The bymns, nearly all old favorites, were shown on the screen in verse form, accompanied by suitable pictures, Never have hymns been more heartily sung. The numbers by the choir, whether in choral, quartette, duet or solo, were similarly treated and excellently rendered by the members of that organization. Passages of scripture and the subjects of Dr. Marsh's various messages were also placed on the canvas and throughout a fine spiritual flavor permeated the assembly. Rev. Mr James assisted in the evening.

The bond of prospective union between the Presbyterian and Methodist congregations has been strengthened as a result of the services. The Methodists kindly sacrificed their eyening service and with their pastor went to the sister church and enjoyed the services there. In a few words Rev. Mr James mooted the suggestion that it would be a wise move if one service only was held in the village on Sunday evenings and it is known that many here would be farmown that the storm of the service with solos of merit.
