woman.

Morally also woman seemed in command of the situation, for the single standard was in force. A certain judge said to a husband as he issued a decree against the wife: "Provided always it is established that by your life you gave her an example of fidelity. It is unjust for a husband to exact from his wife a fidelity that he himself does not keep."

Bright, or Lazy.

"Johnny, I don't believe you've studied your geography!" "No mum; I heard pa say the map of the world was changing every day an' I thought I'd wait a few years till things got settled."

WELL SATISFIED WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Mrs. John Kenny, St. Norbert, Man., says: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets and am well satisfied with them." Thousands of other mothers say the same thing simply because there is no medicine for little ones to equal the Tablets. They act as a gentle laxative, regulate the bowels and stomach, break up colds, expel worms and make teething easy. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

LEAVE EARS TO NATURE.

Doctor Explains How They Are Kept Clean From Inside. The upper passage of the ear does not need regular clearing by its owner. Nature understands the task and in a healthy ear does it perfectly.

Nature's means for clearing the ear is the wax, which dries up into thin scales and peels off and falls away imperceptibly. In health the passage of the ear is never dirty, but an attempt to clean it will infallibly make it so. Washing the ear with soap and water is bad; it keeps the wax moist when it ought to become dry and makes it absorb dust.

But the most hurtful thing is the introduction of a corner of a towel, screwed up and twisted around. This proceeding irritates the passage and presses down the wax and flakes of skin upon the membrane of the tympanum, producing pain, inflammation and deafness. The washing should only extend to the outer surface, as far as the fingers can reach. "An old doctor used to say: 'You will be on the safe side if you don't put anything smaller than your thumb in your ear.'"

SELECTS HIS OWN STYLES.

Prince of Wales Refuses to Comply With Fashionable Customs.

The Prince of Wales is yet too young to be "arbitrarily elegant," but the time may come. At present our fashionable youths are much perturbed because they do not find that the Prince sets the seal of his approval on their taste in elegant attire, writes a London correspondent. While they are especially punctilious in the observance of certain modes the Prince makes a point, it might almost be said, of ignoring these customs. For example, he invariably wears his gloves buttoned, and never leaves the ends open and tucked down over the wrist, as is the custom of the young "swell."

He wears a stand up turned down collar with a frock or morning coat simply because that sort of collar is more comfortable than the plain stand up collar. Several members in the royal household, it may be mentioned, have lately followed the young Prince's example in this matter and have discarded the stand up collar altogether in the evening; by general consent a stand up collar with small wings looks smarter in the evening than a turned down collar and such a collar is always worn by the Prince.

The taste of the Prince in the matter of socks, however, delights the heart of the youth of fashion, for he frankly confesses to a taste for gaily patterned socks. These socks are made to order from designs that are submitted to the Prince, who has two or three pairs made to go with each of his suits. The dress bills of the Prince are naturally beginning to rise, but nevertheless, he does not throw money away on clothes. He generally orders half a dozen suits at a time, and does this at most three times a year. Though the Prince is "fitted" at his tailor's when necessary his tailors have an accurate model of his figure and one fitting is the most that is necessary.

The heir apparent has a great liking for soft shirts and wears ordinary white shirts as seldom as possible. His favorite day attire is a knicker-suit and soft shirt and collar, and directly he gets out of London he gets into such a suit as early as possible.

In the matter of walking sticks the Prince bids fair to exceed his grandfather's famous collection in number and interest, but of the thirty walking sticks he possesses the Prince rarely carries any but a given crooked gold mounted stick given him by the Kaiser when he came over to attend King Edward's funeral.

This particular stick at Oxford is known as the "Prince's Crook," a designation that when it reached the ears of the Princess Mary, she at once gave to the stick.

"LIKE MAGIC."

New Food Makes Wonderful Changes.

When a man has suffered from dyspepsia so many years that he can't remember when he had a natural appetite, and then hits on a way out of trouble he may be excused for saying "it acts like magic."

When it is a simple, wholesome food instead of any one of a large number of so called remedies in the form of drugs, he is more than ever likely to feel as though a sort of miracle has been performed.

A Western man, in the delight of restored digestion, puts it in this way: "Like magic, fittingly describes the manner in which Grape-Nuts relieved me of poor digestion, coated tongue and loss of appetite, of many years' standing."

"I tried about every medicine that was recommended to me, without relief. Then I tried Grape-Nuts on the suggestion of a friend. By the time I had finished the fourth package, my stomach was all right, and for the past two months, I have been eating with a relish, anything set before me. That is something I had been unable to do previously for years."

"I am stronger than ever and I consider the effects of Grape-Nuts on a weak stomach as something really wonderful. It builds up the entire body as well as the brain and nerves." Name given by the Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Doctor Said He Had Diabetes

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS CLEAR-ED OUT EVERY TRACE OF IT.

