

Bright, Ruddy Checks For Pale Girls
So Longer Any Need to Be Pale, Weak or Anemic.

By Following the Advice of Miss McEwen You Can Quickly Become Strong Again.

The pallid girl always looks unhappy. What little she eats is badly digested. At night she is restless, she does not sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be supplied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton has invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up young women as the vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butterbur.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption, additional nourishment is also supplied and the patient's fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is the girl that assists her system by the use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The following recent letter from Miss Mrs. McEwen, of Hamilton, speaks for itself.

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now good appetite, sleep more soundly, and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

Formerly I felt tired and depressed, looked as if a fever illness were hanging over my head.

Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them.

Sweet Sally Smiled.
Sir Samuel Sims saw sweet Sarah swimming. Suddenly she seemed sinking. Sir Samuel stood stunned.

Striding seaward, spurning wetting surf, Sir Samuel swiftly swam Sarah-wards. Sir Samuel skillfully supported swooning Sarah; swimming shorewards, Sir Samuel successfully saved Sarah.

Seeming somewhat shakily, Sir Samuel sampled some spirits special Scotch.

Sir Samuel saw sweet Sarah's sweetness. Sarah saw Sir Samuel's self-sacrificing spirit.

Sir Samuel soon sought sweet Sarah, striding slowly. Sarah sighed; Sir Samuel seemed speechless.

"Say something, Sir Samuel," said Sarah.

"Say 'Sam,' Sarah," said Sir Samuel.

Sarah, smiling softly, said "Sam."

"Sarah-Sally," stammered Sir Samuel. "Sweet Sarah—sweet heart!"

Sarah smilingly surrendered.

"Of course," said the hubby, pretending to have remembered all the time, "it's the anniversary of our wedding day, dear."

"No such thing," the wife answered the wife. "It's the day you promised to nail the leg on that old kitchen table."

Minard's Liniment Co., Carterhall, N.Y.
Dear Sirs—While in the country last summer, I was afflicted by insect bites, and I thought I would be disgraced for a couple of weeks. I was advised to try your liniment to allay the irritation, and did so. The effect was more than I expected, and I am completely cured. I am now able to go about as usual. I am a great admirer of your liniment. It is a good article to keep off the mosquitoes.

Yours truly, W. A. V. R.

But the buffet table out in the sunshine, at the zinc table, on the gravel, is the real zoo tea. Children at Every Table.
Nailed to one of the trees is a large white board on which in black letters is detailed the tariff. Every chair is occupied, and the parties of trippers from the provinces and the Londoners have all brought their children. The cups and saucers and plates are so thick that they defy any attempt to break them; the bread and butter is thick also, and this is all the better for a zoo appetite, and the children do not grumble that the cake is cut in great wedges. The children are the important people at the zoo tea; there are one or two of them at every table.

THE TEA DRINKING HABIT
THE ONLY FASHIONABLE BEVERAGE IN LONDON.

Society Women Meet Amid Brilliant Surroundings of Big Tea Rooms.

Nowhere is the "tea habit" quite so universal as in London. English people have always had the habit, but it was not until the last decade that they indulged therein in the sight of all men. Society women used to ask each other to come to tea in their houses, and a few men, a very few men, drank tea in the afternoon at their clubs, writes a London correspondent.

Every pastry shop and bakery in London is crowded nowadays at 4.30 with ladies drinking tea and eating cakes; in the restaurants look to the tea hour as one of their great sources of income; there are tea parlours in all the parks and public gardens and in all the streets which are the homes of men who live by brain work the tea shops have sprung up like mushrooms and are driving the bars out of existence.

In the clubs the man who drinks a whiskey and soda in the afternoon is the exception; the man who drinks tea is the rule. A glance into some of the temples of goddess of tea may prove of interest. It is mid-afternoon in the palm lounge at the Carlton restaurant. The string band is playing on the raised terrace before the entrance to the restaurant. The double glass roof which takes the place of a ceiling so filters the light, whether by day or night, that there are no sharp contrasts, but always a general, diffused brilliancy. The pillars of creamy marble with gilt capitals and little dependent medallions of Wedgwood ware, the windows of the corridors of the upper stories, the walls light in color, make a charming background to a charming scene.

Luxurious Surroundings.
Looking over the flowers and evergreens which are banked up against the terrace, the floor space seems to be a living bed of blossoms, with here and there a palm rising from it. The flowers are all amove, for they are the hats of the pretty women who sit in the green cane chairs and drink tea and eat cakes and chatter to one another.

The men—for, of course, there is a reasonable sprinkling of the unimportant sex—are the dark-colored dots amid the rainbow sea.

There are small tea parties and large tea parties, the latter grouped at three or four tables, the hostess moving from table to table to chat with her guests. And the waiters threading the maze of tables and chairs carry silver trays with delicate china cups and saucers and plates with thin slices of bread and butter on them, and little wicker stands with as many stories as a pagoda, and on each story different delicacies prepared by the patissier, and wooden platters on which are the cakes of every imaginable kind.

No tea party given in a private house has such luxurious surroundings. All that the hostess has to do is to ask in the morning that tables for her guests shall be reserved, and when they have left, as dinner time comes near, to pay the bill of half a crown a head which the head waiter will present to her.

Saturday Tea at the Zoo.
And now another tea-cup scene. Time, Saturday afternoon; place, the Zoo. The fellows of the society take tea in a lordly pavilion, with the camels as the neighbors, on one side and the llamas on the other. The visitors flock to a space which is bounded on one side by the platforms from which the children climb onto the howdahs of the elephants, and on the other by the cages of the vultures. There is a terrace with an awning over it, and a building containing refreshment rooms, and a shelter, and in these comparatively aristocratic enclosures, tea, bread and butter and a free attack on a plate of pastry is offered at a shilling.

