

TWO YEARS OF TORTURE FROM STOMACH TROUBLE

Cured by the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People

There are two ways usually adopted in trying to cure indigestion or stomach trouble—one, the wrong way, by using purgatives and other drugs which only act locally and which in the long run cause more distress by weakening the whole system. The other way and the right way is the Dr. Williams' method of treatment—that is to nourish and build up the stomach by supplying plenty of new, rich, red blood. Give the stomach this much-needed supply of new blood and distress will disappear and stay banished forever. The new blood strengthens the nerves of the stomach and gives it the necessary power to digest food. Thousands bear witness to the value of the Dr. Williams' treatment through their blood. Among them is the Rev. P. D. Nowlan, of Summerville, N.S., who says: "I certainly have great reason to recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, as they were the means of saving my life. Till I reached the age of thirty I never knew what pain or sickness meant, but after that my stomach failed me and food of any kind caused untold distress. I became constipated and was forced to use injections daily. This went on for about two years; I grew weaker and weaker; my weight fell off from 185 to 125 pounds; I had a hacking cough and appeared to be going into a decline. All this time I was being treated by the best doctors but without the least benefit. Night after night I could get no sleep the pain and agony was so severe. On consultation the doctors decided I was suffering from cancer of the stomach, and advised an operation as a means of saving my life. This I refused to undergo, and began to look forward to an early death. Just then a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I had no faith in any medicine and at first refused, but my friend was so persistent that finally I gave in and purchased half a dozen boxes. By the time these were gone I felt much stronger and the distress was not so severe. I continued their use and each succeeding box wrought a marked improvement in my condition, till by the time I had taken a dozen boxes, every pain and ache had left me; my strength increased; my weight was back where it was before I was ill; I had a good appetite and was completely cured. In the years that have elapsed since I took the Pills not a twinge of a trouble has returned. To me Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the greatest medicine on earth, and I never lose an opportunity in recommending them to other sufferers, for I feel that were it not for their use I would have been in my grave long ago."

DANDRUFF AND FALLING HAIR

Itching, Burning, Irritated Scalp, Kept Awake at Night, Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Now Head Is Well.

58 De Salaberry St., Quebec, Que.—"About six years ago dandruff began to form on my scalp. At first I didn't notice it, but my hair began falling out gradually and it kept getting worse. The itching and burning were so bad that I scratched and irritated my scalp. I was kept awake at night by the irritation."
"I used ——— and ———. Oh, also a few other ointments and they did no good. I then tried a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment, washed my head with the Soap and warm water, and applied the Ointment. After the first time my hair stopped falling. I got one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Ointment. I continued using them for a few months and my head is now well." (Signed) Miss Myrtle Davis, June 3, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail.
For pimples and blackheads the following is a most effective and economical treatment: Gently scrub the affected parts with Cuticura Ointment, on the end of the finger, but do not rub. Wash off the Cuticura Ointment in five minutes with Cuticura Soap and hot water and continue bathing for some minutes. This treatment is best on itching and redness. At other times use Cuticura Soap freely for the toilet and bath. It is used in preventing inflammation, irritation and clogging of the pores, the common cause of these distressing facial eruptions. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 25-p. Skin Book on the treatment of the skin and scalp. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. D., Boston, U. S. A."

KAISER CHIEF "BUTTER-IN" WHAT A WITTY AMERICAN SAID OF EMPEROR.

Bismarck Expressed the Same Idea More Than Thirty Years Ago.

It was a witty American who, hearing once in Berlin that the Kaiser had found time to object imperially to a proposed tramway-line across Unter den Linden, said: "Say, William II. is sure enough the logical candidate for the presidency of the International Society of Butters-in." A "butter-in" (i.e., one who "butts in") is one of the etymological gems with which our transatlantic cousins have enriched the King's English, says the London Daily Mail. It is derived from the goat, who butts. It means a person who not only rushes in where angels fear to tread, but does so habitually, incessantly, joyously—and egregiously.

The facetious American phrased it differently, but the idea was expressed more than thirty years ago by Bismarck himself, when he said of the future Kaiser: "This young man will be his own Imperial Chancellor." Sagacious as he was, Bismarck, destined to be the first victim of his own prophecy, never opined that William II. would be not only his own Chancellor, but his own Government; like another Kaiser, the State itself.