That's Why Mr. David Heon, of Nicolet Co., Quebec, Is Recommending the Great Canadian Kidney Remedy To His Neighbors.

St. Venecelas, Nicolet Co., Quebec, May 23 (Special).—"I started to take Dodd's Kidney Pills because the doctor told me I was threatened with diabetes. After taking ten boxes I was again examined by the doctor, and he told me that all trace of diabetes had disappeared." This is the statement of Mr. David Heon, well-known and highly respected here, and he is only one of many in this neighborhood who have found a new lease of life in the great Canadian Kidney Remedy.

It is cures such as this that have given Dodd's Kidney Pills their reputation. They are now known from the Atlantic to the Pacific as the remedy that never fails to cure kidney disease, no matter where or in what form it is found. Dodd's Kidney Pills are no cure-all. They simply cure diseased kidneys. The reason they cure backache, dropsy, rheumatism, neuralgia, diabetes, urinary troubles and Bright's disease is that all these are either diseases of the kidneys or are caused by disordered kidneys failing to do their work.

LUCKY ORPHANS IN JAPAN.

Government Gives Splendid Care to Its Destitute Children.

There are few foundlings in Japan, it is said, occasionally an abandoned baby may be found in the streets of a large city like Tokio, but never in the smaller towns. For the babies who reach the asylum there is what is called the placing-out department, and they go immediately to a home in some village where they can have fresh air and a mother's care. For this the mother, who takes the strange baby, is paid four yen a month. This amounts to $2 of our money, but has the purchasing power of $4 in Japan. The baby is supplied with clothes by the asylum authorities.

A second department is the Suggamo or school where the asylum children are instructed from the tiny tots who go to the kindergarten to the elementary students, and from which they go to homes found for them as far as possible in the villages. There they become members of the family, the girl learning household duties, as well as some feminine occupation, hair-dressing, making flowers, toys, and needlework. The boys learn to be fishermen, farmers, carpenters, masons and dyers. There is a six-year compulsory education law in Japan, and the children must attend day or evening school up to the thirteenth year.

The asylum holds the position of guardian to all the children coming under its care until they are 20, receiving reports as to the welfare of the children who go into homes and visiting them occasionally. Frequently a child will be legally adopted by the family in which it has been placed, and the asylum responsibility ends.

Day nurseries in Japan are all private institutions under the care of Japanese women. There is one at Tokio, one at Osaka, and four at Kobe, on the coast. One advantage which the Japanese day nurseries have is that they have grounds, and the children spend their time out of doors in good weather.

Mr. Takata has made a study of institutions for the feeble-minded in this country, but there is a small proportion of such children in his country, he says. There is one private institution for them, accommodating from 60 to 100 in Tokio, and experiments are being made in the treatment of children only a little below normal.

ENFRANCHISING ITS WOMEN.

Portugal's Divorce Laws Give Equal Rights to All.

Portugal will probably be the first Latin country to enfranchise its women, says the National, the leading Radical-Republican newspaper, in an article recently in which it reviewed the various laws enacted for the benefit of women since the inauguration of the Republic three years ago.

Less than two months after the overturning of the monarchy, the divorce laws, which before had withheld from women the right to petition for dissolution of marriage under any circumstances, were so amended that they now enjoy equal privilege in the courts with men.

A little later a law was passed, similar to the new French law, holding the fathers of illegitimate children responsible for their support, as well as for the support of the mothers. The marriage laws also were reformed, one phrase of especial significance being incorporated, that "conjugal society is based on the freedom and equality of both parties."

The wife's freedom is safeguarded in many ways; for instance, the husband may not take his wife into another country to live without her consent. Women may now publish their own manuscripts without their husband's consent, which was forbidden under the old regime, and both wives and husbands may now sue third parties in the courts without each other's permission.

Women teachers who were formerly liable to dismissal upon marriage, are now not only continued in their positions, but are granted one month's leave with full pay before the prospective birth of a child and two months' leave after the event.

"Even when I was young I was not robust and healthy like other girls. I suffered from headaches, and had sort of blue feelings, and I was very nervous, and I was very poor color, and this account for my poor color, my tiredness, languor and despair. The pills the doctor gave me were too purgative, made me weaker because they were too active for my constitution. Doctors of my friends recommended Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and they were so mild and helpful. Well, I never used a pill that acted so quietly as Dr. Hamilton's. They were so comfortable to use, I was afraid they would not help. But in a week I knew they had been actively engaged in cleaning up my system. They did the work of a tonic and blood medicine combined. I improved to a surprising degree with Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and I now maintain the most perfect kind of health by using them just once or twice a week." It is Mrs. V. E. Erlanger, well known at Gloucester, who relates the above experience. She proved that you and all others, men and women, can prove that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are best for restoring health and best for keeping the system in perfect running order.
