But the Teutonic Zweibund is in a much worse position financially than a volume of "shin-plasters" that por-The Government of Germany compels the Bank of Germany to accept war loan notes as legal tender, and the bank actually uses such notes as a part of its reserve. These notes are not covered by a gold reserve, so that a vast pyramid of paper money is being erected without adequate gold or even silver protection behind it.

The Bank of England even to-day will cash any of its own notes in fold. Such is not the case in Germany, where the note circulation exhas no means of recuperating with foreign commerce her dwindling exchequer. She must live upon herself. and consequently is paying her own people for her war supplies and materials in paper money, the volume of which has already reached colossal proportions. Germans contend that when the war is over this will have proved an advantage to the German people since the Government will owe none but themselves. All debts will be local debts, and all payments will remain within the empire. But what if Germany loses and is taxed as France was taxed forty-five years ago to pay an enormous war indemnity? Would Germany still be able to cancel such a foreign obligation, and at the same time retire the billions of paper money which is now in process of creation?