Pooh-Bah of Germany.
The Emperor William like the rest of the Germans, was an admirer of "The Mikado." You will know what I mean, therefore, when I say that he is the Pooh Bah of Modern Germany. It is the business of the Quadruple Alliance to see that he does not become Lord High Everything Else.

No one who has not lived in Germany can possibly comprehend the over-fulness of the Kaiser. His official titles are the All-Highest Person without a reasonable limit. Berlin cannot erect a public fountain, an opera house, an elevated railway station, or a statue without his all-highest approval. If his omnipotence extends to the uncounted trifles of national life, visualize his almightiness in connection with the affairs which count. A great career is impossible without his favoring smile; a frown from above wrecks it irreparably. Chancellors, ministers, generals, admirals and burgomasters propose. The Kaiser disposes.

Steel-Gloved Hand.
"Tirpitz the Eternal," I believe, is the only statesman who has ever even approximately imposed his will of iron upon that of his Imperial master. Tirpitz has used to get his own way occasionally between anecdotes in a promenade around the gardens of the Imperial Chancellery. But the point remains. Germany under William II. has been a one-man country so far as its administration is concerned. Others have helped build it but none has helped to "run" it.

The hand on the throttle of the engine of State is the steel-gloved hand of the Supreme War Lord. That is another of the All-Highest Person's official titles, by the way. English newspaper readers sometimes think its employment is heavy journalistic irony. The military rank of William II. in peace and war is that of the Oberstenkriegsherr (Highest War Lord).

Kaiser Willed War.
So it is fatuous to think that anybody in the wide world could have been responsible for this mad war precipitated by Germany except William II. The military party may have wished it. But the Kaiser willed it, because only He—they spell him with a capital letter always—could do so. I believe that Herr Doktor von Bethmann-Hollweg, who has been called the incarnation of passionate doctrinarism, undoubtedly would have preferred peace. I am quite sure that the inoffensive and knightly Herr von Jagow, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs—a bridegroom of only seven weeks—sighed for the joys of honeymoon and not for Armageddon.

But it cannot be possible that these or any of them had a word to say that really counted. The Kaiser has interfered always, in the things of peace. Is it conceivable that he would keep his hands off in the affairs of war?

Muzzle Taken Off.
The November storm of 1908, which set his throne rocking as it never rocked before, taught the Kaiser the perils of "butting in." But not for long. The muzzle which Prince Bulow placed upon him soon grew lank, and when Prince Bulow himself was compelled to retire the muzzle went with him.

If the records of the German Foreign Office could be scanned they would unfold a wondrous tale of the interfering activity of William II. It is one of his penchants to go over the heads of Foreign Secretaries and play international politics on his own. He sent General Liman von Sanders to Turkey as head of the reorganization commission of the Ottoman Army after underground negotiations with the German military attaché at Constantinople. The Government at Berlin was not even consulted. It was notified of a fait accompli.

Modern Bourbon.
The Kaiser ranks as the most modern and progressive of monarchs. His intimates have frequently told me in ultra-confiden-

CELEBRATED MOMENTS THAT HE IS THE MOST MEDIEVAL OF KINGS.

They say there is no man in Germany harder to win for a new idea. His ideals of art and music and literature are described as at least three generations behind his time. When you asked such critics how it is in the Germany under him great and powerful—not as great and powerful I fear as the most studious observers among us thought—you would be told that the Fatherland had aspired greatly and mounted high in spite of William II.—not because of him.

One of the most vehement assurances dimmed in my ears was that the Kaiser knew nothing of Austria's plans to humiliate Serbia. No more absurd fiction was ever perpetrated. The Kaiser's whole record banishes the thought to the realm of the grotesque. He probably did not actually write the Note from acceptance of which even the self-respect of Serbia reeled; but he was not far off when it was formulated. William the Meddler could not be an innocent bystander when things are done which mean the eventual clearing of his fleets for action and the hurling of his legions at all and sundry.

Nerviline Ends Neuralgia, Brings Relief Instantly

No Remedy Like Old "Nerviline" to Cure Pain or Soreness.

