Seed Potatoes

The man who grows good potatoes when potatoes are needed is a public benefactor.

According to present production and consumption in Ontario from twenty-five to thirty people or from five to six families are supplied with potatoes for one year from each average acre of land which the farmer plants with this crop. An increase of fifty per cent in yield would mean an increase in the amount of potatoes produced on each average acre of land sufficient to supply about one dozen people for twelve months. The potato crop of Ontario could be decidedly and economically improved by a more general use of party, well bred seed of a few of the best varieties, by the adoption of better methods of culture, and by a more complete control of insects and diseases.

Varieties of potatoes differ greatly not only in yield per acre, but also in freedom from rot and in cooking qualities. For instance, in the winter season of 1915, the varieties of potatoes grown under uniform conditions at the Ontario Agricultural College varied in yield per acre from 13 to 366 bushels, in amount of rot from less than one to over seventy per cent, and in table quality from 30 to 83 out of a maximum of 100 points.

Potatoes grown in Ontario in a comparatively cold wet season like that of 1915 are likely to be of good quality for planting providing they are free from disease. Tubers showing discoloration or signs of rot on the outer surface or when cut should not be used for planting. There are far too many varieties of potatoes grown on the farms of Ontario. This is one of the greatest weaknesses in the potato industry of the Province. It is a defect that should be remedied as soon as possible. It Ontario would confine herself to a few of the best varieties of potatoes the annual crop would be increased in yield, in quality and in commercial value.

It is our sad task to chronicle the death of Josephine, youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs P. Kelly, which sad event took place on Thursday, 20th inst., after an illness of about two weeks. Josephine was a bright pretty girl in her 13th year, a clever pupil preparing to try the Entrance examination to the High School, when severe illness came and in spite of medical attendance and loving care, she passed to the better land. The funeral on Saturday was largely attended, although the weather was unfavorable. We know our residents join us in extending deep sympathy to the bereaved.

On the garden misses the sweet young rose
Nipped by untimely frost,
And the parents' hearts are sad and lone
For their darling loved and lost.

OLDER BUT STRONGER

To be healthy at seventy, prepare at forty, is sound advice, because the strength of middle life we too often forget that neglected colds, or careless treatment of slight aches and pains, simply undermine strength and bring chronic weakness for later years.

To be stronger when older, keep your blood pure and rich and active with the strength-building and blood-nourishing properties of Scott's Emulsion which is food, a tonic and a medicine to keep your blood rich, alleviate rheumatism and avoid sickness. At any drug store.
