for Days. A despatch from London says: The Daily Mail's correspondent at The Hague telegraphs that a prominent neutral citizen, who has just arrived from Brussels, says that the movement of German troops through Belgium to the western front has been constant for several days.

A significant order of the day pre dicting resumption by the Germans of a vigorous offensive in the west has been issued to the Teutonic armies in Flanders, according to the Amsterdam Telegraaf. An extract from this order, telegraphed by the Amsterdam correspondent of the Ex- Cardboard is Best Plan; Germans change Telegraph Company, follows:

"Our work now is practically finished in the east and we are about to begin in the west. Peace is certain in October."

The French official communication chronicles the recapture through counter-attacks of part of the trenches lost in the Argonne, and the repulse of enemy attacks at other points. There was also some rather severe fighting in the Vosges, which hand-grenades were used.

Albert Thomas, Under-Secretary of War in charge of munitions, tells the Petit Parisien that France's efforts to produce munitions are different in method, but equal in results, to those of England, which he recently viewed.

TROOPS AT GALLIPOLI SHELLED BY SUBMARINE

A despatch from Mitylene says: After the sinking of the Turkish battleship Barbarossa the allies' submarines also sank a large gunboat and German Troops empty transport in the neighborhood of Gallipoli port. After the coast had been cleared of enemy ships two submarines drew in close to shore and shelled a column of troops marching toward Gallipoli town, causing them very heavy casualties. The destruction of the Barbarossa removed a regular thorn in the allies' side, for the accurate fire of its wellcalibred, high-trajectory guns across the peninsula had more than once seriously hampered the movements of the allies' ships approaching from

A commercial traveller, visiting a large factory, made a bet with the manager that he would pick out all the married men among the employees. Accordingly he stationed himself at the door as they came back from dinner, and mentioned all those whom he believd to be married, and almost in every case he was right. "How do you do it?" asked the manager in amazement. "Oh, it's simple," said the knight of the road quite simple. The married men all wipe their feet on the mat. The sin-

The black portions indicate the territory held by the Allied Powers; the white, territory occupied by Germany or her allies, and the shaded portions, the territory of the neutral nations. The broken lines mark the boundaries before the war and serve to show the areas of the enemy's country held by the several belligerents. Germany holds nearly all Belgium and the northeast section of France, while with her ally she has taken a considerable area in Russian Poland. On the other hand, France has won a portion of Alsace; Italy has captured a fringe of Austria-Hungary along the frontier; Russia still holds part of Galicia; and the Allies have won the tip of the Gallipoli Peninsula. The map, of course, takes no account of the former German colonies which have been conquered by, or have surrendered to, the British or French forces.
