Buy Farm Property Now

It is bound to increase in value. Men in a position to judge say that no farmer living to-day will ever again see cheap land. This certainly means an early increase in the selling price of farm lands. I have for sale:

- 100 acres near Bromore, convenient to school. Splendidly improved, only $2000 down, balance at 5 per cent. Price $2500.
- 100 acres on 18, Egremont, well prepared 5000 or with another 50 acres, $6000.
- 30 acres Egremont, near Holstein. One of the very best farms in the Township. Will soon be picked up at very low price quoted.
- 100 acres Bentinck—the John Clark farm, on 3, W & R. Cheaper than ever offered before.
- 100 acres Bentinck, lot 51 on 2, W. G. 100, near Durham. Good farm, cheap.

Automobile prices are being raised—but the Ford price has been reduced $120 since the war began

The immense Ford cash purchasing power has made it possible to overcome in many ways the serious obstacles met with by other car makers because of the scarcity and advance in prices of raw materials.

The high Ford quality is strictly maintained—and the most exacting government tests have shown that Ford constructive material even excels that used in most high grade cars

This year the Ford car—always the most economical car to buy and to operate—beats all records for economy.

BEAVER CREEK

We are sorry to report the death of Mr. John Meagher, who died Wednesday night. He had been suffering for some time. His wife and family mourn his loss. The funeral took place on Saturday and was one of the largest that wended its way from this neighborhood. Much sympathy is shown to the bereaved ones.

Farmers are busy thinning trimps while the good weather continues. We are getting good weather since the "Allies' victory."

It is reported Mr. P. Fogarty is sick at present with pneumonia.

The Institute meeting at Mr. P. O'Neill's was very well attended. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. W. Timmins' on Aug. 10th.

Mr. Jas. McGillivray has been cutting shingles for a new part to his barn his building.

The McArthur boys have bought Mr. D. McArthur's hay and report a fine crop.

EDGE HILL

Rev. Mr. Whaley held a prayer meeting in the Grange Hall last Thursday night, which was fairly well attended. Edith Isabella, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Firth, was baptized there that night.

Mr. and Mrs. Adam Anderson visited on the 12th with Mr. and Mrs. John Weir, of North Egremont.

Born to Mr. and Mrs. William Williams, on July 12, a daughter.

Miss Emma Edwards and niece Essel, who have been for a number of years in different parts of the west, was visiting last week with her sister, Mrs. D. Greenwood.

Mr. E. Hagerman, New York, who is on a motor tour, was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. D. Edge one day last week.

In spite of all that could be done by loving daughters and sons and Drs., death claimed Mr. Donald McFayden on Sat., July 15. He had a kindly disposition which won and held the respect of his many friends and neighbors and was one of the pioneers in this district. A fuller obituary appears elsewhere in this paper, so we will not say any more here.

Mr. J. Banks, of —, is visiting his mother, Mrs. R. H. Banks, for a time.

Memorial Services

A memorial service for the late Lieut. Arnold Thurston was held in the Methodist church Sunday evening when Rev. James Dodgson preached an appropriate and touching sermon from second Timothy, 4th chapter and verse 7. "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." The sermon was a most comforting one to all, knowing as we know from his own life that Arnold was prepared for any eventuality. A letter written to be read after his death said that he died in "the old, old faith."

In deference to the wishes of the family, the church was modestly decorated with flags and banks of white flowers. The seating capacity of the church was filled.—Flesherton Advance.

Learn to Swim

From June to October scarcely a day passes without a drowning accident being recorded in the newspapers. Many of these would have been saved had they known how to swim and many of them good swimmers it may be, got fool-hardy or ambitious to beat a record and went down by cramps or heart failure. A few are doing the hero part and in trying to save life, lose their own.

Can nothing impress the many who go down into the water? All are liable to accident but each one, if he thinks about it all, thinks he is safe. Not one of the victims but would have told you if admonished to be careful "Oh I'm alright, I'll be careful."

The following advice should be rammed in, jammed in, crammed in at every opportunity:

Don't reek a boat or canoe or carry on fool tricks of any kind.

Don't stay in the water too long.