That terrible ache—how you fairly reel with it—that stinging, burning neuralgia—what misery it causes. Never mind, you don't have to suffer—use Nerviline, it's a sure cure. Not an experiment, because nearly forty years of wonderful success has made a name for Nerviline among the people of many different nations. "There is nothing speedier to end Neuralgic headache than old-time 'Nerviline,'" writes Mr. G. C. Daiglish, from Evanston. "It is so powerful and penetrating that it seems to eat up any pain in a minute. My family couldn't get along without Nerviline. We always keep the 50c family size bottle handy on the shelf, and use it to end chest colds, sore throats, coughs, earache, toothache and pain in the back. My wife swears by Nerviline. For nothing but the relief it gives me, we believe it is better and speedier than any other household family remedy."

CHINESE HOMES. They Have No Windows and Furniture Is Absent.

The absence of furniture and of what we should consider the bare necessities of life is the outstanding impression of any visit to a Chinese house or palace, writes Miss Violet Markham in the Westminster. A Chinese palace is merely an exterior with magnificent painted beams and a tiled roof of many colors. The desperate discomfort of these places as living houses judged by our standards jumps to the eyes. A Chinese house has no windows, only trellis work pasted over with paper. The Chinese eat, sleep and conduct the business of life whenever the fancy takes them. They have no special rooms set apart for special purposes. They eat on their beds and sleep on the floor. For heating purposes they have evolved what is known as the stove bed, consisting of a raised platform at the end of the room, which is heated with hot air in winter time, the only warm spot in the house, for there are no fireplaces. They have no beds, only bedding, and the Emperor would sleep huddled up in a quilt on the stove in the same way as his humblest subject.

Information for Inventors.
Messrs. Pigeon, Pigeon & Davis, Patent Solicitors, Montreal, report that 82 Canadian Patents were issued for the week ending September 28, 1914, 58 of which were granted to Americans, 14 to Canadians, 9 to residents of Great Britain and Colonies and 1 to residents of Foreign Countries. In the United States for the same week, 634 were issued, 7 of which were granted to Canadian Inventors.

Pussies Draw Pensions.
Cats Used by Governments to Exterminate Rats.
A suggestion made that the rat nuisance should be fought by means of armies of cats has already been tried elsewhere.

In Hong Kong, for instance, during the epidemic of rat-borne Bubonic plague, some few years back, many hundreds of cats were imported, and set to work to exterminate the rodents. They proved, however, to be very poor ratcatchers.

In France, too, cats are used by the Government authorities to protect military stores from the depredation of rats, and in order to train them, and to ascertain their fitness for their work, they are sent for a voyage. If they are found equal to the task the rats are found in the lower holds of vessels, they are given a similar job on shore.

Malta also has its Government cats. They are kept in the great subterranean reserve granaries under Valetta, and, like the pit ponies once they are taken below, they seldom ascend to the surface again. At the London General Post Office, a similar staff of cats is maintained. It is their duty to protect the mails from rats, and when past work they are pensioned off, just like other Government employees.

Ells—Her face speaks for itself. Stella—Yes, and it is very plain talk.

CZAR LIVES HERMIT LIFE AUTOGRAT OF RUSSIA LEADS A CURIOUS EXISTENCE.

Nicholas II. Hides Himself From the Outside World—Fears Assassination.

The assassination by a woman of Rasputin, the priest of Mystivian, who was reputed to be the power behind the Russian throne, again calls attention to the curious life of the Czar of all the Russias, who has shut himself off from nearly everybody but the spiritualists who have the ear of the Czarin and herself.

Nicholas II. is having a new wall built to the north of Peterhof Park, where he dwells every summer, and he will shortly have the high gates of Tsarskoe Selo made still higher. These are signs and symbols of his latest hermit-like phase. At the new palace at Livadia, whence he recently returned, were other hermit innovations, such as sound-proof doors in the west wing where he works, and for this he brought all the way from France the architect Robert Chaudet.

These operations mean that Nicholas II. is withdrawing more than ever from human life and realizing the nickname given him by his subjects after the massacre of January, 1905, "Schinnik Nikolai," the hermit Nicholas. For three years Nicholas ventured only twice out of his palace cell, and then to St. Petersburg. Later he made some centenary journeys, showing himself to a few, and fugitive tours through Italy and Germany. This qualified him to return to the world got a check by the assassination in 1911 of Stolypin.

