Conservation

Watch Dangers from Fire

The following suggestions if faithfully followed will do much to prevent damage to property and loss of life.

STOVES

Place a metal stove board on the wood floor under the stove and extending at least twelve inches in front of the ash pit door. Protect all walls and partitions within two feet of any stove with a metal shield, leaving an air space between the shield and the wall. Leave no kindling or other wood in the oven over night. Do not hang clothes too near the stove or stove pipes.

PIPES

Where pipes must pass through partitions, walls or floors, always use a large ventilated double thimble. You should examine the stove pipes in the attic. They may come apart or rust. Fluff and spider webs are likely to gather on and around them, so set on fire when you least expect it.

CHIMNEYS

Chimneys should be built from the ground up and never rest on wood supports. Chimney walls should be at least eight inches thick, the flue of ample size and lined with fire clay or terra cotta. Never stuff up the flue holes with rags or paper, nor cover them with anything but a metal stock. Chimneys should be cleaned frequently.

FURNACES

Protect all woodwork above and around boilers, if within three feet, with a metal shield, also all wood-work near furnace pipes. It is best to rivet the lengths of pipe together to prevent disjoining. The pipe should fit perfectly into the chimney. Examine the pipe frequently for rust holes or other defects. Keep them free from dust, fluff and spider webs which are easily ignited.

OVERHEATING

Beware of overheating stoves, boilers, furnaces and pipes.

ASHES

These should never be placed in wooden receptacles, or bins, or wood floors, or against wood partitions, walls, fences, building or any other woodwork. Use metal receptacles only and dump ashes away from all buildings. Let "care and caution" be the watchword and in this way assist in reducing Canada's enormous fire loss.

What a Zeppelin Raid is Like.

A Startling Experience

The following letter from Gunner Sidney Baker, a friend of Mr. Robt. Torry and family in town was received by them last week. It pictures the destruction caused by a Zeppelin raid

Oct. 18, 1915.

Dear Friends,

You must excuse me for keeping you waiting so long for a letter, as I can tell you we are so busy here working from day until dark and we have to put lights out at 7 o'clock, so you can see by that we have very little time to do anything. We are getting ready for the front as soon as we can and I shall be glad when I get there. I came back to Salisbury Plain last Monday. We were given four days leave and I went home for a day, the rest of the time I spent in London and had a nice time. I went to my cousin's at Kensington, went for a walk in Hyde Park on Sunday afternoon and heard the 1st Life Guards Band play and I can tell you it was fine. On Monday I went sightseeing, visited Westminster Abbey and a lot of places of interest such as Buckingham Palace which is a great sight one that you would never forget.

My time was up on Monday night, so I had to return to the camp after being away two weeks. I had to get right down to hard work and you know it doesn't go very good at first, but in the Army we have to do our bit and the sooner a fellow gets down to it the better.

Well, I have something to tell you of my first experience under fire, which was on the 13th. We were just going to bed and I had written a letter to Canada, my mate was shaving by the candle light. I was just going to have a good sleep when I heard a noise, which I knew was a Zeppelin, so I said to my mate "Here comes a Zeppelin." He said I was crazy. I got up and went to the door of the tent and I could hear it quite plainly and everybody was shouting "lights out boys!" I can tell you it was very exciting and I could see the bombs coming just like a streak of fire from the sky and in another moment it was bang and then again and again so fast that I didn't have time to count them, but most of the fellows say there were 8 bombs. The horses got loose and all tangled up with the timber and everything was in disorder for the time being, but soon became all right again and then we began to look for the killed and wounded. It was an awful sight—many you never experience the like—the dead and dying men and horses all over was terrible, some poor fellows all blown to pieces. One young fellow with both legs off was asking if anybody else was hurt and died soon after. There were 16 men killed and about 20 wounded, 16 horses killed and lots wounded, so you can see what it was like. One fellow who I have worked with a lot was killed outright.

On Friday, the 15th, we buried them with full honors at Shorncliffe. It was a great sight, 16 wagons with the bodies covered with the Union Jack, the Band played the Dead March and nearly everybody who could went to pay respect to the dead, who had died so nobly. It was evening when we buried them and the last post and the three volleys made it an ideal soldier's funeral. I don't know how they missed me, as they came right over our tent and I can tell you that I was expecting every second to die, but I came through it without a scratch, so I know you will be pleased to get a line from me sometimes instead of never, as the case might have been if the Germans had dropped them a little sooner. I shall be glad to get to France to pay them back for what they have done to us. I will have to close, as I am writing under difficulties. I would be glad to hear from you at any time.

SID BAKER,

MAKING A COLD FRAME BED.

Directions For Mixing the Concrete and Filling the Forms.

The following directions are given by the Rural New Yorker for a four sash bed, which of course could be extended to any length desired. A standard hotbed sash is 3 by 6 feet. Lay out the bed six feet eight inches wide by twelve feet ten inches long. The concrete walls are six inches thick. Dig the foundation trenches two feet six inches deep within the lines given above. Make forms of one inch lumber to carry the south (front) wall six inches and the north (back) wall fourteen inches above the ground. Forms are not required below ground level. The tops of the end walls slope to the others. Before filling the forms with concrete test the dimensions of the bed by means of the sash. See that the sash lap the forms two inches on all sides.

Mix the concrete mushy wet in the proportion of one bag of cement to two and one-half cubic feet of sand to five cubic feet of crushed rock or one bag of cement to five cubic feet of bank run gravel. Fill the forms without stopping for anything. Tie the walls together at the corners by laying them old iron rods bent to right angles. While placing the concrete leave half-inch bolts about two feet apart to hold the wooden top framing of the Many women with disfigured complexions never seem to think that they need an occasional cleansing bath as well as outside. Yet neglect of this internal bathing shows itself in spotty, and sallow complexions—as well as in dreadful headaches and biliousness. It's because the liver becomes sluggish, and waste matter accumulates which Nature cannot remove without assistance. The best remedy is Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, which cleanse the liver, kidneys, and intestines, gently cleanse the stomach and bowels and tone the whole digestive system.
