GOOD BLOOD THE SECRET OF HEALTH

To Be Healthy You Must Keep the Blood Rich, Red and Pure

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are useful in any disease caused by thin or impure blood, and the list of such diseases is astonishingly large. Anaemia literally means a condition in which the blood is thin and watery. Chlorosis is a form of anaemia most common to growing girls. In rheumatism the blood becomes thin more rapidly than in any other disease. After an attack of the grippe or acute fevers the blood is always thin and impure, and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the tonic to use during convalescence. When the blood is poor and thin the stomach suffers. The food ferments, gas and certain acids form and the trouble is pronounced indigestion or dyspepsia. The nerves receive from the blood all of their nourishment to keep up their energy and repair waste or damage. Some forms of paralysis are caused by thin blood. The progress of locomotor ataxia is stopped in many cases when the blood is made pure, rich and red. This is only a partial list of the troubles having their origin in impure, watery blood, and all can be cured by supplying the blood with its missing constituents.

This is exactly what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills do. Their chief mission is to make rich, red blood, and this good blood reaches every organ and every nerve in the human body, thus driving out disease and bringing renewed health and strength to thousands of weak, dependent people.

Ask your neighbors. There is not an inhabitant of Canada where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not restored some sufferer, and all over this country there are grateful people who do not hesitate to say they owe health—in some cases life itself—to this great medicine. If you are ailing begin to cure yourself to-day by using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

Sold by all dealers in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

FROSTPROOF POTATO FOUND.

New Zealand Plant Cannot Be Affected by Cold.

A new blightproof and frost resisting potato has been discovered by John Harris of Raetihi, New Zealand. The discovery is said to be the most important one in agriculture for many years, and the Agricultural Department of the New Zealand Government has investigated the phenomenon and admitted that the properties claimed for the new potato are beyond question.

Mr. Harris has been experimenting with potatoes for years, and some time ago he noticed a healthy stalk growing among a crop of Northern Stars and El Dorados, all of which were affected by blight. He took up the root of the healthy plant, and finding it in a perfect state began to experiment. The result is that a potato now called the New Era has been grown. The plant was carefully nourished and tended, and for several seasons a new crop was propagated from the seeds of the previous crop. The variety has been placed under the closest observation, but on no occasion has there been the slightest trace of blight or disease caused by frost, though the crop planted next to it has been blackened by severe cold and is even now badly affected.

CRIED NIGHT AND DAY.

Mrs. Adelaide Ouillette, St. Bruno, Que., says: "My little boy cried night and day from stomach trouble and nothing seemed to help him till I got a box of Baby's Own Tablets. They soon made him well and happy again. I have also found them valuable at teething time." Thousands of other mothers have the same praise to offer not only for stomach trouble and teething troubles but for all the minor ills of little ones. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A Safe Hiding-Place.

A person who paid more attention to the pleasures of life than to his work, was taken to task for his worldliness by a Quaker friend. The rebuke was none the less effective for being tactful. "Friend," said the Quaker, "I understand these's clever at fox-catching." "I have few equals and no superiors at that sport," the parson replied, complacently. "Nevertheless, friend," said the Quaker, "if I were a fox, I would hide where there would never find me." "Where would you hide?" asked the parson, with a frown. "Friend," said the Quaker, "I would hide in thy study."

DISCOVERED GOLD MINES.

Owners to Honor Memory of Child Who Found First Nugget.

It is just 100 years ago that a girl of 14, Katia Bogdanoff, while playing on the banks of the River Molokwa, a tributary of the Kama, in Russia, found a glittering stone, which afterward was found to be a solid gold nugget. Katia, whose chance find led to the discovery of extensive gold deposits in the Ural Mountains, had her nugget roughly snatched away from her, and received as a reward twenty-five strokes of the birch, administered by order of a foreman of the then existing Demidoff iron works.