But the buffet table out in the sunshine, at the zinc table, on the gravel, is the real zoo tea. The band is playing in the handstand quite close at hand—a real military band in uniform—the big elephants and the two small elephants, with red hound dogs and howdahs like the tops of jaunting cars, move down the wide path in full sight, with loads of small children strapped on, and then return to disembark their passengers; the camels and dromedaries also go for short walks with smaller crews of tiny persons, and the llamas, harnessed to miniature carriages, stand hard by waiting to be hired.

Hurrah, No More Lame Backs!
This Case Proves That The Best and Strongest Linctum Ever Made Is Nerviline.

When it comes to determining the real merit of a medicine, no weight of evidence is more convincing than that of a straight-forward statement of some reliable and well-known person who has been cured. For this reason we print the verbatim statement of Juan E. Powell, who wrote from his home in Carleton. "I am a strong, powerful man, six feet tall, and weigh nearly two hundred. I have been accustomed all my life to lift great weights, but one day I got tired and was overworked. Every tendon and muscle was sore. To stoop or bend was agony. I had a whole bottle of Nerviline rubbed on in one day, and by night I was well again. I know of no liniment possessing case-halt penetration and pain-reducing properties of Nerviline. I urge its use strongly as an invaluable minor ailment, such as strains, sprains, swellings, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, and muscular pain."

No better medicine for curing pain was ever put in a bottle than Nerviline—rub it on and rub it in—take out all aches, pains, and cures. Large family size, 50c. trial size 25c. all dealers, or The Cataract Co., Buffalo, N.Y., or Kingston, Ont.

Historic Battleground.
Greeks and Bulgarians have been coming into conflict in the neutral zone and the spot is associated with more famous names than almost any other even in the Balkans. Here Bacchus avenged himself, who the Thracian King Lycurgus, who had banished him and his worship by driving the king mad, so that he cut off his own legs, thinking they were those of his subjects, who wanted to have Bacchus (and wine) again. Seated on this mountain Orpheus charmed the trees and beasts. On the southwest it looks toward Amphipolis, for which Athens and Spartans struggled (Thucydides was banished from Athens for losing it as general); and on the northeast Philippopolis, where the earthquake related to Paul and Silas in prison, and Brutus and Caesar's ghost met again.

ADOPT KNIGHT MOTOR EXCLUSIVELY.
London General Omnibus Decision.
Perhaps the most striking tribute to the Knight Motor has received is contained in the following item of news published in the "Automobile" of August 7th, as follows:
"According to definite news published to-day, the big London General Omnibus Co., which has 2,600 motor omnibuses on the London streets, has been so thoroughly satisfied with the service given by the 300 Knight-rigged Daimler 'buses which have been running for twelve months past that they have decided to replace gradually all the poppet engines in their 2,300 'buses with Knight Motors. The 'buses in question are greatly favored by the public on account of their silence and smooth-running qualities, while the great power of acceleration enables the driver to pick his way through traffic to very best advantage. With the result that the Knight Motor has now been selected as standard for future work. In view of the fact that the daily run of a London 'bus is 110 miles of very strenuous work, it must be admitted that the success achieved here is very notable indeed."

The London General Omnibus Company is one of the most efficiently managed commercial companies in the world. It has spent hundreds of thousands of pounds in developing a type of motor 'bus most suitable to London traffic, and its adoption of the Knight, not only as a standard for future new 'buses, but to replace the poppet valve motors in the 'buses on the streets, is the most striking feature the Knight Engine has ever had.

MONKEY CLEVERNESS.
Some Remarkable Feats Performed By These Animals.
Whether animals can actually reason or not is a perpetually debated question. Occasionally, as in the case of George Jannison shows in the Manchester Guardian, it is decidedly difficult to explain the doings of some animals on the ground of mere instinct.

For cleverness, even dogs and elephants must give way to monkeys. For the last thirty years or so have pumped their own water or drawn it from a well. Each learns from the others in the cage. Mr. Fitzsimons of Port Elizabeth gives the chamea baboon of South Africa a very high place. It is sometimes used, he says, "instead of a boy to lead the front span of oxen," and he wants us to believe that it can be trained to do anything that a boy can. Our own young specimen is certainly very clever; in a day it learned to use a slot machine; and it will not put more than a single penny in an empty machine. In was, I believe, a monkey of this species that was fitted with a pair of spectacles in Breslau Gardens, and perfectly appreciated their use.

Ordinary bolts are quite useless to imprison orang-utans, and a nail at the head of the bolt is so ineffectual that our keepers always fastens the bolts with a screw. The beasts probably draw the bolts and nail by chance at first, but they quickly learn how to repeat the trick.

Indiscriminate feeding is bad for apes, and we keep them behind double bars, as much out of harm's way as possible. But people insist on trying to feed them, and a large number of nuts fall in front of the cages, apparently out of reach of the animals. One day a chimpanzee passed his blanket through the bars, threw it on the nuts, and dragged them in. We took away the blankets and gave him a stick, with which he also got the nuts by sweeping them toward the cage. But he could never learn the advantage of a crooked handle.

Herr Kerbert tells me their orang-utan has gone a step further. There are palms in the ape-house, and the orang-utan used a strip of blanket to get palm-leaves. When the palms were put further away, the ape tore the strip of blanket down the middle, almost not quite in two, so that it was nearly twice as long. With this he could reach the palm-leaves again.

Apes understand the action of a lock. We taught the first Consul to unlock his door, and it was amusing to see him choose the right key and let himself out. But the experience taught us never to teach another. Twice he was found at large in the gardens; he must have opened with tools of his own two simple locks, and then unbolted a door.

Mr. Hagenbeck tells me that a chimpanzee, about two years ago,
