TAX ON MATCHES NOT NEW.

From U. S. in 1871.

This is not the first time that a British Chancellor of the Exchequer has tried to raise money from the taxation of matches. The proposal was put forward by Robert Lowe (afterward Lord Sherbrooke) in 1871. He suggested a halfpenny stamp on boxes of 100 wooden matches or less and aristocratic." He estimated that the tax would yield for the first year £550,000 ($2,750,000). The idea was borrowed from America, which at that time made £400,000 $2,000,000) a year from the tax.

Mr. Lowe's reason for suggesting it was that the "cost of matches was so way." He suggested as the motto for Guelph, Ontario. the new stamp "Ex luce lucellum" (out of light a little profit), and he thought this more appropriate than the usual rather watery device of a 'Noah's Ark."

The match tax was regarded in 1871 as a frivolous measure, although it was at first favored by Parliament.
