The Durham Review

APRIL 22, 1915
Mr. Ball, M. P. addresses the House

From a revised edition of Hansard sent us from Ottawa we take the following extracts of Mr. Ball's speech which occupies 7 1/2 columns. We also give a few extracts from the speech of Mr. Neely, M. P. from Humboldt who followed him;

"Mr. R. J. Ball, (South Grey): Mr. Speaker, it is with some hesitancy that I rise to say a few words on the subject of the Budget, which has not been before us for some time, especially after it has been discussed by so many able speakers who have preceded me. Before proceeding to the Budget I might refer to a few remarks of the last speaker, the hon. member for Westminster, (Mr. Copp.) The hon. gentleman and other have spoken of curtailing the expenditure of the Government for this year. I take it that in the estimates the Government have curtailed as far as possible; but owing to the war, which of course was an unforeseen event, they had to make altogether unusual provisions for revenue. Then there were the ordinary liabilities and necessary expenditures of the Government, some of which were really incurred by the war government; and contracts for which annual provision must be made could not possibly be eliminated or curtailed.

Some reference was also made to the distribution of contracts for war materials. I have not looked very closely into this matter but from what I can gather, the contracts for war materials have been distributed over the country amongst the various firms who manufacture such materials without any discrimination. I think it was wise for them to do so because, while manufacturers may be on one side of politics or the other, they employ men of all shades of politics. I think from a business standpoint that it would be well not to discriminate and I believe there has not been any discrimination.

Something has been said of public criticism. It is well for us even as political parties in this House to be aware of criticism that goes out to the public. It is sometimes very hurtful. We have now before a Committee of this House an investigation into the matter of boots supplied to the soldiers. I have no doubt that when the investigation has been completed there will be very little fault to be found; yet from an international standpoint that investigation has been very hurtful, and I have no doubt that Canadian manufacturers have suffered in consequence.

Of course the Opposition must investigate where there are real reasons for doing so, but to my mind there have never seemed to be much cause for this investigation.

Reference was made to the new war stamp. It was suggested that instead of having a war stamp the two cent stamp should have been made a three cent stamp, that is that the old domestic postal rates should have been restored. We are living under very special conditions at the present time. There is a great European war in progress. We hope that there will never be such a war again in our time or for generations to come. I have no doubt that one of the objects of the Govt. is to interest the Canadian people in this war and to impress its great significance especially upon the minds of the young. The imposition of special war stamp taxes will have a great effect upon the mind of the child going to school. It will imbue him with a love for his country, and emphasize the importance and significance of the period through which we are passing.

I must congratulate my hon. friend the Minister of Finance (Mr. White) on the able manner in which he has handled this Budget. I have heard no complaint from my riding nor from any other part of the country through which I have passed in regard to the proposals which he has laid before the House.

The action taken by the Government to give seed grain to the farmers of the West has, I think, met with the approval of all classes. I believe that the Government is treating the West very generously in this respect, and I am glad that the farmers of the West will be helped thereby. I believe that this Government deserves a great deal of credit for the manner in which it has conducted the affairs of Canada since it came to office, and I congratulate the Minister of Finance upon his Budget, which I believe to be as fair and equitable as it possibly could be. I think it bears equitably all, and I have no doubt that all the people of Canada are willing to contribute to the expenses of this war. I believe that the Budget has so arranged things that all classes will contribute in proportion to their ability to pay and that the policy of the Government in this respect will be endorsed by the electorate. In my own riding, so far as I have been able to learn, the people are at one in endorsing the course taken by the Government to provide means to enable Canada to bear her share in this war.

Mr. D. B. NEELY (Humboldt): Mr. Speaker, I have listened with some degree of interest to the remarks of my hon. friend from South Grey, and I must express my regret that I cannot agree with a number of his conclusions. The hon. gentleman, and other hon. gentlemen on the Government side, seem to view with very great complacency the tariff proposals we are now considering. I can quite understand that the mental attitude of the hon. gentleman might be influenced to some extent by the fact that his interests are gained in an industry which certainly will benefit largely by the proposals in this Budget. My hon. friend deprecates the idea of putting class against class, the manufacturer against the farmer and the farmer against the manufacturer, and I quite agree with him that there should be the best possible relationship between all elements of our citizenship. I agree with him also when he says that the farmer appreciates the presence of the manufacturers in this country; that the manufacturers appreciate the farmer. I should say they do and they will appreciate them a great deal more when these tariff proposals have become law.

My hon. friend who is a practical business man, comes to the defence of the Govt. when he says we must not be depressed by the wide-spread depression that exists in commercial and financial affairs throughout Canada. I must differ sharply with my hon. friend in his conclusions for in my judgment, the policy of this Government since it came into office has done a great deal to do with the financial and commercial depression that exists in Canada to-day. This Govt. came into power on a policy which it meant anything at all meant restriction of trade to the Dominion. If a policy of restriction of trade has not for its logical consequence a commercial depression and unemployment, then I understand nothing of the principles of political economy.