Since then Nicholas has been more of a hermit than ever. When the Romanoff tercentenary was celebrated last year only a few thousand frightened subjects saw the autocrat's frightened face over the heads of menacing soldiers. Now even the motor car tours around the palace have been curtailed, and Tsarskoe Selo becomes more and more a monastery of gloomy people, who are allowed small communication with the outside world, and to keep their mouths discreetly shut.

Angers the Diplomats.
Diplomats, high officials, and the chiefs of the army regard the imperial seclusion as a scandal. Angry of all are the diplomats. Some of them have been in St. Petersburg a whole decade, and during that decade there have been only two court entertainments. The levees, drawing-rooms, and court balls have entirely ceased. St. Petersburg, once Europe's liveliest city, is now the dulllest. Big nobles without official positions have taken to living in Moscow as the livelier town.

This is reflected in the reports of the police building department, which show that since 1905 there have been seven times as many large villas and good-class apartments built in Moscow as in St. Petersburg. High politics are seriously affected. Under Alexander III. and his predecessors the foreign diplomats had opportunities of talking to the Czar every week; and Bismarck, when Ambassador at St. Petersburg, carried on his most important negotiations with Alexander II. direct. Such a thing is no longer possible.

Ministers also have cause of complaint. Twice during the present reign their opportunities of talking politics with the autocrat have been curtailed. Up to 1905 every Minister had one weekly audience, when the Czar was at St. Petersburg or at either of his suburban palaces. He was further summoned for special audiences two or three times a month, and he had the right, when affairs were pressing, to demand special audiences. After 1905 the weekly visit was all that was left.

Weekly Visits Cut Short.
During the last year the weekly visits have been cut short. On the days appointed for audiences the Czar's aide-de-camp telephones to the Ministers' quarters, asking if there is anything pressing, as, if not, the audience may be delayed or a memorandum may be submitted, on the margin of which the Czar will write his views. All this is the result of Nicholas's now chronic dislike of seeing the human face. When Minister of Education Sasso went to Tsarskoe Selo, immediately after the restaurant scandal, in which he was publicly boxed by two young men, he was not received. Sasso thought this was a hint to resign. In reality, it meant that Nicholas was in one of his anti-human moods. Even Premier Gorevkin was sometimes turned away. When Witte was Premier he had audiences three times a week, and Stolypin had two weeks audiences. Now the head of the Government contents himself with one weekly

PORT OF WILD ANIMALS. Singapore Collection Place for Savage Beasts.

More animals—wild ones, that is—are shipped from Singapore than from any other port in the world. Singapore is the collecting place for half Asia, and there are steamships which actually specialize in this trade and cater for it. Elephants, panthers, leopards, deer and monkeys of many kinds, crocodiles, snakes, in huge variety—all these are shipped at Singapore. The collectors buy snakes wholesale from the Chinese who are particularly good about getting the creatures they want.

Wild animals won't stand confinement in the hold of a ship. They are all, or almost all, carried as deck cargo. This means a lot of extra risk, for a bad storm or a sudden change of temperature may play havoc with a valuable consignment.

The most precious of all four-legged passengers is a giraffe. A giraffe is a most difficult creature to catch alive, and when caught too often dies before it reaches the coast. For twenty years, from 1850 to 1900, only three giraffes were brought to Europe. During the present century the supply has been larger, owing to the opening up of East Africa, particularly of the Sudan.

A young giraffe, even before shipment, is worth at least $1,000, and needs two men to look after it. One that was sent from Delagoa Bay to the London Zoo was eleven feet high, and was packed in a huge box ten feet high, with an opening in the top for the lengthy creature to put its head out. Something like $250 worth of fodder was shipped for its consumption on the voyage, and when it was landed the box was found to be too big to go through the railway tunnels.

Every bridge and tunnel was measured, then the box was reduced to eight feet, telescoping Mr. Giraffe, but he arrived safely in London none the worse for his cramped journey.