This man, in ignorance, feared that the Russian Government, to whom belongs by law all precious metal found in the soil, would on hearing of the find put him out of employment and permit only gold mining in the region. The news of the nugget could, however, not be entirely suppressed in this way, and the first gold washing operations in the Urals were not undertaken until ten years later.

To-day the Ural gold mines produce more than 1,000,000 oz. of gold every year. The mine owners have now decided, by way of a tardy recognition, to erect a statue of little Katia on the spot where she found the first nugget.

LOWELL FOND OF LONDON.

Says Roy of Life There Is More Impressive Than Niagara.

The fact that James Russell Lowell is about to publish a volume of hitherto uncollected essays recalls the fact that London has counted few more enthusiastic admirers than him. In one of his letters to the London climate as "the best in the world," and in another he remarks:

"I do like London, and it gives a fillip to my blood, now growing more sluggish than it used to be. I love to stand in the middle of the park and forget myself in that dull roar of ever circulating life which bears a burden to the song of the thrush I am listening to. It is far more impressive than Niagara, which has nothing to do and can't help itself. In this vast torrent all the drops are men."

Had Pains in Back, Side, and Chest

Suffered for Weeks, But Finally Found a Quick, Sure Relief.

Cured Quickly by "Nerviline."

No stronger proof of the wonderful merit of Nerviline could be produced than the letter of Miss Lucy Mosher, who for years has been a well-known resident of Windsor, N.S.

"I want to add my unsolicited testimony to the efficacy of your wonderful liniment, 'Nerviline.' I consider it the best remedy for a cold, sore throat, wheezing tightness in the chest, etc., and can state that for years our home has never been without Nerviline. I had a dreadful attack of cold, that settled on my chest that fourteen different remedies couldn't break up. I rubbed on Nerviline three times a day, used Nerviline as a gargle, and was completely restored. I have induced dozens of my friends to use Nerviline, and they are all delighted with its wonderful power over pain and sickness.

"You are at liberty to publish this signed letter, which I hope will show the way to health to many that need to use Nerviline."

(Signed) "LUCY MOSHER." All sorts of aches, pains, and sufferings—internal and external—yield to Nerviline. Accept no substitute. Large family size bottles, 50c; trial size, 25c, at all dealers, or the Cattaraugus Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Ont.

Readily Answered.

The railway ticket collector in England put his head in at the carriage door and addressed the jolly individual inside.

"Tickets, please," he said.

The smiling one looked at him with alcoholic sadness.

"Got no ticket (hic); don't bother me," he said, settling down again.

The collector at once produced his receipt book and after consulting a table of fares, exclaimed:

"Five and six, please."

"What's that?" queried the merry one.

"Five and six, please," repeated the collector.

The other thought a moment and looking up said: "Eleven."

Do Your Looks Quite Satisfy You?

If Your Color Is Bad, If You Suffer From Pimples, Here Is Good Advice.

Fine Results in Two Weeks.

Miss Nettie E. Callaghan, a well-known young lady in Middleton, writes as follows: "I was affected for two years with a rash, and ugly looking pimples that spread over my face. My color was poor, and my blood evidently completely out of order. Certainly it was a most despairing sort of a case, because various treatments did but little to help me. A friend of mine in Toronto, Ont., advised me to get Dr. Hamilton's Pills, so I sent at once for five boxes. In two weeks I felt like new—looked improved, spirits rose, and I felt I was getting well. I have used this remedy for a long time, and now wouldn't be without it."

If you are in ailing health, have blood disorders, stomach trouble, or headaches, Dr. Hamilton's Pills will help you quickly. All druggists and storekeepers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut. 25c per box, five for $1.00. Sent postpaid by the Cattaraugus Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

LETTER-WRITING.

How the Roman Citizen Conducted His Correspondence.

Modern letter-writing involves more superfluous forms than the ancients used. There was an admirable directness and brevity in the Roman method of correspondence, as we can see from the letters of Cicero.

