THE WAR SITUATION

After the taking of Antwerp it will be remembered the victors hurriedly put the city in charge of German officers and pushed on with the idea of capturing the brave Belgian army and reaching the sea coast. Ostend to which the Belgian government had retired, proved to be right in the path of the invaders and Belgian government and army obligingly retired still further. We can almost imagine a chorus of "Hoos," as Ostend was occupied—"at least a Belgian seaport, England, bated England but a few hours sail away, who cares for Paris just yet."

The taste of one seaport was so good, the war palate called for more and the cry of the invaders was now Dunkirk and Calais. But it's a long way to Tipperary and just about this time something happened. The Belgian army, small, compact and undismayed, had got in touch with the British and offered a desperate resistance. Then some coast defence ships of the British navy, mounting heavy guns, took a hand in the task of preventing the progress of the invaders, and so effectually that the march to Calais was stayed and the German army was obliged to retreat to the German shores who discovered it was decidedly unhealthy to be so near the seacoast.

Exasperation, deep and desperate now actuated the enemy, reinforcements were brought up—but at a safe distance from the coast—and again the armies joined battle in perhaps the most bitter engagements of the war. The attempt to pierce the lines of allies failed but the Germans succeeded on Sunday in crossing the river Yser, but at tremendous cost, and reports at time of writing, Tuesday a m. say the allies line still holds and not only holds but is about to take the offensive once more.

The Black Watch and Royal Irish Regiments have suffered terribly and there will be a heavy casualty list, but smaller than that of the Germans who came on in massed formations, apparently inexhaustible and their officers as usual did not try to spare them.

In some way German submarines have got to the coast and were active in dogging destroyers, but so far have done no harm while a despatch says that one German submarine was rammed off the Dutch coast by the British destroyer, Badger, which suffered only a damaged bow.

The Germans claim to have captured 500 British, among them 28 officers and a colonel in this most bloody mole of the war.

The attack by the Germans on Warsaw utterly failed and they retreated in many places in utter disorder, the Russians chaperoning their retreat with cavalry and artillery. Austrian opposition proved stronger than it looked like two weeks ago, but the Bear is gradually becoming more formidable and "General Winter's" forces will help the Russians.

It is rumored that Antwerp is being fortified and that a large part of the German army will winter there. The Allies may have something to say to this.

At the east end of the long battle line, the allies are more than holding their own. It is thought that German troops were taken from this end to strengthen the attempt in the west to reach Calais. Before many days there is bound to be a German humiliation, judging from the spirit and position of the allies.

The Canadians are "hardening up" on Salisbury plain. A strange story is that detachments of Canadians are lining the banks of the Suez Canal, a story perhaps got up by Germany to rouse Turkey to action. Lord Roberts has been saying nice things to the Canadian troops.

Germany's effort to rouse rebellion in S. Africa has utterly failed, Botha's troops having defeated Col. Maritz and his German helpers.

LATER
The crossing of the Yser river has availed Germany nothing. She has been driven back and is reported to be bringing up more reinforcements. Human life being of no account to German generals.

Reports came that the Karlsruhe is at bay off the American coast. British warships have been looking for her.

A delicate situation has arisen between Britain and the United States owing to seizure of oil "Tankers," whose business formerly with Elbe ports, is now going to Holland, much of it presumably finding its way to Germany. Pres. Wilson is satisfied it can be adjusted amicably. Later—the oil matter has been adjusted and the incident is closed.

What is likely to be Outcome of Present War?

From an American paper we quote the following summary up of a sane article of great length by a writer with the German name of Leon Goldmerstein. He is evidently a business man with a statesman's point of view and his article is readable and illuminating. He says: "Thus we see that of the four great participants in the present struggle one will come out with her industries crippled, if not crushed, with her commerce largely gone or taken by her former competitors and with her credit system shattered by the loss of the markets on which it formerly relied, and which in time of stress it has deliberately treated unfairly. We see also that the other three combatants will come out at least as strong as before the war, probably stronger, and this not only holds good in the case of a long war, but becomes all the more pronounced the longer the war lasts."

