Our Toronto Letter

That Methodist Commission

Intended for last week. Special to the Review.

Toronto, May 10, 1915

Writing, as a fine art, is not dead. Some pessimists thought it was, but Dr. Carman, the famous veteran leader of the Methodist Church in Canada, although over eighty years of age, has disproved the theory. He has written to the press one of the cleverest and most searching letters which have appeared for a long time. Incidentally Premier Hearst and the Government are sorry that Dr. Carman took up his pen again.

Read what Dr. Carman says in this letter:

Ontario hands this liquor business over to the Methodists. All right, if partisan Methodists always voted straight. But for a great public measure like this there are Presbyterians, Anglicans, Baptists and other voters, as well. Why not divide up the responsibility and the measureless honour? I do not favor this Methodist monopoly of all the glory.

Mr. Hearst and the Government must be disappointed. When they put four Methodists on a Board composed of a total of five men, they evidently were making a deliberate bid for the support of the Methodist Church. It is now apparent, however, that this Church does not take kindly to being shouldered with the responsibility for the continuance of the bar in Ontario.

The Toronto Star, commenting on the letter, says that if the Government by their appointing such an overwhelming majority of Methodists thought this was politics it was decidedly amateurish on their part. "The condition of mind," it says, "of anybody who thought that he could achieve some political end by identifying Methodism with the regulation of the liquor traffic would certainly be a curious psychological study."

Women and the War
Mr. Howell, in a speech to the Canadian Business Women's Club in Toronto, paid deep tributes to the women of the country who have borne their share of the burdens of the war, the wives and mothers of those who have been killed at the front, those who have gone as nurses and those who have been unceasing in their efforts to provide clothing and comforts for the soldiers, to furnish the Red Cross with necessary supplies, to assist in the equipment of our military hospitals, to support all movements for the relief of distress among war-stricken peoples and to care for the wives and families of those who have gone to the front.

"Upon our women," said Mr. Howell, "the spirit of Florence Nightingale has descended. In the heroic courage of the mothers of our people we have the proof of the strength and vitality of our race."

Liberal Club Federation of Ontario. Founded—Spring, 1913

Original Club Membership—22
Present Club Membership—63

Special to the Durham Review, Toronto, May 18, 1915.

A record of steady growth in numbers, and ever-increasing importance in the scope of its work, marks the development of the Liberal Club Federation of Ontario which is celebrating its second birthday here on Friday, May 21st, with its annual business meeting in the afternoon and in the evening its annual dinner with Sir Wilfrid Laurier, Mr. N. W. Rowell, Sir Lomer Gouin and Hon. Geo. P. Graham among its guests.

The Federation's officers and most of its members are young men and the movement, quite separate from any of the official organizations of the Liberal party, represents the young man's place and influence in the Liberal party and in Ontario politics.

Just two years ago the Federation was formed by a union of the twenty-two Liberal Clubs then existing in the Province. To-day the Club membership has risen to sixty-three with an individual membership running into the thousands.

Ever since the beginning of hostilities, the Federation and its clubs have been holding patriotic meetings, distributing literature on the war and doing their share in the propaganda for recruits and for a realization of the seriousness and the high honor of the task before Canada and the Allies. Further schemes of service along these lines are to be discussed.

Sidelights on the War

A letter from a cousin of the editor's in London, Eng., contains some paragraphs reflecting the war situation in the big metropolis, that we make bold to copy.

"You will get all the news of the war in Canada? It has every appearance of being a long war, do you not think so? It has quite changed our England; wherever you go you see soldiers marching along, soldiers standing at the corners of the streets, soldiers walking with their friends.

Our place, West Ham, has done very well. They raised about 600 and wanted to form a battalion of their own but this was not allowed, they were drafted into Kitchener's army. Afterwards permission was given for them to have their own battalion, 12th Essex, and they raised 1350 men. Since then they have completed the Essex Royal Field Artillery Brigade, 750 men. They raised these in a fortnight. Now they have started a third army.

A great many teachers have joined the Territorials and we have married women teaching in most of our boys' schools. One boy's school has as many as 6 women teachers. The Education Committee have asked all the married women teachers to come back and help them in their duties. Jeanette (her married sister) has answered the call and she has been teaching in the Boy's Dept. since a few days before Christmas.

We find that the price of food articles has increased considerably although food is plentiful. Fruit, especially bananas and oranges have been exceptionally cheap and plentiful.

Last Easter I spent 10 days in Belgium, visiting Brussels, Bruges, Ghent, Blankenburch and also Sluis in Holland. Little did I think then, that the wonderful churches and buildings, full of beautiful pictures, statues, etc., that I so much admired would in less than a twelve-months' time be nothing but ruins. I shall never forget the Good Friday I spent in quaint old Bruges. In the morning I went to a strange old church called "The Chapel of the Holy Blood." There was a crypt below the church which it was said contained the nails of the crucified Christ. The people came here to place a lighted candle on a stand. In the beautiful church above was a golden casket, which was supposed to contain the sacred blood. The people went up to the altar and kissing the casket. In the afternoon there was a great procession and this casket was carried round; it is only seen by the public on Good Friday, unless you get special permission and then in the payment of one franc. The poor Belgian Refugees must have missed this great ceremony very much.

I have been out to-night watching the searchlights in the sky searching for Z-pplines. We are always expecting raids.

Well I hope the war will soon come to an end. We are very proud of our colonies. They have come forward to help us and have done remarkably well, especially the Indians.
