War Notes

The news from the various fronts last week were such as to produce pessimism. The Russian "Steam Roller" that was long ago to crush its way to Berlin, has been driven backward at nearly all points. Warsaw, Neva, Geopriest, Osowets, Heron, Brest-Litovsk, all the strongest of forts, had fallen before the German onslaught. Poland was cleared of Russian troops, a beggarly trench or two had been taken by the French, the British were scarcely heard from, either in Flanders or the Dardanelles and Italy was making progress, but slow.

The gleam of victory when the German fleet was driven from the Gulf of Riga with a loss of 11 ships was satisfactory, but it has had no effect in staying Russian reverses on land. The German armies are using superhuman efforts to encircle the Russian army, or part of it, but so far Grand Duke Nicholas, by consummate skill has managed to elude them.

The British 10 days ago made a successful landing at an unexpected place near the Dardanelles, the Australians and New Zealanders covered themselves with glory by winning a dominating ridge from the Turks, but British support coming up too slow, they were compelled to relinquish it. The Turks are proving splendid defence fighters, and it's a long, long way to Constantinople yet, unless Turkish supplies for men and guns give out.

Bulgaria has one ear listening to the Kaiser, the other listening to the Allies. A Bulgaria-Turkey treaty was drawn up, but the Allies, impressively, seem to have bidden Bulgaria go slow. Greece is waiting on Bulgaria, Roumania is saying little, but all are keyed up to high tension and await Bulgaria's decision.

All that the United States has so far done to avenge the killing of Americans on Lusitania and Arabia is to write letters. Germany is very sorry over the Arabic Americans, asks delay to investigate but makes no promise to stop her inhuman methods.

Cotton has been declared contraband, Russia is widening the representation of the people. Governor Hendrie on opening Toronto Fair advises that all Canadians should be trained for war duties. A message from Ottawa says 50,000 more men are to be called out making 200,000 for Canada. Great artillery activity along the French-Flanders front. Allied airmen numerous and active. Such are a few of the salient points of the last few days.

A general expectation exists, indeed is longed for, of some decisive allied move. It is felt that Russia's terrible predicament should bring some forceful blow from her allies, but ours only to wait with patience to see the outcome of Kitchener's plans.

A winter campaign with all its horrors, seems assured.

Mr Goldwin Patterson of Glenelg, near Priceville, was visiting in this part last week, but is now at Kingston undergoing training for the front.

We hope he may pass through the dangers of the war and have a safe return.

DORNOCH

The frost of the last two nights has been very severe and has done considerable damage to the gardens.

Mrs J. Wagner and daughters left on Monday for Victoria, B. C., after spending a couple of months with her parents Mr and Mrs P. McIntosh.

Mr. A. E. Smith of Chicago is spending a couple of weeks with his wife's parents, Mr and Mrs Dargavel.

We are glad to report that Mr. R. Dargavel who is in the hospital in Toronto is improving and will be able to come home in a couple of weeks.

Mr. Charlie Pratt of Woodstock, called on Dornoch friends Monday evening.

Mr and Mrs J. Dargavel and baby of Rock Mills motored out to spend Sunday with his parents.

"Sam" Carter, M. P. P.

The Guelph Mercury last week published an admirable character sketch of the member for S. Wellington. As Carter is a man from whom more will be heard in the future, we give an extract:

"A new man in the Legislature, he has established in his very first session the reputation of sharing with Hon. Thomas McGarry, the laurels of the heaviest "scraper" in the House. But, whereas McGarry, with all his ability, rather gives the impression of fighting for the mere sake of fighting and not for any deep-down ideals. Carter is simply ablaze with crusading zeal. At times, when he speaks, he is deceivably quiet, but if you will only wait for a moment or two you will be actually startled at the outburst of spontaneous zeal and enthusiasm, which has a queer magnetic effect.

One instance will suffice. This session, during the debate on the liquor question, Mr Carter moved an amendment to the government bill, suggesting that at bars as well as shops be closed every evening at seven o'clock. The government rejected the proposal. Carter then moved that the hour be eight o'clock instead of seven as at present in cities. This again the government rejected. And now, without making any partisan stand in the temperance controversy in Ontario politics, it is easy to see that some members on the government side made a serious mistake. Up to this point Carter has been comparatively quiet. When he got up to move that the hour be fixed at nine o'clock, some of the government supporters began to sneer, and when, upon the rejection of that, Carter rose for the fourth time and proposed ten o'clock, there was general laughter from the government side.

They were able to vote down Carter's motions, but they were unable to stem the torrent of the most dramatic speech in the whole session, one which had the strange effect of causing a hush in the whole Chamber. All the Carter antecedents, all the fire which had been burning in the Carters at the time of the Chartists, in his father as he had been arrested for talking in a wood, in himself as he had had to jump close to the fence to avoid being run over by a heavy rambling van, the fire which has led him to fight the officials of Guelph—the whole culminating in a flagrant burst out against the government in an impassioned speech which has been talked about wherever the 1915 session of the Ontario Legislature has been discussed.

"You laugh to-night," Carter blazed out. "You mock at our amendments. Our concern for the boys of this country makes great sport for you. But I know and you know what is happening this very night in the bar rooms of this and other cities. Our men and boys are being ruined; their money is being wasted; their homes are being destroyed; their lives are being blasted—I warn you and your government that I will go through this province and I will tell
