Living in Barns and Dodging Shells

Through the courtesy of Miss Margaret Harris we are able to present the following letter received from Mr. James Farquharson lately:

June 21st, 1915
I believe some way or other that this is the first letter I have ever written you but whether you object or not I am going to start now. At present I am on duty at the phone from 8 p. m. to 12 p. m. so have four hours to fill in some way or other. We are living our usual life sleeping in barns in our intervals out of the trenches. It seems to me we must have occupied at least half the barns in Northern France since we came out here last February. However they are all the same in that they are all more or less filthy. The only point in their favor is that you can get enough straw to make a soft bed. So we shall be able to sleep out doors altogether which will be a change for the good.

I met an old Durham boy a couple of weeks ago in the first field ambulance but I'm hanged if I can remember his name. He recognized me and told me he had been at high school with Ray and I think he said his home was now in Mt. Forest. I suppose Durham is travelling at its usual hilarious pace and in its moments of wakefulness realizes that a war is being fought. However I would like to go back for a couple of weeks and go fishing up the Rocky Sgaegen. It would certainly be a contrast to this life where you have to dodge shells and bullets when you are in the danger zone.

The part of the country is full of canals so we are able to do quite a bit of bathing. About a week ago orders were issued that bathing was not permitted unless some costume was worn. Consequently when we went swimming that afternoon we were attired in portions of sacks which certainly gave us a savage appearance.

Some way or other I have a notion I never wrote to thank the ladies in Durham for the wrist watch they sent me. Some day if I ever get back I shall tell you under what circumstances I received it but I don't write it. The watch came to a sad end. Just before the regiment went into action at Ypres I lent it to one of my pals and he was killed. The other watch I had was also lost at Ypres in a dug-out which was blown in. I was sorry to lose it as it had a picture of mother in the case. However I have been issued with a government watch which although not a beauty, keeps excellent time. One advantage of being a signaler is that you must have a watch and if you don't happen to own one, they supply it free gratis.

Letter from the Firing Line.

(From brother of Mr G. H. Stinson)
France, May 25th, 1915

Dear brother,—
I have a few minutes to spare, so I thought I would drop you a line. We have been out for a couple of nights sleep and a bath, but suppose we will be going back to the trenches soon. We have been giving the Germans H— lately, as you no doubt have seen by the papers, BUT don't let yourself believe we did it without losing a lot of men. The creek close to the first German trench that we took on the night of the twenty-second, is red with blood. Some of the sights around there would make any ordinary man's blood run cold, but WE are not humane any more, we're more like a bunch of animals than anything else. We call ourselves the Death and Glory boys, for if this thing continues much longer, that is all we can see for it, but if they do get me, I will have sold my life dearly, you may be sure of that, for I think I have got my share of them already. Don't think I am down-hearted, for I am not. I am simply telling you the truth, and at the same time am as cheerful as I ever was, and ready to go back and have another go at the Germans any old time. Still I will be glad when it is all over, and we are back in dear old Canada again (if we are ever that lucky). Next time you are making lemon pies or cream puffs just think of me and say "Well, bill has biscuits and 'bully' for supper to-night and maybe a little tea or water or maybe neither," and you can think of the thousands the same as me. We were down to a beautiful city yesterday to get a bath, but it is out of bounds for us, so we were not allowed to have a look around at all, except to get our bath and come straight back to billets again. I can sleep just as good on a hard floor or on the wet ground now as I could in the feather bed before. This is a beautiful country around here and a fine climate. But I don't care for the French people around these parts. I think they are pro-German.

Prayer Soldiers Wanted

The following card issued by the Brotherhood of St. Andrew of St. Matthew's Church, Winnipeg, speaks for itself: Will you not enlist, carry out the request and induce others to do likewise? "Will you enlist—we want 3,000,000 praying soldiers. You can enlist and fight right at home. Objects for prayer—For removal of all which keeps us apart from God, that we may fight on God's side and win His victory in this terrible war. Or for removal of all vices which may offend a merciful God. Or for complete removal of the liquor traffic as beverages—as a menace to our soldiers and citizens whether in war or peace."
