

For Baking Success - This Oven

Success on some baking days can be expected no matter what flour you use. But constant success is rarer. It can be assured in only one way. The miller must select his wheat by oven test. So from each shipment of wheat we take ten pounds as a sample. We grind this into flour. Bread is baked from the flour. If this bread is high in quality, large in quantity, we use the shipment from which it came. Otherwise we sell it. Constant baking success comes as a matter of course from flour bearing this name

"More Bread and Better Bread" and "Better Pastry Too"

Through Southern Alberta

Former Durhamites and Bentinckers in Lethbridge, Winnipegred and "the Hat."

Dear Review Readers: On leaving Calgary, a five hour run takes us through a splendid grain-growing country, south-east to Lethbridge the leading city south of Calgary. En route we passed thru Carmangay, a widely-boomed village of a year or so ago by Eastern real estate dealers. A resident informed us that it is now almost dead, having attained a population of 475, with little hope of ultimate revival.

Entering Lethbridge, one is impressed with the immensity of the great high level bridge the C. P. R. has constructed over the deep wide coulee to the west of the city. It is a gigantic structure of wood and principally steel, is over a mile in length and about its centre, 367 feet high. Like so many Western cities, Lethbridge has passed thru a quiet year with little or no expansion, following a couple years of remarkable civic and industrial activity. With a population of only 14,000 the city has all the civic conveniences and improvements necessary to provide for 50,000 citizens, without any further residential and street expansion. Lethbridge has clean wide business streets, its well laid out, its own electric light and power plant, its water and sewerage system to all parts of the city, and its own street railway. Its principal streets are well paved, but this is perhaps more essential than in other cities, for among those we visited, it holds the record for wind and dust. Then in Galt Park, in the heart of the business district, and Henderson Park to the east, containing a large lake, race track and fair buildings, it has two of the prettiest beauty and breathing spots we have seen in the West.

The citizens are optimistic. Their civic advantages, adequate for a city of three times the size, have necessitated heavy taxes, but they predict that next year will witness an influx of population and activity, as they have cause to expect, by reason of their fine location in the centre of a farming community, from whence world's prizes have been won, and having immense natural resources adjacent to them. Lethbridge boasts of a Dominion Govt. Experimental Farm and last year was chosen as the meeting place of the World's Dry Farming Congress.

Being the home of Canada's greatest coal mines is Lethbridge's principal claim to fame, and as a consequence, fuel is very cheap in the windy city. There are seven big mines, and their huge output and payroll is the great feature which has contributed to the city's development. The Galt mine employs about 600 men, turning out about 1600 tons of screened coal daily. Other big mines are the Royal Collieries, the Diamond Coal Co., Lethbridge Collieries; Chimney Collieries, each with outputs of 600 to 1200 tons daily.

Bow Island gas is used to quite an extent in the city. Edwin Buchanan, an old Durham boy, being the first Lethbridge merchant using it for store light. While in the city, we breezed into his up-to-date men's furnishing store and enjoyed a half hour chat. We also called upon D. McKinnon, formerly of Bentinck, whose sister, Miss Kate, is now with them on a visit for a month or two. In a fine three story brick warehouse and office, we found another old Bentinck boy, Peter McDougall, installed as John Deere Implement agent. He looks for a bright future for his adopted city.

Striking out east again, sixty five miles on, we pass Bow Island, a village of 400 or 500 farmers noted for natural gas. The discovery of another well two weeks ago was the occasion of a day of public rejoicing there, but it is believed the place will never attain the pre-eminence of a big town.

Eight miles further east, we stopped off for a day at Eastford, the home of Dan McDougall, well-known throughout South Grey, where we enjoyed one visit on the farm and experienced an ex ride! He is building himself a new residence and with two of his sons, Allan and John, cultivate a large area of land. His youngest daughter, Miss Catherine, is teaching three miles from home.

On 35 miles further and we arrive at Medicine Hat. But no citizen or neighboring resident takes the trouble to thus call it. It is familiarly known far and wide as "the Hat" and "the Hat" is some town. For its size with about 18,000 people, it is the greatest manufacturing centre in the West; it is the smokeless Pittsburgh of Canada. To view it from a distance and look for smoke as an evidence of industrial life, you would brand it as dead as a grave-yard. And why? Just cause everything is run by natural gas, which they possess in abundance. The city owns eight natural gas wells, electric light plant, gravitation water system and industrial sites. Natural gas provides very cheap power and light at 5 cts per 1000 cubic feet for power and 13 1/2 cts for domestic use. The street lights in the city burn all day as well as night cause its cheapness to do so than pay to have them turned on and off. The city offers manufacturers practically free gas, very cheap water and industrial sites. The Ogilvie Flour mills with a daily capacity of 6000 blbls., Medicine Hat Milling Co. (2000 blbls.), a brick plants, a foundry and machine shop, a tannery, a glass factory employing 60 men, clay product factory with 75 men, planing mills, nursery rolling mills, linseed oil mills, cement block plant, steel plant, iron rolling mills, graphite and crayon factory, saw-mills, are some of the chief industries. The main part of the city is in a valley, thru which flows the Saskatchewan river, while the hills to the south have been also residentially dotted the last two years.

We enjoyed a visit with our old

Durham dentist here for a few hours. Dr. Holt and family, who have a comfortable home on Esplanade Ave. and has done well since coming here seven years ago. With Dr. Holt and a friend, Mr. Rex, we were treated to a car ride to the Exhibition grounds, the new steel plant three miles out and a tour among the many factories of the city. They wish to be remembered to their old Durham friends, in whom they still have a warm interest. Returning now to Calgary we close this week. P. R.

Address to Mr. and Mrs. Weir

Following is the address which was read on Nov. 6, to Mr. and Mrs. Adam Weir.

Dear Mrs. A. Weir:

We have gathered to-night to express our respect and esteem for you and our sorrow at your intended departure from our neighborhood. In the many years you have lived amongst us, we have always found you kind and obliging neighbors and the trust of friends, having sorrowed with us in our sorrows and been glad with our gladness. You will be greatly missed in the community and we assure you that our best wishes will follow you and your family in your new home.

To help to show you in more than mere words our appreciation of you and yours, we present you with this hall-rack and wish you many years of health and strength to enjoy it.

Signed on behalf of the neighbors: Mrs. Thos. Davis, J. Newell, Mrs. N. Whitmore, A. Whitmore