A big elephant is an awkward animal to handle, especially to get aboard ship. Elephants, as a rule, hate ships. When Barnum bought the famous Jumbo for $10,000, it took about a week to persuade him to enter the box in which he was eventually shipped.

Best Regards to Science.
"Science attacks the sandwich," is a headline. Here's hoping it has better luck with it than we have had with some purchased at railway lunch counters.

Might Have Known.
After the bride had inspected all the fresh vegetables in the store, punched a few, and inquired prices all round, she said to the patient clerk—"These tomatoes are just twice as dear as those across the street. Why is it?" "Ah, yes, madam, to be sure; but you know, as I see you are a judge, these" and the grocer smiled—"these are hand-picked." "Of course," she said hastily, blushing, "why, I might have known. Give me a bushel, please."

Genius and Brains.
Investigations show that the brain of the famous M. Bertillon, late head of the Identification Department in the Prefecture of Police in Paris, was considerably above the average in weight. Such brilliant men as Bismarck, Cuvier, Kant and Turgenieff also possessed brains far beyond the portion allotted to ordinary mortals. Turgenieff possessed one of the heaviest brains on record. Apparently, therefore, that peculiar grey matter known as brain plays a very important part in the success of mankind. We are apt to dub a failure as "lacking in brains." Contrary to this, however, is the fact that men whose genius has moved the world, and whose brains will be remembered for all time, have been the owners of brains far below the average in weight. The brains of Descartes, Shelley, and Schumann, for instance, weighed considerably below the normal standard.

COREAN JUSTICE. Until Recent Trials Were Most One-sided and Unjust.

The Korean judge dispenses justice in the open, and by etiquette only the judge can sit. Every one else must stand, except the prisoner and his friends, who are forced to remain in a humble, kneeling position with bowed heads. Until quite recently these trials were always very one-sided and shockingly unjust.

When a man was brought to a judge it was taken for granted he was guilty, and if he did not confess he was tortured and made to do so. Witnesses, too, were openly bribed. In fact, giving evidence for or against an accused person meant a living to a portion of the community, and these witnesses naturally favored those who paid best.

How a Sick Woman Can Regain Health.
READ THIS VERY CAREFULLY.

"For years I was thin and delicate. I lost color and was easily tired; a yellow palor, pimples and blotches on my face were not only mortifying to my feelings, but because I thought my skin would never look nice again I grew despondent. Then my appetite failed. I grew very weak. Various remedies, pills, tonics and tablets I tried without permanent benefit. A visit to my sister put into my hands a box of Dr. Hamilton's Pills. She placed reliance upon them and now that they have made me a well woman I would not be without them whatever they might cost. I found Dr. Hamilton's Pills by their mild yet searching action very suitable to the delicate character of a woman's nature. They never once gripped me, yet they established regularly. My appetite grew keen—my blood red and pure—my rings under my eyes disappeared and today my skin is as clear and unwrinkled as when I was a girl. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

The above straightforward letter from Mrs. J. Y. Ford, wife of a well-known miller in Rogersville, is proof sufficient that Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a wonderful woman's medicine. Use no other pill but Dr. Hamilton's, 25c. per box at all dealers or The Catarrh-ozone Co., Kingston, Ontario.

WHAT THE CANAL COST.
Will Mean Enormous Time-Saving for Vessels.

Now that barges are going right through the Panama Canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and now that 1915, when the official inauguration is to take place, draws near, a few figures of wonderment will be of interest, says London Ansvers.

The total length of the canal is only 50 miles, but it will mean a saving in distance for vessels going from New York to San Francisco of no fewer than 9,540 miles, for round Cape Horn the route is 14,840 miles, and through the canal 5,300 miles. From other parts of the world enormous time-saving, too, will be effected.

NEW C.P.R. LINE.
The new Lake Shore line of the C.P.R. has been used for passenger traffic since June 29. A freight business is also being carried on. This new line gives practically a new route between Montreal and Toronto, and greatly facilitates in handling the enormous traffic, passenger and freight, which passes through this territory. The work was commenced about two years ago, and entailed a cost of nearly twelve millions of dollars. That it will create new business is confidently believed; but a consideration which is not directly associated with profits, yet is not alien thereto, is that by the duplication of the tracks there is set up a closer communication between the two great centers of population in the Dominion.