The defeat of the trade agreement of 1911 brought about by the protectionist arguments of hon. gentlemen who now occupy the Government benches, is and must be considered largely responsible for the present commercial depression.

The defeat of the trade agreement of 1911 was a severe blow to production in this country in that it meant the stemming of the tide of that class of immigration which is largely responsible for much of the development and prosperity of Canada in recent years. Since 1911 there has been a great falling off in this class of immigration, to the great loss not only of the people of Western Canada but of the people of every part of the Dominion.

What does this Government stand for in the matter of its trade policy? I say in all sincerity that no matter which could be brought forward by the Govt. having for its object the paying of our proper bills—the paying of Canada's share in the successful prosecution of the great struggle in which the Empire is engaged—would meet with one word of criticism from any hon. member on this side of the House; but I strenuously object to the people of Canada and hon. members of this House being asked to vote for proposals labelled as war tax proposals when the Minister of Finance himself admits that the objects of this legislation are not to pay the expenses of the war, but to meet the deficit in the first Budget deliverance of this session by the Minister of Finance cannot be mistaken. He says in the clearest language that every dollar of Canada's share of the expense of this war is to be obtained from the Govt. of Great Britain and that this extra tax is to meet that great gap which he sees before him, between the current revenue and the current expenditure, outside of the expenses of the war.

—The Kaiser would be delighted to hear that Premier Borden had resolved on an election. What a fine story he could make for Berlin readers out of the infamous lie implied in the election cry that "Borden Backs Britain" as if his opponents did not. Will Sir Robert Borden, with many fine qualities, allow the Kaiser this gratification and actual moral support by practically branding the whole Liberal party as disloyal?

—The recruiting sergeant looks to the height, health and habits of the would-be soldier, but he never asks you are you a Brit or a Yank? The heroes in the trenches are of both stripes. Are they clamoring to have votes in the coming election? Is the thought in the head of one in a thousand of them? The proposition is a grotesque one, and but for fancied political effect would never have been heard of. Of course Liberals must support it too or be branded as disloyal or disrespectful to our country's defenders. All honor to the soldiers; but keep the election till they get home as Britain is doing.

—Liberals, not to be caught napping are sending out campaign literature that tells a pitiful story of mismanagement and worse of the powers that be at Ottawa. Conservatives are sending out cartoons to party papers that grossly insult the Liberal Leader, than whom no more loyal British subject exists in Canada or elsewhere. Premier Borden can stop all this by announcing that no election is pending. Will he do it? An election is not due till September, 1916.

—Indignation meetings are being held in Toronto, forty Toronto, in protest against holding an election during the war. From Conservatives and some sections of the Conservative press also come protests at the prospect of the country being plunged into the mud and mire and bitterness of a political contest, while all this is going on in sympathy with the great struggle in which the Empire is engaged for justice, freedom and even national existence. Surely better counsels will prevail. Let Mr. Borden show that he is boss and prevent such men as Rogers from riding the roost.

DORNOCH

Mr. Dan Ray left for Chesley, where he intends to spend the summer. Sorry to hear Mrs. J. Wait is ill at present. Hope she will soon recover. The ladies of Dornoch are busy making clothes for the destitute children in Belgium.

Miss May Gillen, of Dornoch, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony on Monday to the man of her choice, Mr. T. Moore, of Holland Centre, formerly of Williamsford. We wish them every success.

Miss Low spent Sunday with her parents near Kinghurst.

Burdening the Public

The men who made the scandals for which they cannot ask pardon have accused the Liberals of having inaugurated a campaign of scandals. Apart entirely from the scandal disclosed and concealed, the Ministers at Ottawa deserve condemnation for heartlessly burdening the Canadian people with charges by the interests who financed them into office. Five per cent on the purchasers of British goods means five per cent on the purchaser of similar goods made in Canada. This five per cent which the Canadian people must pay does not go into the public Treasury, does not go to defray the cost of war, but goes to enrich favored Canadians at the expense of the public.

At no time have the Canadian people been less able to bear this unnecessary burden. There is no excuse or justification for it, and the natural explanation is that the subscribers are being allowed to recoup themselves. The Government has seized the opportunity afforded by the war, financed on borrowed money to burden the Canadian people and deceive them into believing the war was against British goods the Government stands condemned, even if it had shown in other matters an honest and efficient regard for the public money entrusted to its care.—EX.

A Real Patriot

He had a wobbly, ancient nag whose speedy days had fled—
In fact old Dobbin any time might number with the dead.
He had the spavins mighty bad, and was spryngy at the knees,
And as he dragged his bones along he snorted out a wheeze.
It seemed that this old Jonah was just eatin' off his head
And the hard-buck man that owned him often wished that he was dead.

But this chap was a patriot, the war talk fired his veins—
So he hitched the bone yard to a gig and gathered up the reins;
He heard that horses for the war wuz wanted awful bad,
And the thought of cashin' off his nag it made his heart beat glad.
Well, the Government, it bought the rake, it bought its sighs and groans,
And it handed over in hard cash $150 and told the man to run along home and gather up the other travellin' horse cemetaries he could get, and get in strong, while the easy money was on.—EX.
