War Notes

A year of war and to-day assurance of victory is not so bright as at the beginning. By this time the German army was to be chased to Berlin, her fleet "captured or destroyed," her people starved by a naval blockade, her supplies of brass, rubber, &c., to be exhausted, and what do we find?

What are you going to do about it? Britain has now waked up, Canada does not yet realize that it is her war.

The great German curving movement is encircling Warsaw and evidently the intention is to surround masses of the Russian forces as well as take cities.

Italy is making progress and is now the only one of the Allies that occupies enemy territory.

The refusal of Roumania to allow munitions of war for Turkey to pass through her territory has maddened Germany and may bring her another foe.

However, pressure at the Dardanelles is slowly driving the Turks back and shortage of ammunition is worrying him also.

Reported that the Germans have a wireless outfit in the Maine Woods and a submarine base on the Maine coast and that they will "lay for" Canadian transports.

The United States' note to Germany proved more stern than expected. It has the hearty support of the whole American press, except German papers and has aroused resentment in Germany and Austria.

Steps to strengthen the American navy and army are to be undertaken. The President, it is said, wishes the navy to stand upon equality with the most efficient and respectable fighting sea forces maintained by any power.

The campaign was actively conducted on both sides, the liquor men having a champion in a Chicago news paper man named Winkle, a German too, and whose newspaper had given utterance to anti-British sentiments.

To Ontario's shame, she lags behind the western provinces. The sentiment here is as strong as in the west, but the timidity, to say the least, of Premier Hearst and his government, allows the province to remain under the shackles of the legalized bar.

The Little Paper Printed Where You Used to Live.

'Tisn't filled with cuts and pictures nor the latest news despatches; And the paper's often dampened and the print is sometimes blurred, There is only one edition, and the eye often catches

Traces of a missing letter, or at times a mis-spelled word. No cablegrams or specials anywhere the eye engages;

How the heart grows soft and tender while its columns you're perusing, Every item is familiar, every name you know full well.

And a flood of recollection passes o'er while you're musing On the past, and weaves about you an imaginative spell.

You can see the old home village once again in fancy, seeming To be clasping hand of neighbor, and of friend and relative;

And their faces rise before you as you're idly, fondly dreaming O'er the little country paper printed where you used to live.

Two Dry Provinces

Special to the Review. Vancouver, July 24

Among the hosts of people outside of Alberta who are delighted with the "dry" victory in that province, one of the most pleased, naturally enough, is Mr N. W. Rowell, who at present is in British Columbia on a vacation.

Mr Rowell, in these addresses, did not discuss the actual details of the bill to be submitted, for he did not want to interfere in other provinces' local affairs, but he did point out the patriotic duty of getting rid of any force or any interest interfering with personal and national strength, especially at such a critical time as during the war and the difficult period of readjustment and reconstruction which inevitably will follow.

Mr Rowell must also feel satisfaction in the Saskatchewan situation. Hon. Walter Scott has publicly acknowledged that his government and the people of his province had been influenced in their temperance course by the inspiration of Mr Rowell's courageous fight.

In Manitoba to day, both parties are pledged to prohibition. In British Columbia there is a more vigorous organization against the liquor traffic than ever before; and advance may be expected in this province. Alberta and Saskatchewan, at any rate, are definite examples of anti-liquor traffic hopes turned into actual accomplishment.

Ontario's progress, when viewed in the light of what these two provinces have done, looks unfortunately small. There, under the Commission, it is a question of retaining or cutting off individual licenses in specific localities; in Alberta and Saskatchewan the axe has been laid to the very roots of the traffic and the abolition has been done in a wholesale, thorough way.

Mr Rowell, as the opponent of the abolition of all drinking places in Ontario, may well expect that the people of his own province will be influenced considerably by the example and initiative of their comrades in the West.
