Agriculture and Land Settlement

"According to the United States Immigration authorities, Canada lost 500,000 citizens during the fiscal year of 1914-15," declared Hon. J.A. Calder of Saskatchewan in Montreal recently. He arraigned the Dominion Government for its policy of "do nothing."

This policy of "do-nothing" is even more prevalent in the Ontario Government. The Ontario Department of Agriculture is on its last legs. Expressions of dissatisfaction are arising from all sides and the Department is recognized as a source of weakness to the Government.

In a speech made during the Agricultural Debate in the Ontario House last session, Mr. Nelson Parliament, Liberal M. P. P. for Prince Edward County, urged the Government to endeavor to stop the trend cityward of our agricultural population. His plea was met with the sarcastic remark from certain members on the Government side that "this was an annual affair." Mr. Parliament quietly, but emphatically, replied "as long as I have the honor to represent a constituency in this province, unless something more is done by the Departments of Education and Agriculture, this will be an annual affair."

He appealed for both parties to unite in accomplishing something for agriculture. His appeal met with no response from the Government and dissatisfaction with the present Government is growing to resentment in rural Ontario on account of their repeated failures to meet the situation.

Nickel: It is unofficially announced that the manufacture of nickel in Canada is to begin as soon as the necessary arrangements can be made and the plant provided by the International Nickel Co. A deputation from North Bay waited upon Hon. G. Howard Ferguson on Thursday last with the object of securing the assistance of the Minister of Mines in having the proposed refining plant situated in North Bay.

Mr. Ferguson recently made public the fact that the Government is examining into a special process whereby nickel can be refined in Ontario. In reply to enquiries he stated that it is not the intention of the Ontario Government to go into the nickel refining business themselves; that a process enabling nickel to be refined in Ontario was being worked out and that the nickel companies would be compelled to use this process and use it in Ontario. Royalties would be charged and revenue thus secured for the province.

Hydro: After the heated controversy which arose as a result of the failure in the power supply recently, the government has now arranged with the Canadian Niagara Power Company to furnish 12,500 h. p. at once, to meet the pressing demands of the province. Sir Adam Beck announced that he has every confidence that no government from now on will allow any export of other than surplus power.

Notes: A writ calling for the holding of the bye-election in South West Toronto on Monday, August the 21st, has been issued by the Government, with nomination day set for the 14th.

Mr. N. W. Rowell has spent four most impressive days at the Canadian front. He attended the French Senate on Tuesday and remained in Paris all last week.

SOUTH BENTINCK

Visited Jas. Farquharson in the Hospital. Doing Fine

Ontario Military Hospital, Orpington, Kent, England. 18th July, 1916.

Dear Friends at Home,

It might prove interesting if I related how I had a visit extending for more than an hour with an old Durham boy, Jim Farquharson, who is at present lying wounded in the King George Hospital in London.

It was about 4 o'clock on Sunday, 16th inst., that I got off at Waterloo station in the Metropolis and five minutes' walk took me to the Hospital. It is a fine, large, four-storey building and admirably adapted for the purpose which it serves, though I am told the original intent of the building was along industrial lines. It has a capacity of 1600 patients.

"Third Floor, Ward A," the clerk directed me, when I inquired of Jim's whereabouts. I duly entered Ward A which was a seemingly never-ending row upon row of cots each containing a sitting-up figure and frequently a coterie of sympathetic friends around the bed. I asked the head Nursing Sister for further direction. "Canada," she exclaimed, and in a responsive "here" by a voice three beds away, I immediately recognized Jim as the owner of it. He was sitting in a wheeled chair and talking to two ladies and a gentleman to whom he immediately introduced me. One was a cousin who has been in Durham but I must have a poor memory as I have forgotten her name.

He is the same old Jim. Sixteen months of service in France and Belgium has not changed him a whit. He has the irrepressible, witty spirit with him more than ever and he chuckled all the time as he related his adventures in the field and on the firing line. His face is fuller than of yore and he has a wool top that can put Canada's hay crop to shame.

As you have already doubtless heard his wound was caused by a piece of shrapnel which struck him on the left knee. Here there is a hole that you can fit your fist nicely into. The limb is fully bandaged and is as stiff as a plaster of Paris cast. It is not known how seriously he will be maimed by the mishap; possibly not at all, but it will be a few months yet before he can locomote himself. Notwithstanding that he belonged to the 13th Battalion and was wounded on the 13th day of the month, (June) he considers himself lucky to escape as well as he did. This can be seen and appreciated when we learn that he was one of the last few left of the original battalion still at the front.

He told me that he was fixing the communication wires along the top of the parapet in the great bombardment when the unlucky shell came. The dressing station was a mile and a half behind the lines and he made his way back for the most part unaided. His knee was in bad shape at first, but when England was reached proper medical attention brought relief. He had many close calls but one of his most thrilling episodes was on the day previous to receiving his wound when the Colonel of his regiment and himself were buried together in a dug-out. They emerged safely from that but as Jim himself said, "That was merely a warning that the worst was yet to come." He had not long to wait, "the worst" came next day at noon.

In certain respects he regrets that he is now on the shelf. If he had not been incapacitated he would now be taking his commission in France, having recently attained his majority. However, he is glad to be away from it all and no one can say he has not "done his bit." The word 'discharge' is not unpleasant to him now. Before leaving France he states that he saw Milton Seim still on duty on the Field Ambulance. He had not had any word of Milton Jack for some time but had seen Jack Weir some days before he was wounded.

Captain Gun is going to London soon and will pay Jim a visit which will be highly appreciated. The doctor is getting along well in Hospital work and is making a name for himself. He tells me that Gordon has been transferred to the 44th Battalion and will go over channel as a member of that unit. As for myself I still hold down the same position and the prospects of getting to France seem to be remote, much to my regret.

The Government Hospital is well filled now and the majority of the patients are Imperial soldiers. Transfers to Convalescent Homes and discharges of the patients, are occurring daily and a fresh convoy of wounded arrives from France about every second day. Construction work on an Isolation Hospital and a large dining hall for the 'UP' patients, is going on close to the main building.

Don. McKinnon, the McGirr boys, J. Allen and others, have had some interesting letters in print and they describe military life very aptly. No need to enlarge on the subject. I was with Ernest McGirr and Alex. Bell in London on the 9th inst. I