"To sum up: The outcome of the war will be great losses to the German commerce and a complete change in the export policy of the Kaiser's land, including the dropping of specialized lines and lines carried at a loss for political purposes. This will mean better prices and conditions in the export trade generally, conditions through which the United States and Britain will profit in the first place.

It will also mean an expansion of foreign trade for Britain and development of new lines of industry for Russia.

It also will mean concentration of capital, the birth of really big business in Europe, done under government supervision and with the good will of the country.

Democratization of the throne and open ranging of the imperial power and kingly power on the side of the masses.

Important concessions to labor and working classes generally given both by the big business and by the government.

On the whole one cannot help expressing the conviction that the world as a whole will come out of the present war better and cleaner than it went into it. It is a pity and a shame that Europe had to be steeped in blood in order to understand that modern nations cannot live unless they lay at the foundation of their society the great idea of democracy.

But one must not forget that this idea had to be learned and that this knowledge had to be bought at the price of blood. Had not the present war come to teach the nations of Europe this great lesson they would have learned it in a revolution perhaps as bloody as this war.

And one cannot help thinking that if blood had to be shed it is better that it should be shed in a war than in a revolution.

Mulock Anniversary

At both morning and evening services on Sunday, large congregations listened to excellent discourses by Rev. W. W. Wylie of Durham, the occasion being the anniversary. The following evening a sumptuous tea was served in the schoolhouse nearby followed by the entertainment in the church. Mr. H. H. Miller of Hanover occupied the chair in his usual happy manner, and delivered one of the finest patriotic addresses ever listened to in this vicinity. In the main the program was supplied by talent from the Baptist choir of the neighboring congregation, Durham, chiefly of a patriotic nature and thoroughly enjoyed by a crowded church. Rev. W. W. Wylie of town, Leslie and Philthrop, Crawford, favored with addresses; Miss Wilson, Miss Lillian Walker with instrumental and solos; Theo. Falsaise with instrumental and duet with Jas. Wylie. Miss Nancy Boyd and Mr. Alan Bell also rendered solos and two quartettes were appreciated, one by the Wylie family and a second by Misses Lillian Walker, Janet Wylie, Messrs Allan Bell and Theo. Falsaise.

The proceeds of tea and entertainment amounted to about $80 which is to be applied to the Red Cross Fund.

DORNOCH

Farmers around here had better get busy. Quite a number have not started to take up their roots. They must be expecting the fine weather to last a while longer but the change seems to give them another idea that winter is not far away when the snow is flying once more. We cannot complain for we certainly have had a beautiful fall.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Robertson spent Thursday evening at Mr. N. Wilson's. Miss Margaret McIntosh spent Monday with the Heft family.

Mr. and Mrs. Balger of Guelph is visiting friends in and around the burg.

Mr. Jack Ray has the contract of gravelling the balance of the road through the swamp which was badly needed.

Remember the concert in the hall on Friday night. The young folks are busy practising and expect a good program.

Mrs. Mortley had a big quilting last Friday when quite a number of ladies were present and took out two quilts. Nothing like preparing for cold weather while it is fine.

Mr. Sandy Campbell had a wood bee on Friday, also gave a party to the young people at night.

Durham Horticultural Society

The annual meeting of the above Society will be held in the Public Library on Tuesday, Nov. 3rd at 8 o'clock p.m., for the election of officers for the ensuing year and other business of importance. All parties interested in the Society and wishing its continuance and usefulness, are earnestly invited to attend and give it their support.

Silver Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Campbell, Crawford

On Wednesday, Oct. 14th, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Campbell, near Crawford, was the scene of a happy event, when their friends and neighbors assembled to offer congratulations on the celebration of their silver wedding. The house was tastefully decorated for the occasion with evergreens and silver trimmings.

The bride of 25 years, attired in a pretty dress of black paillette silk with white lace, was complimented on her appearance. The groom also looked his best. The family of 3 sons and 4 daughters were present, with the exception of Douglas in Sask., and William up the lakes.

After several musical selections about 80 guests sat down to a sumptuous repast, to which all did ample justice. Toasts were proposed and speeches made.

The bride and groom were the recipients of many useful and costly articles of silverware.

About 40 young people assembled in the evening and thoroughly enjoyed themselves with music and dancing.