Don't plunge into the water over the heart at first dip.

Don't bathe after a full meal.

Don't stay in a minute longer if you feel faint.

Don't be too sure of a good bottom.

Even our rivers have sudden-drop ledges that have proved fatal.

The following is from a Health Bulletin issued by the city of Toronto recently:

"If you smoke a good deal, and do not get much exercise, or if you have any reason to believe you have a weak heart, or if you are tired, or if you have had a meal recently, then be careful about going in swimming. Don't go into very cold water, stay in shallow water for a while and don't go for a long swim. If you feel faint, get out at once. We advise this because a good many so-called cases of drowning are really heart failure. As soon as one enters the water the surface blood vessels contract and a great strain is then thrown upon the heart, which has to force the blood through these contracted vessels. Many swimmers who have gone down and cannot be resuscitated, even though quickly taken out of the water, have died of heart failure and not drowning at all, and it is wise, therefore, to observe the precautions already pointed out."

BOWSER IN GRIEF.

Spring Feeling Brings on Tearful Thoughts.

THE JUG WAS ON THE STEPS.

By M. QUAD.
Copyright, 1911, by Associated Literary Press.

MR. BOWSER had come home in a cheerful state of mind, and nothing unusual had been noticed in his actions until an hour after dinner. Then he began to hunch around in a nervous way and finally said:

"Seems to me it's going to rain tonight."

"The stars were out half an hour ago," replied Mrs. Bowser.

"I think I'll go out and see."

He put on his hat and passed out and was gone ten minutes and returned to say:

"Yes, the stars are out, but I was sure it was going to rain."

He picked up the paper and read for a quarter of an hour. Then he began to hunch again.

"Are you sitting on a tack?" asked Mrs. Bowser, who had an eye on him.

"No, of course not. Do you take me for a fool?"

"But you seem nervous."

"Well, I am. I believe we are going to have a thunderstorm. You know I always have these nervous fits on when there's thunder in the air."

GADGET STAR GAZING.

"I never heard of it before."

"Oh, you didn't? Well, there's a good many things you never heard of before. If there's a thunderstorm coming up I want to know it."

He went down the hall and outdoors again, and it was ten minutes before he returned.

"I don't hear any thunder," observed Mrs. Bowser.

"There isn't any," he replied, "but the weather has a peculiar influence on me this evening."

The house settled down to peace and harmony again, but not for long. Of a sudden Mr. Bowser began to giggle like a schoolboy and then cried out:

"By George, that's funny! Funniest thing I've read in ten years! Ha, ha, ha!"

"What is it?" was asked, and as Mrs. Bowser put the query she noticed that his face was growing red.

"Man in Boston was walking along, and another man asked him for a match—ha, ha, ha!"

"What else?"

"Nothing else. Man just walking along, and another man asked him for a match. Think of it, Mrs. Bowser! Man comes right up to another man in Boston and asks for a match!"

"The weather does seem to have a strange effect on you. You had better go out and see if there are any signs of a cyclone."

"I will, dear. I guess that's what the matter is. I guess there's a regular old cyclone coming."

What Mrs. Bowser Saw.

For the third time he passed out of the front door. Mrs. Bowser tiptoed to the parlor window, whence she could get a view of the front steps, and she saw him descend and pick up a jug resting to his lips and take a hearty swig. He had evidently left the jug out there when he came from the office. She was back in her chair when he returned, and she quietly asked:

"Well, does the weather look cyclonic?"

"It does and it doesn't," he answered. "Never saw such queer weather. We may be going to have an earthquake. Oh, well, if it comes, it will come."

It was to be noticed that Mr. Bowser's hilarity had departed. He picked up the paper again and turned it over and over, but laid it down with a long groan and pathetically said:

"Mrs. Bowser, I should commit suicide if you was killed in an earthquake—I surely should!"

"I guess there's no danger."

"I hope not. If an earthquake shook this house down and the roof hit you on the ear and spared me I'd be the one-somest man in the world. I couldn't live. I'd be thinking of you all the time. I'd be thinking what a good woman you was."

"Hadn't you better lie down on the lounge awhile?" suggested Mrs. Bowser.
