Cheap Living. But No Rush.

The increasing cost of living is a world-wide phenomenon, but there are spots that have remained unaffected by it. A British traveller informs an eager world that the cheapest place to live in is north-western Syria, and especially Antioch. He lived there a whole winter on a pound a week, though he had a fine house and servants. A friend had told him that one could live there comfortably on $200 a year.

EUROPEAN GOSSIP

Prince Arthur of Connaught has taken Lord Plymouth's house in Mount Street for a number of years. It is a particularly fine Mayfair mansion, Lord Plymouth having spent a great deal of money in improving it, and specially for the display of his art treasures. It has a fine stair-HAPPENINGS FROM ALL OVER case and hall. The neighborhood of Grosvenor House Gardens and the Park offers fine views and more airiness than is enjoyed by the other houses in the Turkey's Policy.

The Turke now confess that the crossing of the Maritza is merely a diplomatic manoeuvre. The object of it is to extort recognition of the new position in Thrace, but the manoeuvre is not likely to succeed. The Powers have decreed that Turkey shall not retain the reoccupied province, and do not intend to go back on their decision. On the other hand, they do not mean to enforce it. Even Rusels finest is against the method of the "strong hand." In the long run Turkey will find it worth while to give way of her own so Ex-Ald. A. R. Whyte, of the cord.