He began most of his communications in this manner: "To Sextilius Rufus, Quæstor," or "To Aclius Rufus, Proconsul"; and when he had finished his letter, he usually stopped with the simple "Vale." Sometimes, when he was writing to his daughter, to his brother, or to his favorite secretary, Tiro, he would say at the end, "Again I bid you farewell," or "Farewell, and continue to love me." But nine letters in ten he began with the name of the person addressed, and ended with the single word "Farewell."

Sometimes a Roman citizen who had received a great favor from a superior would put an expression of thanks at the end of his letter, as when Marcus Marcellus says to Cicero: "I shall try to convince you that you have conferred your good offices upon one who is most sincerely and warmly your friend, Farewell." But this is an unusually long formula for a Roman.

During medieval times a more elaborate form of letter-writing flourished, and it eventually grew into a most extravagant mode of epistolatory homage, that prevailed until the beginning of the nineteenth century.

Our forefathers were as ceremonious and elaborate in their letters as they were in their drawing-room manners. Thus, in 1762, William Pitt concludes a letter to the mayor of Norwich thus: "I am, with true respect and unalterable attachment, sir, your most obedient and obliged humble servant."

But even this was moderate compared with the forms often used in addressing persons of high rank and royalty. In writing to Frederick the Great, in 1771, d'Alembert concludes a letter in this style: "Be pleased to accept, sire, with your usual goodness, the ardent prayers I offer up for the preservation of your precious life and for the prosperity of your undertakings, and that you may enjoy that glory and happiness which Your Majesty so much merits. With these sentiments, as well as with the tenderest and most profound respect, which I shall to the last maintain, I am, sire, of Your Majesty the most humble and affectionate servant."

The French carried extravagance of this sort to the greatest extremes, but they were also the first to reform it, for during the Revolution many of the Republicans dropped all epistolatory forms, and returned to the simplicity and brevity of the Romans. Thus, Napoleon Bonaparte, unless he were writing to the ruler of another country, rarely had any "beginning" or "ending" to his letters. His letters, before his accession to Imperial power, began and ended in the Roman manner, except that he did not even trouble himself to write the equivalent of "Vale."

EXILED RULERS.

England Has More Attractions for Them Than Paris.

It is strange that England, so much despised as the home of democracy gets tired of them. French kings have come to Claremont, Holywood and Chislehurst, and the French Empire is at Farnborough.

The present Kaiser's grandfather, the great William I, was a resident of Carlton House Terrace when as Prince of Prussia Berlin was too hot for him. It is so long ago to be quite forgotten, but Prince Christian's residence there is a compensation for his loss of the throne of Denmark.

When Alphonse Daudet wrote "Les Rois en Exil" Paris was their usual home, but the air of a republic to-day seems only suited to the taste of Russian grand dukes. They still remain faithful to "the city of light" with the exception of one, who prefers Hampstead.

His Patriotism.

A clergyman whose patriotism exceeded his powers of oratory was speaking upon his favorite subject. At last he felt that something great was required of him. He worked himself up to a climax. "Patriotism," he exclaimed, "is the backbone of the British Empire, and what we have to do is to train that backbone and bring it to the front."

ALMOST LYNCHED.

It happened to a local druggist that sold a cheap acid corn salve instead of the reliable Putnam's Corn Extractor. Substitutes burn the flesh—Putnam's cures the corn. Use only the best—Putnam's 25c at all dealers.

Fighting and Praying.

McCarthy got into an argument with Casey about the efficacy of prayer.

"Oi can't see that there's anything in it," asserted Casey, "Oi never got anything out of it."

"Well," said McCarthy, "don't you know when there's a war it's always the people that pray that win the fight?"

"How about the Chinese?" asked Casey. "They're great people to pray, and yet they get licked, and licked bad."

"Oh, well," explained McCarthy, "no man could understand them when they prayed."
