Sir Sam Should Subside

An extraordinary statement has been given to the Press by Sir Sam Hughes, which is cruel in its nature under present circumstances, to the Canadians and a reflection on the dead Kitchen and grace, when no chance of reply can come from the Atlantic waves.

The statement is that he advised Kitchener to abandon the Ypres salient as being unnecessarily dangerous and therefore by inference in the opinion of Sir Sam, the 6000 or more killed and wounded Canadians unnecessarily met their fate.

In view of the many mourning homes amongst us would it not have been better to suppress the interview. What comfort is it to mother, wife or sister to learn that their loved one died unnecessarily? Is it not the act of a thoughtless man that would thus add to the poignancy of grief?

Sir Sam has done many things well, but his ever-recurring vanity has made him more than once ridiculous, and in this case has made him cruel. Sir Robert Borden has found it necessary to issue a statement that the British War Office, Sir Douglas Haig and Joffre himself, think it highly important that the Ypres salient should not be abandoned. Will Sir Sam tell them they don't know beans? Sir Sam should subside.

Hughes for the Republicans.

"Judge Hughes will get the votes and Roosevelt the cheers" was the remark made to the writer about a month ago by a Detroit man, and so it has turned out. Two conventions met in Chicago at the same time, the regular Republican and the "Progressive" party who four years ago deserted Taft and ran Roosevelt making a three cornered contest in which, Wilson the Democrat, slipped in between the two Republicans. It was hoped by the Progressives that the old liners would fall in with "Teddy" and stand a united phalanx against Wilson, but the hope was vain. The regulars chose, practically unanimously, the silent man Hughes, the others, more unanimously have nominated Roosevelt and if he stays in the field Wilson will win again.

Hughes, no longer silent, has resigned his judgeship, issued a splendid platform and will begin an active career at once. He is a very able man, with a fine record and will hold the great position if elected. Teddy has won the heart of Canadians by his pro-ally sympathies and they would have been pleased to see him at the head of a united party. However they look with interest at a great contest, believing that any of the three men (for Wilson will surely be the choice of the "Democrats") will worthily fill the Presidential chair.

For 93 minutes the Progressive Convention "demonstrated" by cheering, hat waving, etc. for beloved Teddy, thus beating the record in this grotesque form of enthusiasm. When they found the Regulars would not have him they rushed things and it is claimed had him nominated four minutes before Hughes in the other body.

Park's in the presence of only a few friends, when their third daughter Bessie was united in marriage to Mr Allister Anderson of Medicine Hat, Alta., formerly of Hampden. Mr and Mrs Anderson left the following day for London to visit the former's brother there for a few days.

War Notes

The great feature of the week has been on the Eastern front, where Russia on a 250 mile front is chasing the Austrians, has taken in a week no fewer than 114,000 prisoners, hundreds of officers, hundreds of cannon and machine guns and vast quantities of military stores. The hope of Germany that Russia would take all this year to recover from her defeat last year, has proved futile and the Central Empires must have forebodings.

The Germans have made slight gains at Verdun against the French, and are predicting they will have the city by 1st July, while the French hold to their motto "They shall not pass."

The enemy is making desperate efforts against the part of the British line held by Canadians. He can't get through but is taking fearful toll as the long lists of casualties published every day give evidence. Experts think the allies are waiting for some opportune moment to make the long-talked of drive, but Joffre does not think the moment has come.

Austria's needs in the east will relieve Italy which has stopped the rush that prevailed for 10 days. Germany may also have to weaken the western front to prevent her ally from being overwhelmed and if she does that would seem to be the Allies' chance.

Germany admits having told lies regarding the great naval battle on the plea of "military necessity," and as the whole truth comes out it is proved to have been a great British victory. Britain still controls the North Sea and danger from the German fleet is past for months to come.

Twelve survivors from the Hampshire reached the shore on a raft alive and almost gone, but Kitchener was not amongst them. They tell that he entered a boat which was swamped in the rough seas, but no trace of him dead or alive has been found and all hope is gone.

Asquith has taken his place temporarily as War Minister and it looks as if Lloyd George was to be the man. He is at present trying to bring harmony to Ireland, on a plan to introduce Home Rule at once, excluding in the meantime 5 or 6 Ulster counties. He is having difficulties.

The Allies have had to act harshly with Crece and compelled her to demobilize her army. More treachery we presume—a quality all the Balkan nations seem to have abundance of. Roumania, in view of Russian successes, may be induced to enter the fray soon, so as to be "in" at the finish.

Smuts is making steady progress in cornering the Germans in East Africa and before long, this last and greatest of German colonies may pass from her control.

No move by the Allies, offensive or defensive, is being made at Salonica.
